

This is a digital copy of a book that was preserved for generations on library shelves before it was carefully scanned by Google as part of a project to make the world's books discoverable online.

It has survived long enough for the copyright to expire and the book to enter the public domain. A public domain book is one that was never subject to copyright or whose legal copyright term has expired. Whether a book is in the public domain may vary country to country. Public domain books are our gateways to the past, representing a wealth of history, culture and knowledge that's often difficult to discover.

Marks, notations and other marginalia present in the original volume will appear in this file - a reminder of this book's long journey from the publisher to a library and finally to you.

Usage guidelines

Google is proud to partner with libraries to digitize public domain materials and make them widely accessible. Public domain books belong to the public and we are merely their custodians. Nevertheless, this work is expensive, so in order to keep providing this resource, we have taken steps to prevent abuse by commercial parties, including placing technical restrictions on automated querying.

We also ask that you:

- + Make non-commercial use of the files We designed Google Book Search for use by individuals, and we request that you use these files for personal, non-commercial purposes.
- + Refrain from automated querying Do not send automated queries of any sort to Google's system: If you are conducting research on machine translation, optical character recognition or other areas where access to a large amount of text is helpful, please contact us. We encourage the use of public domain materials for these purposes and may be able to help.
- + Maintain attribution The Google "watermark" you see on each file is essential for informing people about this project and helping them find additional materials through Google Book Search. Please do not remove it.
- + Keep it legal Whatever your use, remember that you are responsible for ensuring that what you are doing is legal. Do not assume that just because we believe a book is in the public domain for users in the United States, that the work is also in the public domain for users in other countries. Whether a book is still in copyright varies from country to country, and we can't offer guidance on whether any specific use of any specific book is allowed. Please do not assume that a book's appearance in Google Book Search means it can be used in any manner anywhere in the world. Copyright infringement liability can be quite severe.

About Google Book Search

Google's mission is to organize the world's information and to make it universally accessible and useful. Google Book Search helps readers discover the world's books while helping authors and publishers reach new audiences. ENTERED,
According to the Act of Congress, in the year 1835, by

In the Clerk's office of the District Court of the Southern District of
NEW YORK.

STEREOTYPED BY FRANCIS F. RIPLEY,
NEW YORK.

PREFACE.

THE distinguished success that has attended the Grammar of M. de Lévizac, which has been adopted by the most celebrated Schools in England, is a sufficient proof that it is one of the most useful that has hitherto appeared: it has, indeed, one advantage, that will always secure it a preference above every other: all the principles it contains, as well as the Orthography of Voltaire, are sanctioned by the authority of the French Academy, and by all the Grammarians of eminence, who for nearly a century have laboured to ascertain and fix the true rules of the French Language. Another advantage, not less valuable, is, that almost all the phrases given as examples or exercises, being drawn from the Dictionary of the Academy, or the most approved French writers, the Student of this Grammar will store his mind with none but pure and correct forms of speech, and will not be liable to contract vicious modes of expression, and imbibe error while aiming at instruction. The proprietors have been particularly careful with respect to the correctness and simplicity of the present Edition, which they have submitted to a strict revision, and which, on a comparison, will be found to surpass preceding Editions, both in the copiousness of its remarks and its general perspicuity.

* in the exercises denotes that the word under which it is placed, is not expressed in French.

— denotes that the English word (see page 74) is spelt alike in French, or at least the part under which this sign is placed.

= denotes that the French word differs from the English only by its termination, as directed page 75.

Those French words which are followed by the above signs, are to take the form which they point out.

In the Third part the * is no longer placed under the word, but after it.

In filling the exercises, the order of the figures placed sometimes in the phrases after the French words, is to be observed.

In the exercises, when several English words are included between a parenthesis, they must be translated by the only words placed under.

FRENCH GRAMMAR.

GRAMMAR, in general, is the art of speaking and writing correctly.

To speak—is to convey our thoughts by means of articulated sounds.

To write—is to render those thoughts permanently visible by means of certain signs, or characters, called Letters, and their number disposed in order, constitutes what is called the ALPHABET.

FRENCH ALPHABET.

V v	V v	vay	ve
X x	X x	eeks	kse
Y y	Y y	e grec	e grec
Z z	Z z	zed	ze

* Here both the old pronunciation and the new are expressed by English sounds, and in the new the letter e after each consonant is sounded as in the English word battery.

† The two consonants g and j are sounded in the Alphabet like s in pleasure, or s in asure.

GENERAL OBSERVATIONS.

The French ALPHABET contains, as we see, twenty-five letters, which are divided into Vowels and Consonants.

A vowel is the simple emission of the voice forming an articulate sound by itself.

A consonant, on the contrary, cannot be articulated without the assistance of a vowel.

The vowels are a, e, i, o, u, and y, which sometimes has the sound of one i, and sometimes of two.

The nineteen remaining letters, b, c, d, f, g, h, j, k, l, m, n, p, q, r, s, t, v, x, z, are consonants.

THE VOWELS.

The French language comprehends more distinct simple sounds than are here represented by the above five vowels; for, according as these are pronounced close or broad, short or long, with the appropriate accentuation, they furnish—ten simple sounds.

N. B.

Add to these—three other simple sounds, each represented by the combination of two vowels, and

Lastly—four nasal simple sounds, which again, for want of more appropriate signs, are represented by the coalition of n or m with the above vowels, and they complete the number of seventeen simple sounds. —

See TABLE I.
p. 4.

The vowels are either long or short;

The long vowels require more, the short vowels less time in pronouncing, thus:

a is long in	pâte	dough and short in	patte	paré
e	tempête	storm	trompette	trumpet
i	gîte	abode	petite	little o	hôte	host	hotte	wicker basket
u	flûte	flute	hutte	hut

Besides the simple there are also the compound sounds, in which two vowels are distinctly heard by a single emission of the voice; these are the diphthongs. See Table III. p. 6 and 7.

The sound of one or more letters, pronounced with a single emission of the voice, is called a syllable; one or more syllables make a word.

ACCENTUATION AND PUNCTUATION.

In reading, due attention should be paid to the accents and cedilla, to the apostrophe, diæresis, hyphen, &c. the two former of which are peculiar to the French language.

There are three accents, the

{	acute	(´) never placed but on e , as in bonté .
	grave	(`) placed over a , e , u , as in voilà, procès, où .
	circumflex	(ˆ) employed over any long vowel, as plâtre, rêve, épître, apôtre, bûche .

The cedilla is a kind of comma placed under c, giving it the sound of s before a, o, u, as in façade, façon, reçu.

The apostrophe (') marks the suppression of a vowel before another vowel, or h mute, as in l'église, l'oiseau, l'homme, s'il vient, for la église, le oiseau, le homme, si il vient.

The diæresis (¨) is placed over the vowels e, i, u, to intimate that they are to be pronounced distinctly from the vowels by which they are accompanied.

The hyphen (-) is particularly used in connecting compound words, as in Belles-lettres, tout-puissant, chefs-d'œuvre, arc-en-ciel, &c.

All the other distinctive marks, as the comma, semi-colon, colon, period, interrogation, note of admiration and exclamation, parenthesis, &c. &c. are the same in the French as in the English language.

14	an	ange	angel	en encore
15	in	lin	flax	en length
16	on	long	long	on long
17	un	brun	brown	un —

(1) Besides these four sorts of e, there is one entirely mute at the end of many words, as in the above modèle, tête, école, côte; and sometimes in the beginning and middle, as in cependant, javeline, Roquefort, souquenille, l'empereur, &c.

(2) The sound of the French u, to which there is no similar, nor even approximate sound in English, must be heard from the master, and it may be necessary to add, that though we have attempted to exhibit the French sounds by English letters, yet they can only be correctly learnt by hearing them from the lips of a native. In particular, the nasal sounds cannot be conveyed by any combination of English letters.

N. B. The figures in the following tables relate to the above seventeen simple sounds.

OBSERVATIONS UPON THE TWO FIRST TABLES.

Am, an, do not take the nasal sound when m or n are doubled, as in constamment, année. Am is not nasal at the end of some foreign names, as Abram, Roboam, &c.; except Adam, which has the nasal sound.

Em and en are articulated as in the English words hem and men:

1. In words taken from foreign languages; as Jerusalem, item, hymen, pollen, solen, amen, &c. and also in lemme, gemme, décemvirat, décemvirs, étrenner, ennemi, moyennant, penne, pennage, and in the second syllable of the compound word empenné.

2. In some persons and tenses of the verbs, tenir, venir, prendre, and their compounds, as que je vienne, que tu soutiennes, qu'il comprenne, &c. in the pronouns feminine, la mienne, la tienne, les siennes, in many other words, as ancienne, magicienne, Vienne, en Autriche, &c.

3. In many nouns and persons of verbs ending in ène, ème, as in arène, ébène, je me promène, il égrène, il sème, where however the e is somewhat more open.

But em in femme, and en in enorgueillir, ennoblir, and ennui, must be pronounced as if spelt with a, famme, anorgueillir, annoblir, &c. and len in the second syllable of so-len-nel, and derivatives, has only the sound of la.

Aen has the sound of the French nasal an in Caen, a town in Normandy.

And aon has the same sound in Laon, another town in France, in faon a fawn, and in paon a peacock; but these letters have the sound of on in taon, an oxfly.

N in the monosyllable en, both when a preposition and when a pronoun, in on, mon, ton, son, pronouns, and in bon, bien, and rien, ceases to be nasal when these words are immediately followed by a vowel or an h mute, as en Italie, on en aura, mon ami, c'est un bon homme, on a bien essayé, je suis bien-aise qu'il n'ait rien oublié. But en and on remain nasal, when placed after the verbs to which they belong; as donnez-en à votre sœur. A-t-on essayé? va-t'en au logis.

m and n are not nasal,

1. In the word intérim, and in proper names taken from foreign languages, as Sélim, Ephraïm, Ibrahîm. However the nasal sound is preserved in Benjamin, Jochim, séraphin, chérubin.

2. In the beginning and middle of words, when m or n is followed by a vowel or an h mute, as inanimé, imaginable, unanimité, &c.

3. Whenever m or n is doubled, as immoler, immersion, innover, inné, innocent, though in this latter word only one n is sounded.

Un has the sound of u close in une, unième, unanime, and of eun in jeune homme, when followed by a word beginning with a vowel or an h mute, as un homme, un esprit, aucun ami, commun accord.

Um is pronounced omm in some words adopted from the Latin, as centumvirs, album, quinquennium, ladanum, laudanum, gêranium.

U after the consonants q and g is generally-silent, as in quatre, guerre, &c. See those letters, p. 21 and 27.

OF THE Y.

This letter when alone, or when preceded, or followed by a consonant, is pronounced as simple i, except in pays, paysan, paysage, and even abbaye, which are pronounced pé-is, pé-isan, pé-isage, abé-ie. Y between two vowels is pronounced ii, and when preceded by a, it gives to this letter the sound of ai, and when by o or u, it gives to them the sound of the diphthongs oi or ui. The vowel which follows the y is pronounced like one of the diphthongs ia, ie, &c. for which reason we have deferred speaking of the y till after the diphthongs.

OF CONSONANTS.

B, b, this letter has the same sound as in English.

Bal	ball	bo-bi-ne	bobbin
Ba-bel	Babel	bar-ba-ris-me	barbarism
ba-bil	prating	bi-bli-o-thè-que	library
ba-bouin	baboon	bur-les-que	burlesque

B is always pronounced in the middle of words, as ab-di-quer, sub-ve-nir, ob-vi-er; and at the end of proper names, as Job, Caleb, Moab; also in the words radoub, the refitting of a ship, rumb, point of the compass; but it is never sounded in plomb, lead.

When double, as in abbé, abbot; rabbin, rabbin; sabbat, sabbath; and their derivatives, only one of these letters is sounded; however, in Abbeville and abbatial the sound of the double b is distinctly heard.

C, c, has the sound of { k, or English c in cart, before a, o, u, l, n, r, but of s, or c in cedar, cider, cymbal, before e, i, and y.

C sounded as k.

Cal-cul	calculation
ca-co-pho-nie	cacophony
clé-ri-cal	clerical
Cra-co-vie	Cracow
eo-que-li-cot	wild-poppy
cro-co-di-le	crocodile
cris-tal	crystal
cu-cur-bi-te	cucurbite

C sounded as s.

ce-ci	this
cé-ci-té	blindness
cé-ta-cée	cetaceous
cer-ceau	hoop
Cir-cé	Circe
ci-li-ce	hair-cloth cy-ni-que	cynic
cy-près	cypress

C is not sounded in the middle of words before g, ca, co, cu, cl, cr, as socque, acquérir, accabler, acclimater, acclamation, accomplir, acoutrer, accréditer, ecclésiastique, which are pronounced so-que, a-quérir, a-cabler, &c. except, however, in the words pec-cable, pec-cant, pec-cadille, pec-cavi, sac-cholatique, in which the sound of the double c is distinctly heard.—It has the sound of k before ce and ci, as in suc-cès, ac-cident, vac-cine, &c. and takes the sound of s before a, o, u, when there is a cedilla under it, as in façade, façon, reçu.

C is sounded as g hard in second, and its derivatives, and by many in Claude, and Reine-Claude, and even by some, but improperly, in secret.

C, at the end of words, is usually pronounced k, as in cognac, lac, (a lake,) avec, bec, pic, syndic, roc, froc, estoc, duc, aquéduc, agaric, arc, zinc, &c. and in the singular of échec; but it is not sounded in croc, ac-croc, arc-boutant, banc, broc, clerc, marc d'argent, cric, estomac, flanc, jonc, lacs, (toils,) tabac, tronc, échecs, nor in donc before a consonant; but

It is always sounded in croc-en-jambe, franc étourdi, du blanc au noir, and in both syllables of mic-mac, tric-trac, cric-orac, ric-à-ric, and porc-épic.

In words ending in ct, both consonants are generally sounded, as in tact, contact, intact, exact, inexact, abject, correct, direct, infect, strict, succinct; but neither of them in aspect, suspect, circumspect, amict, instinct, distinct; and only c in respect, though both letters are always heard in suspecte, circumspecte, respecte, distincte, as well as in the middle of other similar words, as recteur, vecteur, séducteur, rédacteur, humecter, injecter, dactyle, ductile, tactique &c.

Ch has two sounds, { one, which is most general, like sh in she, shake;
the other, which very rarely occurs, is that of k in chimera.

Examples of sh.

Chat	cat	ar-chi-tra-ve	architrave
che-val	horse	chou-et-te	screech-owl
cher-cher	to seek	chû-te	fall chi-che	stingy	chu-cho-ter	to whisper
ar-chi-tec-te	architect	chy-le, &c. &c.	chyle and in many proper names, as Achille, Joachim, Chérubin, Zachée, &c.

Examples of ch as k.

A-chab	Cham	Za-cha-rie	Cal-chas
A-ché-lo-ūs	Cha-na-an	Ma-chi-a-vel	Bac-chus
An-ti-o-chus	Chi-o	Mi-chel-an-ge	Cha-ron
A-chaïe	Cho-rè-be	Pul-ché-rie	Ci-vi-ta-Vec-
A-na-char-sis	Chos-ro-ès	Ti-cho-Bra-hé	chia
a-na-cho-rè-te	Chal-daï-que	Dyr-ra-chi-um	Zu-rich
ar-chan-ge	Chal-dée	chi-ro-man-cie	é-cho
Ar-chan-gel	cha-os	chœur	scho-lie
ar-ché-ty-pe	ché-li-doi-ne	cho-ris-te	cha-li-bé

pal	chal-co-gra-	cho-rè-ge	ar-cha-is-me
chal-cá-doi-ne	phie	Na-bu-cho-do-eu-cha-ris-tie	ca-té-chu-mè-ne	no-sor

Examples of cht as k.

Yacht	} are pronounced	{ Yak	} without sounding the t .
U-trecht		{ Utrek
Mæs-tricht		{ Mæstrik

Ch takes the sound of a hard g in drachme, and is dropped in almanach; and on account of their Italian origin in vermicelle and violoncelle, c, without h, takes the sound of the English sh

Ch has uniformly the sound of k, in all words where it is followed by a consonant, as Christ, chrétien, Chloris, chronique, isochrone, chronomètre, Arachné, ichneumon, technique, &c.

D, d, has the same sound as in English.

Dé-da-le	labyrinth	Dry-a-de	Dryad do-du	plump	dro-ma-dai-re	dromedary
din-don	turkey	dé-di-ca-toi-re	dedicatory

D is always sounded in the middle of words, as adjectif, adverb, admirable.

It is likewise heard at the end of proper names, as in David, Obed, Gad, Alfred, &c. and in some other words, as Cid, Sud, Sund, Talmud, éphod, lamed. At the end of many words before a vowel, or h mute, d takes the sound of t, as, quand il viendra; un grand homme; vend-il? &c. however, it is never sounded in bond, gond, fond, nid, nœud, muid, and pied; except in de fond-en-comble, de pied-en-cap, tenir pied-à-boule, avoir un pied-a-terre, where it is sounded as t.

D is sounded double in some few words derived from the Latin, as in ad-dition, ad-ducteur, red-dition.

F, f, is sounded like the same letter in English.

Example.

Far-fa-det	hobgoblin	fé-bri-fu-ge	febrifuge
fau-fi-ler	to baste (in sewing)	fruc-ti-fi-er	to fructify fet-fa	edict of the Mufti	fi-fre	fifer fan-fa-ron	boaster	for-fait	crime

Final f is sounded in all words ending in f, which amount to nearly 260, mostly adjectives, and in raf, bref, brief, chef, fief, nef, nerf, grief, serf, relief, méchef, Azof, lof, tof, tuf, ouf, pouf, œuf, veuf, bæuf, and neuf, (new;) but not in clef, cerf, éteuf, chef-d'œuvre, œuf, frais, nor in the plural of nerf, œuf, bæuf, and neuf, (new.) In neuf, (nine,) when alone, or when it terminates the sentence, f is distinctly sounded, but it takes the sound of v before a vowel, and is silent before a consonant.

When it is doubled, only one of these letters is sounded: however, in some few words, as effusion, affâdir, effraction, it seems more proper to sound both

G, g, has { before a, o, u, the hard sound of g in the English word go, and before e, i, y, the soft sound of s in pleasure.

Examples of g hard.

Gan-grê-ne	gangrene	gut-tu-ral	guttural
Gro-nin-gue	Groningen	gom-me	gum
gai	cheerful	gla-ce	looking-glass go-gue-nard	joker	Gor-go-ne	Gorgon

Examples of g soft.

Geai	jay	gé-né-ral	general
gé-or-gi-ques	georgics	gens	people
gen-re	gender	gin-gem-bre	ginger
gé-mir	to groan	gym-ni-que	gymnastic

G final has the hard sound in joug, and in proper names, as Agag, Doeg, but it takes the sound of k in rang, sang, and long masculine before a vowel; and also in bourg. It is silent in faubourg, Luxembourg, &c. and in Bourg-l'abbé, Bourg-la-Reine, &c.; and likewise in sang-sue, de sang-froid, sang-de-dragon, in rang, sang, long, before a consonant, and always in doigt, legs, poing, vieux-oing, hareng, étang, seing, and vingt.

Bourg-mestre is pronounced bourgue-mestre, and by some persons it is now, and not improperly, written in the latter manner.

Gu forms a distinct syllable in the inflections of the verb ar-gu-er; is strongly sounded in aiguë, suraiguë, ciguë, ambiguë, contiguë, exiguë, and bésaiguë; has a mixed sound with the following i in aiguille, aiguillade, aiguillonner, aiguiser, and derivatives, and in the proper names, d'Aiguillon, de Guise, le Guide. But the u in the inflections of more than forty verbs ending in guer, and in many other words, where it stands before e and i, being intended only to give g the hard sound, is entirely silent, as in bague, bègue, figue, dogue, fougue, fugue, onguent, langue, longue, nargue, vergue, morgue, distingue, gué, gui, guérir, guinder, guise, languir, guinguette, &c.

Gua takes the mixed sound of the diphthong goua in some few words, as lingual, paraguante, Guadeloupe, Guadalquivir, Guatimala, Guastalla.

When g is doubled, only one is sounded, except before e and i, then the first g retains the hard, and the second adopts the soft sound, as in sug-gérer, suggestion.

G before h, and before several consonants in the middle of words, retains its hard sound, as in Berghen, Enghien, église, énigme, segment, amygdales. Before l there are two exceptions, in the words, imbroglio and de Broglio, where it is sounded liquid, as in seraglio, and these words are generally pronounced as if written imbroille, de Broille.

Gn has two sounds { one hard, as in the English word ignorant, and the other liquid, as in the last syllable of onion

Examples of the hard sound.

Gni-de	gna-pha-li-um	ag-na-ti-que	rég-ni-cole
Gno-me	gnos-ti-que	cog-na-ti-que	mag-né-sie
gno-mi-de	ag-nat	ag-nus	stag-nant gno-mi-que	ag-na-ti-on	ig-née	stag-na-ti-on gno-mon	cog-nat	ig-ni-cole	di-ag-nos-tique
gno-mo-ni-que	cog-na-ti-on	ig-ni-ti-on	mag-nat

G is silent in signet, and Regnard, a French writer of comedies, pronounced sinet, Renard.

H, h, when aspirated, is sounded with a strong guttural impulse, and when mute, it has no power but that of showing etymology.

H aspirated in

'Hâbler	to romance
'ha-che	axe
'ha-ir	to hate
'har-pe	harp
'haut	high
'hé-ros*	hero
'hé-ris-son	hedge-hog
'hi-deux	hideous
'hon-te	shame
'hur-ler	to howl and about 160 more words.

H is mute in

ha-bit	coat
her-be	grass
heu-re	hour
heu-reux	happy
hé-ro-i-ne*	heroine
hé-ro-i-que	heroic
hé-ro-is-me*	heroism
his-toi-re	history
hi-ver	winter
hor-reur	horror and about 135 other cases.

All generally noted in my dictionary and others.

* Observe, that h is aspirated in 'héros, but not in its derivatives.

H is never aspirated in the middle of a word, except when that word is the compound of another beginning with an h aspirated, as in s'acheurter, déhâler, déhanché, déharnacher, enharnacher, s'enhardir, dehors.

N. B. Though there is no aspirated h before onze, onzième, and oui, we pronounce and write more generally le onze, le onzième, than l'onze, l'onzième, and say always le oui et le non without elision, and final s in mes, tes, ses, nos, vos, leurs, ces, and les, is never sounded when placed before any of these words, as tous vos oui et vos non; sur les onze heures, and even before une in sur les une heure.

For what concerns h placed after c or g, see the remarks on those two letters, p. 18 and 22.

H, after r or t, is always silent, as rhéteur, Rhône, rubarbe, thé, Thomas, thym.

J, j, has constantly the sound of z in azure, or s in pleasure.

EXAMPLE.

Jus	gravy	jou-jou	toy
ja-mais	never	ju-ju-be	juyube
jo-vi-al	jovial	jeu-nes-se	youth

K, k, has always a hard sound, as in the English word king.

This letter can be hardly considered as belonging to the French alphabet, as it is found only in some few words borrowed from foreign languages, as

Kan-gu-rou	kangaroo	ki-os-que	Turkish pavilion
ker-mès	cochineal	ky-ri-el-le	tedious enumeration

L, l, has two sounds, the { first, is precisely the same as l in the English words
lily, law, &c.
 second, resembles that of ill
 in brilliant.

Example of the First.

La-té-ral	lateral	li-las	lilack
lé-gis-la-teur	legislator	lo-cal	local
li-bel-le	libel	lu-ni-so-lai-re	lunisolar

Example of the Second.

Bail	lease	cail-lou-ta-ge	pebble-work
som-meil	sleep	mer-veil-leux	wonderful
œil	eye	œil-la-de	glance
é-cu-reuil	squirrel	Guil-lau-me	William or-gueil*	pride	or-gueil-leux*	proud fe-nouil	fennel	gri-bouil-lét-te	scramble tail-le	shape	ga-zouil-le-ment	warbling tail-la	he did cut	bar-bouil-lage	scrawl tail-lé	cut	cha-mail-lis	squabble tail-lis	copse	o-reil-le	ear tail-lons	let us cut	pé-ril	danger tail-leur	tailor	pé-ril-leux	dangerous tail-lu-re	kind of embroidery	oil-le	olio
Neuil-ly	Neul-ly	im-bro-glio	intricacy

As the pronunciation of this letter is attended with some difficulty, observe that the final syllables, ail, eil, œil, euil, ueil, and ouil, are always liquid; so are in any situation aill, eill, œill, euill, ueill, and ouill, followed by a vowel, as is seen in the list of examples just given.

* There is a perceptible difference between the vowel sound of the second syllable of orgueil and orgueilleux; the former is pronounced like œil, and the latter like the second syllable of sommeil.

L final, preceded simply by i, is liquid in some few words, of which the following is nearly a list; avril, babil, Brésil, cil, gril, grésil, péril, and gentil, when before a vowel, though in some even of these the l is occasionally dropped in familiar conversation; in other words of this termination, the l is usually suppressed, as in fusil, outil, chenil, &c. pronounced fusi, outi, cheni.

In fil, a son, or sons, the l is mute; but in fil, fil, thread, threads, it is always heard, but is not liquid.

The same remark applies to poil, pronounced poèl, the hair of an animal, and to il, the personal pronoun; in the plural of this latter, ils, the l is sometimes rejected and sometimes pronounced, though the first mode is preferable.

Observe that Milhaut, Pardalhac, and Sully, proper names, are pronounced liquid, contrary to the established rule, and that the two latter are nearly the only known instances of an l or ll sounded liquid, without being immediately preceded by the vowel i.

Ill, in the middle of a word, is generally liquid, there being no exceptions of this rule but those words which begin immediately by ill, as illégal, illuminer, &c. and the following, distiller, instiller, osciller, scintiller, titiller, vaciller, fritillaire, imbécille, mille, tranquille, with their derivatives and inflections when verbs, and ville with its compounds, as also Achille, campanille, codicille, fibrille, Gille, maxillaire, pupille, la Sibylle, and sille.

In most of these exceptions ll are both sounded, as well as in several other words, in which these letters are preceded by other vowels, as allégorie, allusion, appellatif, appellation, belligérant, belliqueux, collation de bénéfices, follicule, malléole, velléité, collusion, constellation, constellé, ébullition, Gallican, Gallicisme, intellect, &c. malléable, médullaire, palliatif, pellicule, équipoller, hélénisme, and in proper names, as Apollon, Bellone, Dolabella, Pallas, Sylla, &c.

M, m, corresponds in sound with the same letter in English.

EXAMPLES.

Mar-me-la-de	marmalade	mo-mie	mummy
mar-mot-te	marmot	mo-ment	moment
mé-mo-ra-ble	memorable	Mus-sul-man	Mussulman
mir-mi-don	myrmidon	mur-mu-re	murmur
mi-mi-que	mimic	mys-tè-re	mystery

M, though usually sounded in the middle of words before n, as in amnistie, calomnie, hymne, insomnie, somnambule, automnal, is yet mute in damner, and its derivatives, and in the substantive automne.

When double, only one of these letters is usually sounded, except, 1st, in proper names, as Em-manuel; 2dly, in words beginning with imm, as im-mortel.

In words in which em is followed by m, as emmencher, it is pronounced like an, with the nasal sound.

When this letter is final, see tables first and second, (p. 4 and 5,) and the accompanying observations, (p. 8. and 9,) where we necessarily, in part, discussed the nature of this letter.

N, n, has the same sound as in English.

EXAMPLES.

A-na-nas	pine-apple	non-ne	nun
Né-nu-far	Newphar	non-obs-tant	notwithstanding na-ti-o-nal	national	Ni-ni-ve	Nineveh
no-mi-nal	nominal	noc-tur-ne	nocturnal
no-na-gé-nai-re	a man of ninety	nym-phe	nymph

When n follows the letter g, see gn (p. 22.)

N is often nasal, see TABLE I. (p. 4,) and TABLE II. (p. 5,) and our observations (p. 8 and 9.)

N takes the sound of s in monsieur, pronounced mos-sieu.

N after e before t final in the third person plural of any French verb is constantly silent, and the e is mute, as ils consentent au marché, ils aimaient à rire, ils lurent un chapitre; here the final t is only sounded before a vowel.

When n is doubled, one only is generally pronounced, except in an-nexe, an-nal, an-nuel, an-notation, an-nuler, in-né, in-nové, in-novation, and a few other cases.

P, p, is sounded as in English.

EXAMPLES.

Pa-pil-lon	butterfly	pou-pée	doll
pe-pin	pippin	po-pu-lai-re	popular
pied-plat	mean fellow	pour-pre	purple
prin-ci-pe	principle	pur-pu-rin	purplish
pro-pos	discourse	py-ra-mi-de	pyramid

P followed by h has the sound of f, as philosophe, phosphore, physique.

P preserves its sound in the middle of a word, as in adapter, adopter, capter, captieux, baptismal, aptitude, exception, exemption, inepte, contempteur, gypse, Septembre, Septuagésime, corruption, rupture, apsides, rapso- dies, symptôme.

But it is not heard in baptême, baptiser, baptistaire. Baptiste, cheptel, exempt, exempter, sculpter, sculpteur, sculpture, je romps, il corromp, sept, septième, temps, and printemps, nor in prompt, prompte, and its derivatives.

Final p is always sounded in Alep, cap, Gap, jalap, and julep, it is also heard in trop, beaucoup, when before a vowel, but never in champ, camp, drap, loup, sirop, and galop.

In laps, relaps, and rapt, both the final consonants are pronounced, but neither in ceps de vigne.

When p is doubled, only one is generally sounded; however, in such words as lippitude, hippocentaure, hippopotame, Hippomène, Agrippa, Agrippine, Philippines, and Hippias, both are distinctly heard.

Q, q, has generally the hard sound of k in king.

As this letter is constantly followed by the vowel u, except in cinq, and coq, we shall simply remark, that

Qu has three sounds, that of

{	k , by far the most general before any vowel.
	kou before a in some particular words.
	ku before e , or i , in some others.

Examples of k.

Quai	wharf	ques-tion	question
qua-li-té	quality	sé-ques-tre	sequestration
quel-que	some	queue	tail
qui-con-que	whosoever	a-queux	watery qui-pro-quo	blunder	a-qué-duc	aqueduct quo-li-bet	pun	é-qui-vo-que	ambiguity quin-qui-na	Peruvian bark	se re-quin-	{ to trick one's que-nouil-le	distaff	quer	{ self out
		&c. &c. &c.

Examples of ku.

A-qua-ti-que	aquatic	qua-ter-ne	quaternion
é-qua-teur	equator	qua-dra-gé-nai-re	} a man of forty
é-qua-ti-on	equation	qua-dra-gé-si-mal
qua-kre	quaker		} quadragesimal qua-dra-tu-re	quadrature
qua-dri-ge	{ ancient cha-	a-qua-ti-le	aquatile
	{ riot with	a-qua-rel-le	aquatinta
	{ four horses	li-qua-ti-on	liquation
qua-dru-pé-de	quadruped	in-quar-to	quarto size
qua-dru-ple	quadruple	lo-qua-ci-té	loquacity

Examples of ku.

E-ques-tre	equestrian	é-qui-mul-ti-ple	equimultiple
li-que-fac-ti-on	liquefaction	é-qui-ta-ti-on	horsemanship
ques-teur	questor	quin-tu-ple	quintuple
ques-tu-re	questure	quin-ti-le	quintile
quin-quen-nium	{ quinquennium	quin-quen-nal	quinquennial
é-qui-la-tè-re		quin-dé-cem-virs	{ quindecimviri
é-qui-la-té-ral	equilateral	quin-qué-rè-me
é-qui-an-gle	equiangular	quin-quer-ce	{ a term of the
e-qui-dis-tant	equidistant

In quinquagénnaire, a man of fifty, and quinquagésime, quinquagesima, the first syllable corresponds with the sound of qu in équestre, and the second corresponds with the sound of qu in aquatique. This letter is never doubled.

R, r, is sounded as in English, but much stronger.

EXAMPLES.

Ra-re-té	scarcity	rhyth-me	rhythm
ras-su-rer	to hearten	sour-dre	to spring ra-bou-gri	stunted	cour-roux	wrath re-brous-ser	to turn back	il-cour-ra	he will run
ri-gou-reux	rigorous	cor-ro-de-ra	it will corrode
rom-pre	to break	cor-ro-bo-re-ra	{ it will corro-
rou-vrir	to open again
ru-gir	to roar	ir-ra-di-a-ti-on	irradiation ru-ral	rural	ir-ro-ra-ti-on	irrigation
rus-tre	a boor	tor-ré-fac-ti-on	torrefaction

R is always sounded at the end of words after the vowels, a, i, o, u, except in Monsieur, pronounced, as we have said, Mos-sieu.

Er, in the following adjectives and substantives, constantly rhymes with air, which is pronounced alike in both languages.

EXAMPLES.

Oher	dear	ou-tre-mer	ultramare
cuil-ler	spoon	bel-vé-der	belvidere fer	iron	Lu-ci-fer	Lucifer ver	worm	Pa-ter	the Lord's prayer
mer	sea	fra-ter	ignorant medical practitioner
fier	haughty	ma-gister	village school master gas-ter	stomach	Stat-hou-der	Stadtholder
hi-er	yesterday	Ju-pi-ter	Jupiter
hi-ver	winter	Al-ger	Algiers
a-mer	bitter	Gess-ner	Gessner can-cer	cancer	Ni-ger	Niger, a river en-fer	hell	Sad-der	Sadder, a holy book of the Persians
é-ther	ether
a-vant-hier	{ the day before yesterday

In all other substantives, ending in er, the r is silent, and the e pronounced close and short as in clarté.

When the following adjectives and a few others precede immediately a substantive which they qualify, if this begins with a vowel, the r is pronounced, but in no other case.

R sounded	{	Le premiere acte	the first act son dernier ouvrage	his last work
		un singulier évènement	a singular event
		un entier abandon	an entire cession
R not sounded	{	un léger obstacle	a slight obstacle
		Il est le premier à vous promettre et le dernier à vous tenir parole.—He is the first to promise, and the last to keep his word.
		C'est un homme léger et inconstant, entier en tout ce qu'il veut, et singulier en tout ce qu'il fait.—He is a light versatile character, positive in all he undertakes, and singular in all he does.

Final r in the present of the infinitive of all the verbs of the first conjugation, is always pronounced when immediately followed by a word beginning with a vowel, when the style is dignified, but in conversation this distinction is seldom observed.

Rh. See h, (p. 23.)

When this letter is double, only one is pronounced, except, 1st, in aberration, abhorrer, horreur, errer, torréfier, and their derivatives: 2dly, in words beginning with irr, as irrévocable, irrégulier, irruption, &c.; 3dly, in the future and conditional of the verbs acquérir, courir, mourir, and their derivatives—j'acquerrai, je mourrais, nous courri-ons, &c.

S, s, has two } hard, as in the English word sister.
sounds, the } soft, as in rose and please.

In the following list of words the first s has the hard, and the second the soft sound.

EXAMPLES OF BOTH SOUNDS.

Sai-son	season	sour-noi-se	a sullen woman sai-sie	seizure	sup-po-sez	suppose sé-sa-me	sesamum	sé-duit-sant	alluring
si-se	situate	Su-se	Susa
Sou-bi-se	Soubise	su-sin	quarter-deck
sot-ti-se	silly action	Sy-ra-cu-se	Syracuse
sous-en-ten-te	mental reservation	Syn-thè-se	Synthesis

S has uniformly the hard sound at the beginning of words, except in Sbire, Svelte, Sganarelle, and Sdili for Delos, where it has the soft sound; and in familiar conversation aller à Sedan; il est le second de sa classe, are pronounced as if these words were written azdan, le zgon. Before ch, s is mute, as in Schall, Schaffhouse, Schelling, Schis-e, Schorl.

Sh in shérif, a sheriff, is sounded as in English.

When s is followed by ce, ci, cy, the sound of only one of these consonants is heard, as in scène, science, Scythie, &c. except, however, in aces-cence, convales-cence, efferves-cence, efflores-cence, turges-cence, incandes-cence, réminis-cence, résipis-cence, mis-cible, res-cinder, sus-cep- tion, sus-citer, sus-citation, vis-cère, vis-céral, trans-cend-ance, and a few others, where s cannot be rescinded without altering the pronunciation. In all other combinations, sc takes the sound of sk, as scapulaire, scolias, sclérotique, scribe, esclave, scrupule, &c.

S preserves the hard sound in the middle of a word, when preceded or followed by a consonant, as in transe, transir, Transylvanie, convulsion, valse, espace, ustensile, statistique, &c. &c. However, it takes the soft sound, or that of z, in Alsace, Arsace, Asdrubal, asbeste, balsamine, balsamique, bisbille, Israël, Israélite, Esdras, Thisbé, presbitère, transaction, transiger, transitoire, in-transitif, transalpin, Lesbos, Isboseth, Brisgaw, Ryswick, Louisbourg, Augsbourg, Presbourg, Philipsbourg, and some few others.

S takes the soft sound when between two vowels, as in base, thèse, bise, rose, ruse, &c. Except in compound words, where it preserves the hard sound of the initial s of its root; as in désuétude, entresol, monosyllabe, polysyllabe, parasol, tournesol, préséance, présupposer, saisir, resaluer, vraisemblable, and some derivatives.

St final, see final t (p. 33.)

Final s is always heard in as, atlas, argus, bibus, blocus, bolus, agnus, fœtus, calus, sinus, Phébus, les us, virus, en sus, aloès, bis, jadis, iris, gratis, lapis, le lis, le Lys (a river,) maïs, métis, vis, tournevis, Amadis, Adonis, Paris, (the shepherd,) pathos, Athos, Lesbos, Minos, Délos, Paros, Brutus, Vénus, Régulus, Protésilas, Blas, Gil Blas, Las Casas, and many more foreign proper names.

In almost all other cases final s is silent when the next word begins with a consonant, as au moins vous ne pouvez pas dire, que je vous répète toujours les mêmes choses; but it generally takes the soft sound of z before another word, beginning with a vowel or h mute, as aurez-vous au moins alors assez de patience, pour, &c.

Though there is no s in quatre, yet, before yeux, it is, in conversation, pronounced as if ending in that letter.

Finally, ss have generally the sound of a single s pronounced hard, as in je ressassasse, assassinasse, Mississipi, &c.; except in some few words, where both are heard, assation, assonance, dissonance, accessible, inaccessible, admissible, inadmissible, missive, scissile, scission, scissure, fissure, fissipède, assentiment, asservir. Thus there is a difference in pronunciation between these phrases: C'est un homme à SENTIMENS; il aime à SERVIR ses amis; and il faut son ASSENTIMENT; cet ambitieux voudrait ASSERVIR l'univers; and again between l'un de plume est SCISSILE and LA SICILE est une île triangulaire, &c. the double ss must be distinctly heard.

T, t, has two sounds, the

{	first, hard, as in the English word tit,
	second, soft, like c in cedar and civil

FIRST SOUND.

Examples of t hard before vowels and diphthongs.

Tac-ti-que	tactics	ti-are	tiara
tes-ta-teur	testator	bas-ti-on	bastion thé-â-tre	theatre	ques-ti-on	question to-ta-li-té	totality	mix-ti-on	mixture tour-te-rel-le	turtle-dove	com-bus-ti-on	combustion
ti-tu-lai-re	titulary	bi-jou-tier	jeweller
ti-thy-ma-le	tithymal	Ma-thi-as	Mathias
chré-tien	christian	Pon-thieu	Ponthieu dy-nas-tie	dynasty	tu sou-tiens	thou supportest
le tien	thine	&c. &c. &c.

SECOND SOUND.

T is soft before i, connected with some other following vowel or vowels, in some particular words, that are given as exceptions to the first sound of t.

EXAMPLES.

Par-ti-al	partial	ac-ti-on	action par-ti-a-li-té	partiality	bal-bu-ti-er	to stammer par-ti-el	partial	in-i-ti-er	to initiate pa-ti-en-ce	patience	bal-bu-ti-a	he stammered
im-pa-ti-en-ce	impatience	bal-bu-tie-ment	stammering
quo-ti-ent	quotient	in-i-ti-é	initiated cap-ti-eux	captious	in-i-ti-a-ti-on	initiation ar-gu-tie	cavil	Ve-ni-ti-en	Venetian
cau-ti-on-ne-ment	{ bail	se pré-cau-ti-on-ner	{ to be cautious

Sti, xti, thi, preserve invariably the first sound of t before any letter.

To complete this second list, observe that t always takes the sound of c.—1st. In all adjectives ending in -tial, -tiel, -tient, -tieux, and their derivatives;—2dly. In all the inflexions of the two verbs quoted, balbutier, and initier;—3dly. In several hundred words ending in tion, when tion is not immediately preceded by an s, or an x; and finally, in the following additional list of words, ending in -tie and -tien, viz. the substantives calvitie, facétie, impéritie, inertie, minutie, péripétie, primatie, prophétie, suprématie, aristocratie, démocratie, théocratie; in the names of countries, as Béotie, Croatie, Dalmatie, Galatie; and of nations, or persons, as Béotien, Egyptien, Capétien, Dioclétien, Domitien, Gratien, Le Titien, and some few others.

T final is always sounded in apt, rapt, fat, malt, mat, pat, opiat, exeat, transeat, vivat, spalt, spath, Goliath, net, fret, tacet, Thibet, aconit, déficit, granit, introît, prétérît, transit, subit, dot, Astaroth, azimut, brut, comput, chut, bismuth, indult, luth, lut, occiput, sinciput, and both s and t are articulated in Le Christ, l'est, (east,) l'ouest, Brest, lest, test, Pest, toast, and entre le zist et le zest; but neither of these letters is heard in Jésus Christ, which is pronounced Jésu Cri.

T final is likewise generally heard, when the following word begins with a vowel or h mute, as c'est un petit homme, &c. &c.; however there are many words in which it always remains silent, as mort, tort, goût, court, bât, mât, lit, respect, instinct, navet, assassinat, artichaut, défaut, debout, brûlot, statut, &c. so that a person would almost be regarded with astonishment who should affectedly sound it in these sentences: *L'assaut a été terrible.—Le contrat est signé et le dépôt est chez moi.

—Le gigot est cuit et le ragoût aussi.—Avant de pêcher mettez l'appât à la ligne.—J'ai fait un bon marché; voyez, l'achat est là;* such a pronunciation would be barbarous and often equivocal.

T is always silent in the conjunction et, pronounced é, therefore to avoid what is called hiatus in French verse, this word is never placed before a vowel.

For words ending in ct, see page 18.

When this letter is doubled, only one is heard, except in atticisme, attique, Atticus, battologie, guttural, and pittoresque.

V, v, has the same sound in French as in English.

EXAMPLES.

Val-ve	valve	vi-vre	to live val-vu-le	valvule	vi-vo-ter	to live poorly
vau-de-vil-le	ballad	vi-re-vol-te	{ quick irregu- lar walk
ver-ve	poetic fire	vi-re-veau	windlass
vi-va-ce	vivacious	veu-ve	widow vis-à-vis	opposite	veu-va-ge	widowhood

This letter, when doubled, is represented by the character w, which is met with in some foreign words, and is always pronounced as a simple v, as in Wigh, Wolfram, Warwick, Windsor, Walcourt, Wallon, Warsowie, Westphalie, Wirtemberg, Wolga, Weser, Wendover, Ryswick, &c. except in wist and wiski, where it has the English sound; but in Newton, the first syllable new is pronounced as neu in neutralité.

X, x, has the five different sounds { ks, in axe, expense
gz, in exhibit, exhale
k, in excellent, exsiccative ss, in bliss, mossy z, in Xenophon.

EXAMPLES

Of the first sound, ks.

Ax-e	axis	A-lex-an-dre	Alexander sex-e	sex	Xan-tip-pe	Xantippe ri-xe	altercation	ox-y-gè-ne	oxygen
box-er	to box	pa-ra-do-xe	paradox
lu-xe	luxury	flu-xi-on	defluxion

EXAMPLES

Of the second sound, gz.

Xa-vi-er	Xaverius	ex-a-men	examination
Xé-no-phon	Xenophon	ex-au-cer	{ to hear fa- vourably
ex-il	exile	ex-haus-ser
ex-or-de	exordium	ex-hi-ber	to raise
ex-u-bé-ran-ce	exuberance	ex-hu-mer	to produce to disinter

EXAMPLES

Of the third sound, k.

Ex-cé-der	to exceed	ex-sic-ca-tion	exsiccation
ex-cel-ler	to excel	ex-suc-ci-on	exsuction
ex-cès	excess	ex-su-da-ti-on	exsudation
ex-cep-ter	to except	ex-su-der	exude
ex-ci-se	excise	ex-ci-per	{ to plead an ex- ception

EXAMPLES

Of the fourth sound, ss.

Aix	Aix	Soixante	Sixty
Aix-la-Chapelle	Aix-la-Chapelle	Bruxelles	Brussels
Auxerre	Auxerre	Luxeuil	Luxeuil
Auxonne	Auxonne	and some few more.

EXAMPLES

Of the fifth sound, z.

Deuxième	second	dix écus	ten crowns
sixième	sixth	dix hommes	ten men dixième	tenth	deux aunes	two ells
dix-huit	eighteen	beaux yeux	fine eyes
dix-neuf	nineteen	&c. &c.

The first sound of this letter ks is by far the most general.

The second sound gz takes place in all words beginning with x or ex followed by a vowel, or the letter h, as le Xanthe, Xénocrates, Ximènes, exorable, and several others, with those already mentioned in the second exemplification.

The third sound k is limited to words beginning with exce, exci, and exs.

The fourth sound ss is only found in the above quotations, and in six and dix when unaccompanied by substantives, as in de seize ôtez six, reste dix, where six and dix are pronounced with the hissing sound of ss in the English word bliss.

Final x is generally pronounced as z, when the next word begins with a vowel or h mute, otherwise it is silent, as Il est heureux auprès de vous, et malheureux loin de vous : le flux et le reflux de la mer, &c. except in the following words, where it has always the sound of ks. Ajax, Astianax, borax, storax, Halifax, Hipponax, Dax, climax, thorax, Pertinax, Syphax, index, perplex, Béatrix, Eriz, Felix, préfix, phénix, Fox, Palofox, Coysevox, lynx, sphinx, larynx, syrinx, onyx, Styx, and Polux.

N. B. X takes the sound of sh only in Don Quixote, generally pronounced Don Kishot, or rather ghishot.

Z, z, is generally pronounced as z in zone, or s in rose.

EXAMPLES.

Zi-za-nie	tare	zig-zag	zigzag
zé-nith	zenith	zin-zo-lin	reddish purple
zô-ne	zone	Zuy-der-zée	Zuyder-zee

Except some few words, as assez, chez, nez, sonnez, (two sixes,) and some proper names, as Alvarez, Suarez, Metz, Senez, Rhodes, &c. z final is the distinctive mark of almost all the second persons plural in the French verbs, where it is generally heard, when followed by a word beginning with a vowel, or h mute, otherwise it is only sounded in the proper names already mentioned.

Z is doubled in a few words taken from the Italian language, as lazzi, (dumb show,) mezzanine, mezzo terminê, mezzo-tinto, and in some names of towns, or provinces, as Arezzo, l'Abruzze, &c.

OF GENDER.

Gender in all languages marks the distinction of sex, and as there are only two of these, the French agreeably to this view have but two genders, the masculine and feminine: the neuter they do not admit.

The masculine gender expresses the male kind, as un homme, a man; un lion, a lion.

The feminine gender denotes the female kind, as une femme, a woman; une lionne, a lioness.

The gender of nouns, in inanimate objects, is generally expressed by their termination; thus, final e mute is the distinctive mark of the feminine gender, every other final letter is the sign of the masculine. This would be an excellent rule, were it universal; but this is far from being the case from the number of exceptions, and it is with the intention of affording the learner a tolerable clue on this head, that we have here laid down the following concise rules, which will clear up some of the chief difficulties.

A TABLE OF SUBSTANTIVES

That are masculine in one signification, and Feminine in another.

Masculine.		Feminine.
Assistant, helper	Aide	Aid, help, support

SUBSTANTIVES DENOTING SPECIES,

WHICH HAVE A FIXED GENDER INDEPENDENTLY OF TERMINATION.

- 1 { God, his angels, cherubim and seraphim, are of masculine gender.

- 2 { All terms seeming to constitute an appellation, and all proper names of men and women are of the gender of the sex to which they respectively belong, as are likewise all names of animals, when the male is distinguished from the female by a different denomination; but when the same name is used for both male and female, as un éléphant, un zèbre, une panthère, un vautour, un cygne, une caille, une perdrix, un barbeau, une truite, un congre, its gender must then, like that of any inanimate object, be determined by its termination. Here the only difficulty respects substantives ending in e mute, all the rest being of the masculine gender, with such exceptions as will be seen in page 45.

- 3 { All diminutives of animals, when there is but one common denomination for both sexes, are of the masculine gender, whatever may be the gender of the original from which they are derived, as un lionceau, un souriceau, un perdreau, un cornillas, un carpillon, un couleuvreau, un vipéreau, un bécasseau, &c. except une bécassine; but these two latter, although derived from the word bécasse, and belonging to the genus, are not of the same species. In other cases, the diminutives follow the gender their sex indicates, as un poulain, une pouliche, un cochet, une poulette.

- 4 { Diminutives of inanimate objects more generally follow the gender of their roots, as batelet, maisonnette, globule, from bateau, maison, globe, &c. however, corbillon, soliveau, cruchon, savonnette, trousseau, from corbeille, solive, cruche, savon, and trousse, and many others, do not.

- 5 { All the names of the days, months, and seasons of the year, are of the masculine gender, except automne, which is of both genders; when however the diminutive mi (half) is prefixed to the name of a month, the compound word then takes the feminine gender, as la mi-mai, la mi-août, &c. except also la mi-carême, and saint days, as la saint-Jean, la Tous-saint, &c.

- 6 All names { of trees, except yeuse, a sort of oak,
of shrubs, with some exceptions, of metals, without excepting platine, formerly feminine,
of minerals, a few excepted, of colours, without excepting l'Isabelle, le Feuille-morte, &c. though they have a feminine termination, } are masculine.
- 7 All names { of mountains, except those chains which have no singular, of winds, except la bise, la tramontane, la brise, and les moussons, of towns, except those which necessarily take the article la before them, as la Rochelle, la Ferté-sur-Aube, &c. and some others, } are masculine.

- 8 { Ordinal, distributive, and proportional numbers, adjectives and infinitives of verbs, prepositions and adverbs, all these, when used substantively, are masculine, as le tiers, le quart, un cinquième, le quadruple, le beau, le sublime, le boire, le manger, le mieux, le pour, le contre, un parallèle (a comparison), &c. except la moitié, and the elliptical forms of speech, une courbe, une tangente, une perpendiculaire, une parallèle, une antique, used for une ligne courbe, une ligne tangente, &c. Antique is feminine, for the same reason; the word médaille, or statue, appearing to be understood.
- 9 { All names of virtues are of the feminine gender, except courage, mérite.

GENDERS OF NOUNS MOSTLY DEPENDING ON THEIR TERMINATION.

- 10 { It will be recollected that final e mute constitutes the feminine gender, and every other final letter the masculine.
- 11 { All names of states, empires, kingdoms, and provinces, are of the gender which their terminations indicate; except le Bengale, le Mexique, le Péloponèse, le Maine, le Perche, le Rouergue, le Bigorre, le Vallage, la Franche-comté, and perhaps a few more.
- 12 { The names of fruits, grain, plants, and flowers, follow pretty generally the gender of their terminations, but there are too many exceptions to be introduced here.

Masculine.		Feminine.
15	{ faix, choix, crucifix, prix, &c. taux, houx, courroux, époux, &c. }	{ -ix -aux -oux }	{ paix, croix, noix, poix, voix, perdrix, chaux, faux, toux }
20	{ art, départ, champart, rempart, effort, port, fort, tort, &c. }	{ -art -ort }	{ hart, part, mort, malemort }
40	{ fer, ver, hiver, &c. air, éclair, &c. tour, contour, four, &c. }	{ -er -air -our }	{ cuiller, mer, chair, cour, tour }
900	{ bonheur, malheur, labeur, honneur, déshonneur, cœur, anticœur, crève-cœur, chœur, choufleur, pleurs, équateur, secteur, &c. &c. }	{ -eur }	{ aigreur, ampleur, ardeur, blancheur, candeur, chaleur, chandeleur, clameur, couleur, douceur, douleur, épaisseur, erreur, fadeur, défauteur, ferveur, fleur. }

passee-fleur, sans-fleur, fraîcheur, frayeur, froideur, fureur, grandeur, grosseur, hauteur, horreur, humeur, laideur, langueur, largeur, lenteur, liqueur, longueur, lourdeur, lueur, maigreur, moiteur, noirceur, odeur, pâleur, pesanteur, peur, primeur, profondeur, puanteur, pudeur, impudeur, rigueur, roideur, rondeur, rougeur, rousseur, rumeur, saveur, senteur, sœur, souleur, splendeur, sueur, teneur, terreur, tiédeur, torpeur, touffeur, tumeur, valeur, non-valeur, vapeur, verdeur, vigueur, and mœurs; besides basseur, rancœur, trémeur, three words now obsolete, making in the whole the number of seventy-six.

There are a great many proper names of females, which, though they may not have the feminine termination, are of that gender, as the learner, from their nature, will easily comprehend: such are, among the heathens, Pallas, Cérès, Thétis, Vénus, Junon, Didon, &c. among christian names, Sarah, Deborah, Elizabeth, Agnès, &c. and many of these are contractions, as Fanchon for Fanny, Lison, Louison, Marion, Manon, Nanon, Jeanneton, Madelon, Tonton, Catalot, Margot, Goton, Babet, Babeau, Isabeau, &c. [See Article 2. p. 40.]

As this list of exceptions will be found pretty accurate, all other nouns, that belong to this termination, must be strictly considered as being of the masculine gender, since they are not enumerated in this Table.

The Apostrophe (') marks, we have said, page 3, the suppression of a vowel before another vowel, or h mute, as in l'église for la église, &c.

This suppression is called ELISION; a, e, i, are the only vowels liable to be thus cut off, and even of the suppression of the last of these, only two instances occur, viz. in the conjunction si before the pronoun, singular and plural, il, ils.

The a is suppressed only in la feminine, both when an article and a pronoun.

But the ELISION of e occurs, not only in the masculine article and pronoun le, but also in many other monosyllables, such as je, me, tè, se, de, ce, ne, que and in the compound of que, such as, parceque, quoique, puisque, jusque, vù que, &c.

EXAMPLES.

of	la	in	l'amitié	for	la amitié	the friendship

It is allowable either to retrench, or to retain the final e of the preposition entre, between, among, when it is placed before the pronouns eux, elles, and autres; but it is always rescinded in the following compound words:

Entr'acte	an interlude	for	entre-acte
s'entr'aider	to help one another		se entre-aider
entr'ouïr	to hear imperfectly		entre-ouïr

and in a few others; but it is indifferent to say:

N. B. In the following French negative modes of speech, which answer to the accompanying English translation, the caret points out the place which the French verb must occupy, whenever it is not in the infinitive mood.

Not	{ ne pas ne point	} as {	je ne suis pas, &c. I am not, &c.
never	ne jamais		nous n'avons point } we have not nothing	ne rien		il ne joue jamais } he never plays vous ne dites rien } you say nothing nobody	ne personne		je ne vois personne } I see nobody not a jot	ne goutte	} {	je ne vois goutte } I do not see, or no where	{ ne nulle part		je ne vois goutte } I see not in the least } {	je ne vais nulle part } I go no where.

But in compound tenses, it is the auxiliary verb that parts the negative ne from the pas, or point, &c. that accompany it, as nous n'avons point parlé, we have not spoken; on n'aurait jamais cru, one could never have believed.

N. B. The addition of pas, or point, to the negative particle ne, must not be considered as a second negation: but only as a complementary part of it. For in such cases, pas, point, goutte, are mere restrictive terms, nearly resembling the English words, jot, bit, tittle, sometimes added to not, with this difference, that pas and point in French have nothing trivial in them.

There are many words which are alike in both languages, and others which differ only in their termination.

The expressions, which are perfectly alike, are particularly those that have the following terminations:

PART I.

OF WORDS CONSIDERED IN THEIR NA- TURE AND INFLECTIONS.

There are, in French, nine sorts of words, or parts of speech, namely,

- | | | |
|--------------------------|-------------|------------------|
| 1. Substantive, or Noun, | 4. Pronoun, | 7. Preposition, |
| 2. Article, | 5. Verb, | 8. Conjunction, |
| 3. Adjective, | 6. Adverb, | 9. Interjection. |

CHAP. I.

OF THE SUBSTANTIVE, OR NOUN.

The substantive is a word, which serves to name a person, or thing, as Pierre, Peter; livre, book, &c.

There are two sorts of substantives, the substantive proper, or proper name, and the substantive common, also called appellative.

The proper name is that which is applied to a particular person, or thing, as César, Cesar; la Tamise, the Thames.

The substantive common is that which belongs to a whole class of objects. The word homme, man, is a substantive common, as it is applicable to any individual, as Peter, Paul, John, &c.

Of these nouns, some are collective, and others abstract.

Collectives express either a whole mass, as une armée, an army: une forêt, a forest: or a partial assemblage, as une quantité de, &c. a certain quantity of; la plupart, most part, &c.

Abstract nouns are the names of qualities abstracted from their subjects, as, surface, rondeur, science, sagesse; surface, roundness, knowledge, wisdom, &c.

In substantives, are to be considered Gender and Number.

OF GENDER.

There are only two genders, the masculine and feminine.

The masculine belongs to the male kind, as un homme, a man; un lion, a lion, &c.

The feminine belongs to the female kind, as une femme, a woman; une lionne, a lioness, &c.

This distinction has, through imitation, been extended to all substantives, as, un livre, a book, is masculine; une table, a table, is feminine, &c. see p. 37, 40, &c.

OF NUMBER.

There are two numbers; the singular and the plural.

The singular expresses one single object, as un homme, un livre.

The plural announces more objects than one, as des hommes, des livres.

Proper names have no plural, as Londres, Paris, Milton, &c.

OF THE FORMATION OF THE PLURAL OF FRENCH SUBSTANTIVES.

• GENERAL RULE.

The singular is generally changed into a plural, by adding an s,	} as {	Singular.	Plural.

* Those in -ou, that take x in their plural, are chou, caillou, bijou, genou, hibou, joujou, pou ; the others now follow the general rule, and take s, as clou, clous ; verrou, verrous, &c.

† Several nouns in -al, as bal, cal, pal, régat, carnaval, local, &c. follow however the general rule, simply taking s.

‡ Those in -ail, making their plural in aux, are particularly bail, sous-bail, corail, émail, soupirail, travail, vantail, ventail ; the rest, as attirail, détail, éventail, gouvernail, portail, sérail, &c. follow the general rule.

* Only polysyllables in -nt drop the t, but monosyllables retain it; as chant, chants; gant, gants; dent, dents; &c. except, however gent, gens.

CHAP. II.

OF THE ARTICLE.

The Article is a small word prefixed to substantives, to determine the extent of their signification.

The French article is $\left\{ \begin{array}{l} \textit{le} \text{ before a mascul.} \\ \text{substantive} \\ \textit{la} \text{ before a femin.} \\ \text{substantive} \end{array} \right\}$ the plural is les for both genders.

EXAMPLE.

Sing. $\left\{ \begin{array}{l} \textit{le} \text{ jour} \text{ the day} \\ \textit{la} \text{ nuit} \text{ the night} \end{array} \right\}$ plur. $\left\{ \begin{array}{l} \textit{les} \text{ jours} \text{ the days.} \\ \textit{les} \text{ nuits} \text{ the nights.} \end{array} \right\}$ day and the night are equally necessary.

jour m. nuit f. également nécessaires.

The article is subject to elision and contraction. See p. 73 and 74.)

Elision of the article is the omitting of the e in le, or the a in la, when these articles precede a noun beginning with a vowel, or h mute.

EXAMPLE.

But in this case the place of the letter thus omitted is supplied by an apostrophe.

Contraction in grammar is the reducing of two syllables into one, and takes place, when the preposition a, or de, precedes the article; in which case, instead of putting de le before a masculine singular, beginning with a consonant, or h aspirated, du must be employed; instead of à le, au must be used; and before the plural substantives of both genders, de les is changed into des, and à les into aux.

Thus	{	Du roi	is instead of	de le roi	of the king
		du héros	—	de le héros	of the hero
		au roi	—	à le roi	to the king

De and à are never contracted with la, before a feminine substantive singular beginning with a consonant.

EXAMPLES.

De la reine of the queen à la reine to the queen

Nor are de and à contracted with le or la, before any substantive singular, beginning with a vowel, or h mute, but then the article suffers elision.

EXAMPLES.

De l'esprit of the mind de l'homme of man
A l'esprit to the mind à l'homme to man
De l'âme of the soul à l'âme to the soul
De l'histoire of the history à l'histoire to the history

Contraction likewise does not take place, when the adjective tout, all, every, intervenes between de, or à, and the article.

EXAMPLES.

De tout le monde of every body.
De tous les hommes, of all men.
A tout le monde, to every body.

A toutes les maisons, to all houses.

CHAP. III.

OF THE ADJECTIVE.

The adjective is a word, which is added to a substantive to express its quality, as,

bon père	good father	bonne mère	good mother
beau livre	fine book	belle image	fine image

These words bon, bonne, beau, belle, are adjectives, as they express the qualities of père, mère, livre, image.

A word is known to be an adjective, when it can be properly joined with the word personne, or the word chose. Thus, habile, skilful, and agréable, agreeable, are adjectives, because we can say personne habile, skilful person; chose agréable, agreeable thing.

In French the adjective takes the gender and number of the substantive to which it relates. This difference of gender and number is generally marked by the termination.

OF THE FORMATION OF THE FEMININE OF FRENCH ADJECTIVES.

RULE I. All adjectives ending in the singular in e mute, are of both genders.

EXAMPLES.

Un homme aimable, An amiable man.
Une femme aimable, An amiable woman.

RULE II. Whenever the adjective does not end in e mute, the e mute is added to form its feminine.

EXAMPLES.

m.	{ prudent sensé poli tortu instruit	f.	{ prudente sensée polie tortue instruite	prudent sensible polite crooked informed
-----------	---	-----------	--	---

RULE III. Adjectives in -el, -eil, -ien, -on, and -et, to form their feminine double their last consonant and take e mute.

EXAMPLES.

m.	{ cruel pareil ancien bon net*	f.	{ cruelle pareille ancienne bonne nette	cruel like ancient good clean	=50 = 3 =80 =18 =34	of each termination.
-----------	--	-----------	---	--	---------------------------------	-------------------------

RULE IV. Adjectives ending in f, change this letter into -v, and take e mute.

EXAMPLES.

m.	{ bref actif naïf neuf	f.	{ brève active naïve neuve	short active ingenious new
-----------	---------------------------------	-----------	-------------------------------------	---

RULE V. Adjectives ending in -x change -x into s, and take e mute.

EXAMPLES.

m.	{ honteux vertueux jaloux	f.	{ honteuse vertueuse jalouse	ashamed virtuous jealous
-----------	---------------------------------	-----------	------------------------------------	---

RULE VI. Adjectives, or rather substantives, ending in -eur, derived from verbs, generally change the r into s, and take e mute; but several, mostly of Latin origin, require -eur to be changed into -rice, in others -eur is transformed into -eresse, and about twelve, as, antérieur, citérieur, extérieur, intérieur, inférieur, meilleur, mineur, majeur, postérieur, supérieur, ultérieur, prieur, take only an e mute, and follow the Second Rule.

EXAMPLE.

m.	{	trompeur	f.	{	trompeuse	deceitful
		menteur			menteuse	lying parleur			parleuse	talkative
m.	{	acteur	f.	{	actrice	actor, actress
		accusateur			accusatrice	accuser

OTHER EXCEPTIONS TO THE SECOND AND FIFTH RULES.

The following adjectives form their feminine by doubling the l in the masculine before a vowel.

m.	f.		m.	f.
beau	belle	fine	fou	folle	mad
bel			fol
nouveau	nouvelle	new

	prêt		prête

follow the second rule, except in the additional accent, and differing from the numerous terminations in -et, of the THIRD RULE.

Préfix m. makes préfixe f. and is the only adjective in -x, which preserves this letter and follows the SECOND RULE.

Some adjectives have no feminine, as bisché, dispos, fat, paillet, &c.; others have no masculine, as blette, &c.

OF THE FORMATION OF THE PLURAL OF FRENCH ADJECTIVES.

GENERAL RULE. Every adjective forms its plural by the simple addition of s, as, bon, bons, bonne, bonnes, poli, polis, polie, polies. This rule is without exception as it regards the feminine termination; but the masculine has the four following exceptions.

EXCEPTIONS.

1. Adjectives ending in -s or -x, do not change their termination in the plural masculine, as gros, gras, hideux.

2. Those ending in -au, take x in the plural, as beau, beaux, nouveau, nouveaux.

3. Some adjectives in -al, change this termination into -aux, as, égal, equal, égaux; général, généraux; but most of these have no plural masculine, as amical, austral, boréal, canonial, conjugal, diamétral, fatal, filial, final, frugal, jovial, lustral, matinal, naval, pastoral, pectoral, special, vénal, and some others.

4. Polysyllables ending in -nt, according to the most general practice, drop the t in the plural masculine, as excellent, excellens; but monosyllables retain it, as lent, slow, lents. The adjective tout, all, makes tous.

EXERCISE.

They are envious and jealous. Those fowls are big and

OF THE DEGREES OF SIGNIFICATION OF THE ADJECTIVE.

Grammarians commonly reckon three degrees of comparison; the positive, the comparative, and the superlative.

The positive is the adjective expressing the quality of an object, without any increase, or diminution, as beau, belle.

EXERCISE.

A child gentle, amiable, and docile, is beloved by every enfant m. doux aimable — aimé de tout body. An ingenuous candour, an amiable simplicity, and a sight of an agreeable landscape is a varied and rapid source vue f. agréable paysage m. varié 2 rapide 3—f. 1 of delightful sensations.

delicieux 2 —f. pl. 1.

The comparative is so called, because it draws a comparison between two or many objects. When two things are compared, the one is either superior, inferior, or equal to the other; hence three sorts of comparison, that of superiority, inferiority, and equality.

N. B. The adverbs plus, moins, and aussi, which mark these three kinds of comparison, are to be repeated before every adjective, when several are joined to the same substantive, and are followed by the conjunction que, rendered in English by than or as,

The comparative of superiority is formed by putting plus, more, before the adjective, and que, than, after it.

EXAMPLE.

La rose est plus belle que la violette. The rose is more beautiful than the violet.

EXERCISE.

The republic of Athens was more illustrious than that république f. Athènes a été illustre celle of Lacedemon. Homer was perhaps a greater genius taste than Homer. Milton appears (to me) more sublime 3 goût m. 1 à m. paraît 2 me 1 than all the other epic poets.

autre 1 épique 3 poète m. pl. 2

The comparative of inferiority is formed by prefixing moins, less, to the adjective, and adding que, than, after it.

EXAMPLE.

La violette est moins belle que la rose. The violet is less beautiful than the rose.

EXERCISE.

 and of pride. Autumn is less varied than

The comparative of equality is formed by placing aussi, as, before the adjective, and que, as, after it.

EXAMPLE.

La tulipe est aussi belle que la rose. The tulip is as beautiful as the rose.

 de faire art. bien m. de art. mal m.

The three following adjectives, meilleur, better, pire, worse, moindre, less, are comparatives in themselves.

N. B. As most beginners are apt to confound these comparative adjectives with the comparative adverbs, MIEUX, PIS, and MOINS, because they are generally rendered by the same English words, better, worse, and less, it may be advisable to subjoin here these comparative adverbs with their positives, that the difference of meaning may serve as a distinction.

Adjectives.	{	Meilleur , better, is the comparative of bon , good, and is used instead of plus bon , which is never said.
		Pire signifies plus mauvais , worse, or more wicked, and is used instead of this.
		Moindre means plus petit , less, or smaller, and is used instead of these terms.
Adverbs.	{	Mieux *, better, is the comparative of bien , well, and is used instead of plus bien , more well, which is said in neither language.
		Pis * is the comparative of mal , badly, and is used for plus mal , worse, which is likewise employed.
		Moins is the comparative of peu , little, and is used for plus peu , which is never heard.

EXAMPLES.

Ce fruit-là est bon, mais celui-ci est meilleur.	That fruit is good, but this is better.
Sa condition est mauvaise, mais elle a été pire.	His condition is bad, but it has been worse.
Ma dépense est petite, mais la vôtre est moindre.	My expense is small, but yours is smaller.

* There are some instances of pis and mieux used adjectively, but this is not the place to notice them.

Il se conduit bien, mais elle se condait encore mieux.	He behaves well, but she behaves still better.
Il se portait mal, mais il est pis que jamais.	He was unwell, but he is worse than ever.
Je parle peu, vous parlez encore moins.	I speak little, you speak still less.

EXERCISE.

His reasoning	is not better than yours.	Your style is
Son raisonnement m.	le vôtre.	Votre m.
(a great deal) better than that of his brother.	The thickness of
de beaucoup	celui son	épaisseur f.
this wall is less than that of the next	wall.	This column
mur m.	celle	voisin 2 1
is less than the other in height and thickness.	The remedy	colonne f.
autre en hauteur f.	en grosseur f.	remède m.
is worse than the disease.	Your horse is worse than mine.
mal m.	cheval m.	le mien.

The adjective is in the superlative degree, when it expresses the quality in a very high, or in its highest state: hence there are two sorts of superlatives, the absolute and the relative.

The superlative absolute is formed by putting très, fort, bien, very, before the adjective; it is called absolute, because it does not express any relation to other objects.

EXAMPLE.

Londres est une très-belle ville. London is a very fine city.

REMARK. The adverbs extrêmement, extremely, infiniment, infinitely, are likewise marks of the superlative absolute.

EXAMPLE.

Cet homme est extrêmement sa- vant.	That man is extremely learn- ed.
Dieu est infiniment heureux.	God is supremely happy.

EXERCISE.

harmonious, but it is sometimes prolix; that of Bossuet is = il quelquefois prolix; celui extremely sublime, but it is sometimes harsh and unpolished.
élevé dur rude.

The superlative relative is formed by prefixing the article le to the comparatives meilleur, moindre, pire, and to the adverbs plus and moins; it is called relative, as it expresses a relation to other objects.

EXAMPLES.

Londres est la plus belle des villes. London is the finest of cities.
Je préfère une maison de campagne au plus beau palais. I prefer a country-house to the finest palace.

Plus and moins, with the article, are repeated before every adjective.

AGREEMENT OF THE ADJECTIVE WITH THE SUB-STANTIVE.

RULE I. The adjective always agrees in gender and number with the substantive to which it relates.

EXAMPLES.

Le bon père,	The good father.
La bonne mère,	The good mother
De beaux jardins,	Fine gardens.
De belles promenades,	Fine walks.

Bon is masculine singular, because père is masculine, and in the singular; bonne is feminine singular, because mère is feminine, and in the singular; beaux is in the masculine plural, because jardins is masculine, and plural, &c.

1,000,000 { mille fois mille	{ mil- lion- ième	millionth	1 million	1 million

Un milliard, or billion, a thousand millions, un trillion, &c.

The formation of the ordinal number from the cardinal does not require any explanation, except that -unième is only found in compound numbers, where premier and second are inadmissible.

When mentioning the days of the month, the French make use of the cardinal instead of the ordinal number, and say, le onze d'avril, not le onzième, &c. le vingt-cinq du mois prochain, and not le vingt-cinquième, &c. except, however, that instead of l'un du mois, they say, le premier, the first day of, &c. and sometimes le second, though not so well, for le deux; but this mode proceeds no farther.

Mille never takes s in the plural, thus, vingt mille is twenty thousand, and not vingt milles, which would mean twenty miles; and when mentioning the christian era, it is customary to curtail this word into mil, and to write, for example, l'an mil huit cent seize, and never l'an mille, &c.

There are many other numerical expressions used in poetry, music, games, &c, as distique, tercet, quatrain, sixain, huitain, &c. solo, duo, trio, quatuor, quinque, quinle, octave, &c. beset, sonnez, &c.

Un millier is very often employed for one thousand weight, but quintal is never used except in the sense of one hundred weight.

The distributive numbers are those which express the different parts of a whole: as, la moitié, the half; le quart, the quarter; un cinquième, a fifth, &c.

The proportional denote the progressive increase of things; as, le double, the double; le triple, treble; le centuple, a hundred-fold, &c.

CHAP. IV.

OF THE PRONOUN.

A pronoun is a word substituted in the place of a noun.

There are several kinds of pronouns, as the personal, possessive, relative, absolute, demonstrative, and indefinite.

§ I.

OF THE PERSONAL PRONOUNS.

Personal Pronouns are used for the names of persons, or things.

There are three persons: the first who speaks; the second who is spoken to; and the third is the person, or thing, spoken of.

PRONOUNS OF THE FIRST PERSON.

Singular.

Subject.	je			I	je loue Dieu	I praise God me	for	à moi	to me	il me donne	he gives me me	—	moi	me	il me blesse	he hurts me
	moi	—	à moi	to me	donnez-moi	give me
Object.	moi	—	moi	me	aidez-moi	help me

Plural.

Subj.	nous			we	nous louons Dieu	we praise God
Obj.	nous	for	à nous	to us	il nous donne	he gives us
	nous	—	nous	us	il nous blesse	he hurts us

They are both masculine and feminine, that is, of the same gender as the person, or persons, they represent.

In general, je and me are put before the verb; moi after it; and nous before, but sometimes likewise after it.

EXERCISE.

I cast my eyes upon the objects which surrounded me, portai vue f. s. sur objet qui environnaient me, and saw with pleasure that all was calm and tranquil. Do

 1 3 nous écarter de sentier m. art.

PRONOUNS OF THE SECOND PERSON.

Singular.

Subj.	tu			thou	tu crains Dieu	thou fearest God
Obj.	te	for	à toi	to thee	il te parle	he speaks to thee
	te	—	toi	thee	il te voit	he sees thee toi	—	à toi	to thee	donne-toi la	give thyself the toi	—	toi	thee	peine habille-toi	trouble dress thyself

Plural.

Subj.	vous	{ ye, or	{ vous louez	{ you praise
		{ you	{ Dieu	{ God
Obj.	{ vous for à vous to you	{	{ il vous parle	{ he speaks to you
	{ vous — vous you		{ il vous respecte	{ he respects you

In general tu and te are put before the verb; toi after; and vous before, but sometimes after it.

REMARK. Politeness has led to the use of the plural vous, instead of the singular tu: as, vous êtes bien bon, you are very good, for tu es bien bon.

EXERCISE.

Thou art greater than I; and from thee I have (at once)

PRONOUNS OF THE THIRD PERSON.

Singular.

Subj.	{ il m.	{ he	{ il perd son	{ he loses his
	{ elle f.	{ she	{ temps	{ time
Obj.	{ lui m. for à lui to him	{	{ elle travaille	{ she is always at

	{ lui f. — à elle to her	{	{ dites-lui que	{ tell him that I
			{ je lui parlerai	{ will speak to him
			{ dites lui que	{ tell her that
			{ vous lui donnerez	{ you will give her

Singular.

Object.	lui m. for le	him	{ je ne connais que lui de capable }	{ I know but him capa- ble }
	le m. or lui	him	je le méprise	I despise him
	la f. — elle	her	je la respecte	I respect her elle f. — elle	her	{ Il ne connaît qu'elle }	{ he knows but her }
	le m. for celà	it	{ je ne le savais pas }	{ I did not know it }

Plural.

Subject.	ils m. — —	they	ils chantent	{ they sing (gentlemen) }
	elles f. — —	they	elles rient	{ they laugh (ladies) }
Object.	leur m. for à eux	to them	{ payez leur ce que vous leur devez }	{ pay them what you owe to them (to men) }
	leur f. for à elles	to them	{ dites-leur, que je désire leur parler }	{ tell them that I wish to speak to them (to ladies) }
	les m. or eux	them	{ vous les trou- verez }	{ you will find them (men) }
	les f. or elles	them	il les admire	{ he admires them (ladies) }
	eux m. — —	them	{ je ne vois qu'- eux }	{ I see but them (gentlemen) }
	elles — —	them	{ il ne connaît qu'elles }	{ he knows but them (ladies) }

All the personal pronouns je, tu, il, vous, ils, and elle, elles, when subjects, are put after the verb in interrogations, as,

Singular.

Subject.	je	I	dois-je payer ?	must I pay ?
	tu	thou	as-tu dit	hast thou said ?
	il	he	{ chante-t-il bien ? }	{ does he sing well ? }
	elle	she	{ travaille-t-elle ? }	does she work ?

Plural.
Subject.	nous	we	irons-nous ?	shall we go ?
	vous	you	viendrez-vous ?	will you come ?
	ils m.	they	chantent-ils ?	do they sing ?
	elles f.	they	{ travaillent-elles ? }	{ do they work ? }

Il, le, ils, eux, are always masculine: elle, la, elles, feminine; and les, leur, of both genders, as well as lui, when meaning to him, or to her; in other cases, lui exclusively belongs to the masculine.

All personal pronouns, when subjects, are placed before their verbs, except in interrogative sentences, and most of them likewise, when objects precede them, except in the imperative affirmative. But the objective eux, elles, lui for le, and moi, toi, soi, with one exception of this last, in soi disant, styling himself, are invariably placed after the verbs by which they are governed.

EXERCISE.

He loved them, because they were mild, attentive, and grateful. aimait m. parce que doux =

	de là	thence	{ vous allez à Pa- ris, et monsieur en vient	{ you are going to Paris, this gen- tleman comes from thence.

OF THE RELATIVE PRONOUN, OR ADVERB y.

Y for	à lui to him	c'est un honnête homme, fiez-vous- y	he is an honest man, trust to him.
	à elle to her	cette raison est solide, je m'y rends	that reason is good, I yield to it.
	à eux to them	ces argumens sont pressans, je n'y vois point de réplique	these arguments are cogent, I see no reply to them.
	à elles to them	accablé de vos civilités, je ne sais comment y répondre	loaded with your civilities, I do not know how to acknowledge them.
	à cela to it	j'ai éprouvé cette perte quand j'y pensais le moins	I experienced that loss, when I least thought of it.
	ici here	nous partons de Londres, quand vous y venez	we set off from London, when you came hither.

§ II.

OF POSSESSIVE PRONOUNS.

These pronouns are adjectives, which denote the possessions of things. When we say, mon habit, my coat; votre maison, your house; son jardin, his or her garden; it is the same as saying l'habit qui est à moi, the coat which belongs to me; la maison qui est à vous, the house which belongs to you; le jardin qui est à lui, or à elle, the garden which belongs to him or to her.

Of these pronominal adjectives, some always agree with a noun expressed, and the others with a noun understood; hence there are two sorts of possessive pronouns.

Of those that always agree with a noun expressed, some relate to one person, and others to several.

PRONOMINAL ADJECTIVES RELATING TO ONE PERSON.

	PERSON.	Singular.		Plural.
for the	1st	mon, m.	ma, f.	mes, m. f.	my
	2d	ton, m.	ta, f.	tes, m. f.	thy

PRONOMINAL ADJECTIVES RELATING TO MANY PERSONS.

	PERSON.	Singular.	Plural.
of the	1st	notre, m. f.	nos, m. f.	our
	2d	votre, m. f.	vos, m. f.	your
	3d	leur, m. f.	leur, m. f.	their

N. B. These possessive pronouns in French always agree in gender and number with the object possessed, and not with the possessor, as in English, for which reason they must be repeated before every noun.

EXAMPLES.

Mon père, ma mère, et mes frères, sont à la campagne avec vos amis et leurs enfants.

Mon cousin est allé consoler sa sœur, qui a perdu son fils.

My father, mother, and brothers, are in the country, with your friends and their children.

My cousin is gone to visit and console his sister, who has lost her son.

Mon, ton, son, are also used before a noun feminine, when beginning with a vowel, or h mute; thus, mon âme, my soul; ton humeur, thy humour; son amitié, his friendship; must be said instead of ma âme, ta humeur, sa amitié.

EXERCISE.

Of the pronouns, which always agree with nouns understood, some relate to one person, and others to several persons.

Those which relate only to one person are:

	m. Sing.	f. Sing.	m. Plur.	f. Plur.
1st. Le mien,	la mienne,	les miens,	les miennes,	mine
2d. Le tien,	la tienne,	les tiens,	les tiennes,	thine
3d. Le sien,	la sienne,	les siens	les siennes,	his, her, its

Those which relate to several persons are :

	m. Sing.	f. Sing.	Pl. of both Gen.
1st. Le nôtre,	la nôtre,	les nôtres,	ours
2d. Le vôtre,	la vôtre,	les vôtres,	yours
3d. Le leur,	la leur,	les leurs,	theirs

N. B. The real use of these pronouns is to spare the repetition of the nouns, which have been expressed a little before.

EXAMPLE.

Avez-vous toujours votre cheval ? je n'ai plus le mien. Have you still your horse ? I have disposed of mine.

EXERCISE.

Is it your temper or hers, that hinders you from living well together ? If it be yours, it is easy for you to remedy it, by mastering (your temper) ; if it be hers, redouble your complaisance, attention, and good behaviour : it is very seldom that this method (proves unsuccessful). If my friends had served me with the same zeal as yours, it is very certain that I (should have) succeeded : but yours have been all fire, and mine all ice. All the pictures which we expected from Rome are arrived : there are some that are a little damaged ; but yours, his, and mine, are in good condition. We know perfectly well what are your amusements in town, and I assure you we are very far from envying you them ; but if you knew éloigné pl. envier 3 1 2 connaissiez quels ours in the country, it (is most likely) you sont à campagne f. il y a toute apparence que (would not be long) in giving them the preference. which so well becomes an honest man: this confidence well mérite 1.

REMARK. When through politeness vous is used for tu, then votre, vos, must take the place of ton, ta, tes, and le vôtre, la vôtre, les vôtres, be used for le tien, la tienna, les tiens, les tiennes.

EXAMPLES.

Que vous ressembliez peu à voûs How little you resemble your ancêtres! ancestors!

Quand vous aurez entendu When you have heard our nos raisons, nous écouterons les reasons, we will listen to yours.
vôtres.

§ III.

OF THE RELATIVE PRONOUNS.

Relative pronouns are those which relate to a preceding noun, or pronoun, called the antecedent. In the phrase, l'homme qui joue, the man who plays; qui relates to the substantive homme; l'homme is then the antecedent to the pronoun relative qui.

Qui	{ who	Dieu qui voit tout	{ God who sees every thing
	{ which	les chevaux qui courent	{ the horses which are running
Que	{ whom	l'homme que vous cherchez	{ the man whom you seek
	{ which	les lois que nous ob- servons	{ the laws which we observe
Dont or de qui	{ of which	l'insulte dont vous vous plaignez	{ the insult of which you complain
	{ whose	la nature dont nous ignorons les secrets	{ nature whose secrets are unknown to us
	{ of whom	les gens de qui vous parlez	{ the people of whom you speak
Lequel Laquelle	{ which	c'est une condition sans laquelle il ne veut rien faire	{ it is a condition, without which he will do nothing
Auxquels Auxquelles	{ to whom	ceux auxquels il s'est adressé, ont refusé de le défendre	{ those to whom he ap- plied, refused to protect him

Quoi	what	ce sont des choses à quoi vous ne pensez pas	{ these are things of which you do not think which	la cause, pourquoi on l'a arrêté, est connue	{ the reason why he was arrested, is known

Qui, que, and dont, are of both genders and both numbers.

Lequel is a compound of quel, and the article le, la, les, with which it coalesces in the following manner:

Singular.		Plural.
lequel	laquelle	lesquels	lesquelles	which
duquel	de laquelle	desquels	desquelles	of which auquel	à laquelle	auxquels	auxquelles	to which

This pronoun always agrees in gender and number with its antecedent. Quoi, which sometimes supplies its place, is always governed by a preposition.

§ IV.

OF PRONOUNS ABSOLUTE.

Pronouns absolute are those which have no relation to an antecedent. They are the five following:

Qui	who	je vous dirai qui l'a fait	{ I will tell you who has done it whom	vous pouvez consulter qui vous voudrez	{ you may consult whom you please whom	qui consulterez-vous ?	{ whom will you consult ?
Que	what	il ne sait que résoudre	{ he does not know on what to determine what	que ferez-vous ?	{ what will you do ?
Quoi	what	en quoi puis-je vous servir ?	{ in what can I serve you ?
	what	il y a là je ne sais quoi d'obscur	{ there is in it, I do not know what obscurity

Quel	what	{ quelle instabilité dans les choses humaines! }	{ what instability in human affairs? }
	what	{ il ne sait quel parti prendre }	{ he does not know what resolution to take }
Lequel	which	{ lequel aimez-vous le mieux de ces ta- bleaux? }	{ which do you pre- fer of those pic- tures? } which	{ je sais bien lequel je choisirais }	{ I know well which I would choose }

Qui applies only to persons. Que and quoi to things.

Quel, masc. quelle, fem. sing. quels, m. quelles, f. pl. always precede a substantive, the gender and number of which they take.

Lequel, duquel, auquel, &c. are used to mark a distinction between several objects.

§ V.

OF DEMONSTRATIVE PRONOUNS, &c.

Demonstrative pronouns are those which point, as it were, to the objects spoken of. These are,

§ VI.

OF INDEFINITE PRONOUNS.

Indefinite pronouns are those which are of a vague and indeterminate nature.

They are of four sorts.

FIRST CLASS.

Those that are never joined to a substantive.

ON { one on aime à se flatter { one is apt to flatter one's self a man { on n'est pas toujours { a man is not always masmaître de soi ter of his own temper.

on	a woman	{ on n'est pas toujours maîtresse d'aller où* l'on veut }	{ it is not always in the power of a wo- man to go where she wishes }
	somebody	{ on frappe à la porte }	{ somebody knocks at the door } people	{ on pense et * l'on dit tout haut }	{ people think and say openly }
	they	{ on raconte diversement cette histoire }	{ they relate that sto- ry differently }
	we	{ on acquiert l'expéri- ence à ses dépens }	{ we acquire experi- ence at our own expense }

CHAP. V.

OF THE VERB.

The Verb is a word, the chief use of which is to express affirmation : it has persons, moods, and tenses.

In the phrase la vertu est aimable, virtue is amiable, it is affirmed that the quality aimable, belongs to la vertu ; likewise in this sentence, le vice n'est pas aimable, vice is not amiable, it is affirmed that the quality aimable, does not belong to le vice ; the word est expresses this affirmation.

That concerning which we affirm, or deny a thing, is called the subject, and what is affirmed, or denied, is called its attribute. In the two preceding sentences, vertu and vice are subjects of the verb est, and aimable is the attribute affirmed respecting the one, and denied with respect to the other.

There are in verbs two numbers, the singular and plural, and in each number three persons.

- 1 { The first person is that who speaks ; it is designated by je, I, in the singular, and by nous, we, in the plural ; as, je pense, I think ; nous pensons, we think.
- 2 { The second is the person spoken to, expressed by tu, thou, in the singular, and by vous, you, in the plural ; as, tu penses, thou thinkest ; vous pensez, you think.
- 3 { The third is the person spoken of, known by il, he, or elle, she, in the singular, and by ils, or elles, they, in the plural ; as, il, or elle pense, he, or she thinks ; ils, or elles pensent, they think.

All substantives, either common, or proper, are of the third person, when not addressed, or spoken to.

REM. { A word is known to be a verb, when it admits the personal pronouns ; thus, finir, to finish, is a verb, because we can say, je finis, tu finis, il, or elle finit, &c.

There are five moods, or modes of conjugating verbs.

- 1 { The infinitive mood affirms, in an indefinite manner, without either number, or person ; as, aimer, to love ; avoir aimé, to have loved.
- 2 { The indicative simply indicates and asserts a thing in a direct manner ; as, j'aime, I love ; il aime, he loved.
- 3 { The conditional affirms a thing with a condition, as, j'aimerais, si, &c., I should love, if, &c.
- 4 { The imperative is used for commanding, exhorting, requesting, or reproving ; as, aime, love (thou) ; aimons, let us love.
- 5 { The subjunctive subjects a thing to what precedes ; as, vous voulez, qu'il aime, you wish that he may love ; que nous aimions, that we may love.

There are three tenses, the present, which declares a thing now existing, or doing, as, je lis, I read; the past, or preterit, denoting that the thing has been done, as, j'ai lu, I have read; the future, denoting that the thing will be done, as, je lirai, I shall read. But these are subdivided, so that there are several preterit, and two future tenses.

There are five kinds of verbs, the active, passive, neuter, pronominal, and impersonal.

The verb active is that which expresses an action, the object of which is either declared, or understood. Aimer, to love, is a verb active, as it expresses an action, the object of which may be quelqu'un, some person, or quelque chose, some thing; as, aimer Dieu, to love God; aimer l'étude, to love study. The object of this action is called the regimen, or government of the verb active.

N.B. { A simple question will show this regimen, as, qu'est-ce que j'aime? what do I love? answer, Dieu, God. Dieu is then the regimen of the verb j'aime.

In the French language, the passive verbs are supplied by the verb être, as they are in English by the verb to be, and the participle past of the verb active followed by the preposition de, or par, the subject and regimen of the verb active being reversed. Thus, to change the verbs from active to passive in these sentences, mon père m'aime, my father loves me; le milan a enlevé le canari, the kite has carried off the canary; they must be reversed in this way, je suis aimé de mon père, I am loved by my father: le canari a été enlevé par le milan, the canary has been carried off by the kite.

The verb neuter, is that which has no direct regimen, as the verb active has. Aller, to go; marcher, to walk, are verbs neuter, because we cannot say, aller quelqu'un, to go somebody; marcher quelque chose, to walk something. Plaire, to please, is likewise a verb neuter, as we cannot say in French plaire quelqu'un, to please somebody, but plaire à quelqu'un.

The pronominal verbs are those in which each person is conjugated through all the tenses, with a double personal pronoun.

as	je me,	I myself	nous nous	we ourselves
	tu te,	thou thyself	vous vous	{ you yourself
	il se,	he himself	ils se	{ or ye yourselves
	elle se,	she herself	ellesse	{ they themselves

There are four sorts of pronominal verbs.

- 1 { The pronominal verb active, when the action of the verb falls upon the subject, as, je me flatte, I flatter myself; il se loue, he praises himself. Almost all the active verbs are susceptible of being reflected.
- 2 { The pronominal verb neuter, which indicates only a state, a disposition of the subject, as, se repentir, to repent, se désister, to desist, s'enfuir, to run away.
- 3 { The reciprocal verb expresses a reciprocity of action between two or more subjects, and consequently has no singular: such are s'entr'aider, to help one another, s'entre-donner, to give each other.
- 4 { The pronominal verb impersonal is only used in the third person singular. Active verbs frequently assume this form, in a passive sense, for the sake of brevity and energy; as, il se bâtit, there is building; il se faisait, there was doing; il se conclut, there was concluded; il s'est dit, it has been said; il se donnera une grande bataille, a great battle will be fought.

The impersonal verb is only used in the third person singular, with the pronoun il, and has no relation to any person or thing. Neiger, to snow, is an impersonal verb, as it cannot be applied to any person or thing: il neige, it snows, il neigeait, it did snow.

Though the greatest part of the French verbs are regular, there are, however, as in other languages, some that are irregular, and others that are defective. Regular verbs are those which are conjugated conformably to a general standard. Irregular verbs are those which do not conform to the verb employed as a model; and defective verbs are those which, in certain tenses or persons, are not used.

OF CONJUGATIONS.

To conjugate a verb is to rehearse it with all its different inflections.

The French have four conjugations, which are easily distinguished by the termination of the present of the infinitive.

The	FIRST	ends in	-er	as, parler, aimer, chanter, donner, &c.
	SECOND		-ir	as, finir, sentir, ouvrir, tenir, &c.
	THIRD		-oir	as, recevoir, apercevoir, devoir, &c.
	FOURTH		-re	as, rendre, plaire, paraître, réduire, joindre, &c.

The French, like most modern nations, not having a sufficient number of inflections in their verbs to represent the great variety of their tenses, supply this deficiency with two auxiliary verbs, avoir and être, to have and to be.

Those tenses in a verb whose inflections are derived pure and unmixed from the parent stock, are called simple tenses, and are always in French expressed by a single word. But the tenses which are formed by the union of those of the verbs avoir, or être, with a participle past, are called compound, and necessarily consist of not less than two or three words. Thus, avoir, j'ai, j'avais, j'eus, &c. parler, je parle, je parlais, &c. are simple tenses; but avoir eu, j'ai eu, j'eus eu, j'avais eu, avoir parlé, j'ai parlé, j'eus parlé, j'ai eu parlé, &c. are compound tenses.

THE VERB Avoir, INTERROGATIVELY AND AFFIRMATIVELY.

In interrogations, the personal pronoun, accompanied by a hyphen (-), is placed after the verb, in the simple tenses, and between the verb and the participle, in the compound tenses, and, when the third person singular of the verb ends with a vowel, for euphony a t is added between it and the pronoun, preceded and followed by a hyphen, thus (-t). See likewise the remarks, page 125.

As the third person singular and plural of the imperative mood belong rather to the subjunctive, they are there exemplified.

It has already been observed, that before the subjunctive can form a complete sense, it must be preceded by another verb. For the sake of brevity, therefore, complete sentences will only be given on the present tense. This remark applies alike to the four conjugations.

FIRST CONJUGATION.

IN er.

- 1 { In verbs ending in -ger, the e is preserved in those tenses where g is followed by the vowels a, or o, in order to preserve to this letter its soft sound; as, mangeant, jugeons, je négligeai.
- 2 { In verbs ending in -cer, for the same reason, a cedilla is put under c, when followed by a, or o; as, suçant, plaçons, j'effaçai.
- 3 { In verbs ending in -oyer and -uyer, the y is changed into i before a mute e; as, j'emploie, il essuie, j'appuierai, il nettoierait.
- 4 { This practice is extended by some to verbs in -ayer and -eyer, as il paie, j'essaierai, elle grasséye, or grassée.
- 5 { In some few verbs ending in -eler and -eter, the l and t are doubled in those inflections, which receive an e mute after these consonants, as, from appeler, il appelle, from jeter, je jetterai, &c.
- 6 { The first person singular of the present of the indicative changes e mute into acute é in interrogative sentences. The remark is also applied to some verbs of the second conjugation ending in -vrir, -frir, and -lir; as, négligé-je? aimé-je? offré-je? cueillé-je?

SECOND CONJUGATION.

IN -ir.

This conjugation is divided into four branches.

The first branch contains upwards of two hundred and eighty regular verbs in -ir, exclusive of fifty-three more comprised in the three other branches, which may be considered as exceptions, and may be reduced to thirteen roots, with thirty-nine derivatives. By presenting some of the regular verbs of the first branch, which nearly resemble the three following lists of exceptions, the scholar will evidently see that the terminations in -mir, -vir, -tir, and -nir, are not absolutely the distinctive marks of the three other branches, the lists of which ought to be learned by heart.

PARADIGM, OR MODEL FOR PRONOMINAL VERBS.

Se repentir to repent.

Pronominal verbs, as was said page 123, are conjugated throughout, in each person, with a double personal pronoun, and as all their compound tenses are formed by means of the auxiliary verb être, their participle past must always agree in gender and number with the objective pronoun, when it is direct, otherwise not. Their inflections all follow the conjugations to which they belong.

plishments more than by her beauty. That we might conduct the opinion of sensible persons. That they would not appear so scornful and vain.

dédaigneux f. pl. ni si f. pl.

In all participles past, except absous, dissous, résous, which are to be seen in their places, the feminine is formed by adding e mute to the masculine, and the plural by adding s to the singular, both masculine and feminine, when it does not already end with this letter, the French language not admitting a final double consonant.

As there is some difficulty in conjugating pronominal verbs, some few are here selected, which it will prove advantageous to practise.

CONJUGATION OF THE PASSIVE VERBS.

There is but one mode of conjugating passive verbs; it is by adding to the verb être, through all the moods and tenses, the participle past of the verb active, which then must agree in gender and number with the subject; as,

Je suis aimé, or aimée	I am loved tu étais estimé, or estimée	thou wast esteemed ce roi fut chéri de son peuple	that king was beloved by his people
elle fut toujours chérie	she was always beloved
mon père fut respecté	my father was respected
ma mère fut révérée	my mother was revered
nous serons loués, or louées	we shall be praised
vous en serez blâmés, or blâmées	you will be blamed for it
ils seraient craints et redoutés	they would be feared and dreaded
Je voudrais que les portes fussent } ouvertes	I wish the doors were opened
tu en avais été averti, or avertie	thou hadst been apprized of it
lorsqu'il eut été mordu	when he had been bitten
je soupçonne que la ruse aura été } découverte	I suspect the artifice will have been discovered
vous auriez été aperçus, or aperçues	you would have been perceived

CONJUGATION OF THE NEUTER VERBS.

There are in the French language about six hundred neuter verbs, which are conjugated with the auxiliary avoir in their compound tenses; the only excepted are the following, which take être; even some of them, and particularly those marked with an asterisk, take either, according to the sense.

Aller	to go	venir	to come
accourir	to run to	revenir	to come back arriver	to arrive	devenir	to become choir	to fall	redevenir	to become again
déchoir	to decay	avénir	to happen
échoir	to become due	intervenir	to intervene monter*	to go up	parvenir	to attain descendre*	to go down	provenir	to come from remonter*	to go up again	survenir	to befall redescendre	to go down again	disconvenir	to deny, or disown entrer	to enter	naître	to be born rentrer	to come in again	mourir	to die
retourner	to return	décéder	to die
tomber	to fall	éclore	to be hatched, to blow
retomber	to fall again	accoucher	to be brought to bed
partir	to set out	demeurer*	to stay, or remain repartir	to set out again	apparaître*	to appear rester	to stay	périr*	to perish
échapper*	to escape	résulter*	to result expirer*	to expire	convenir*	to agree, to suit passer*	to pass away	contrevénir*	to contravene sortir	to go out
ressortir	to go out again
aborder*	to land, &c.

REMARK. The participle of these neuter verbs, which take être for auxiliary, must accordingly agree both in gender and number with their subject; as,

Je suis tombé, or tombée quand tu fus venu, or venue il était arrivé avant moi elle était déjà arrivée ma sœur était partie avant lui nous serons revenus, or revenues quand vous serez descendus, or descendues

I have fallen when thou hadst come he had arrived before me
she had already arrived
my sister had set off before him we shall have returned when you shall have come down

ils seraient repartis	}	they would have set off again elles seraient reparties
vos sœurs étaient sorties, sont-elles à présent rentrées ?		your sisters went out, are they now come back ?
cela lui est échu en partage		that fell to his lot cette maison m'a convenu, et je suis convenu du prix		that house suited me, and I have agreed about the price
Il n'en est pas disconvenu		he did not deny it cette chose m' est échappée de la mémoire, de la main		that thing escaped from my memory, dropped from my hand
la trêve est expirée		the truce has expired
les délais sont expirés		the delays have expired
elle a expiré dans les bras de sa mère		she expired in the arms of her mother tous ceux qui étaient sur ce vaisseau ont péri, ou sont périés		all those that were on board of that ship have perished

a-t-on descendu le vin à la cave ?	}	have they carried down the wine into the cellar ?
le baromètre a descendu de quatre degrés pendant la journée		the barometer fell four degrees during the day
les actions ont monté beaucoup		the stocks rose very much je n'ai pas remonté ma montre		I have not wound up my watch il a monté quatre fois à sa chambre pendant la journée		he went up to his room four times in the course of the day
il est monté dans sa chambre, et il y est resté		he is gone up to his room, and has remained there

And so on through all the compound tenses of the other verbs.

OF THE IMPERSONAL VERBS.

Observe that, in impersonal verbs, il has no relation to a substantive, as may be seen by the impossibility of substituting a noun in its place.

REMARK. The English verb must, not being impersonal, may take any noun or pronoun for its subject, whereas the French verb falloir, being always impersonal, a change of construction in the translation becomes necessary, and this may be done in two different ways.

The most common method is by putting the conjunction que after il faut, il fallait, &c. then transporting the subject of the English verb must to the second verb, which is to be put in the subjunctive in French: thus, I must sell my house, il faut que je vende ma maison.

The other way is by allowing the second verb to remain in the infinitive, as in English, and substituting in the place of the personal pronoun, which is the subject of the verb must, its corresponding objective me, te, lui, nous, vous, leur, which are to be placed between il and faut, fallait, &c. as, I must begin that work to-day, il me faut commencer cet ouvrage aujourd'hui.

OBSERVE. That all expressions implying necessity, obligation, or want, may be rendered by falloir; as, I want a new grammar, il me faut une nouvelle grammaire.

The imperative va takes an s when followed by y, or by en; as, vas-y, vas en savoir des nouvelles, go thither, go to hear some tidings of it; however, it takes no s when the y is followed by a verb; as, va y donner ordre, go and order that affair.

Puer, to stink, is by no means irregular, but simply defective in the preterit of the indicative, and in the imperfect of the subjunctive.

Tisser, to weave, is a verb defective, which, to form its compound tenses, borrows the participle past tissu, from the obsolete verb tistre.

Quérir, to fetch, is used in familiar conversation after venir, envoyer, aller, as, envoyez quérir, send for; allez quérir, go and fetch.

ACQUÉRIR, to acquire.

Part. pres. acquérant. Past. acquis.

IND. pres. acquiers, acquiers, acquiert, acquérons, acquérez, acquièrent.

Imper. acquérais. Pret. acquis. Fut. acquerrai. COND. acquerrais.

IMP. acquiers, acquière, acquérons, acquérez, acquièrent.

SUBJ. pres. acquière-e, -es, -e, acquér-ions, -iez, acquièrent.

Imperf. acquisse.

S'enquérir, to inquire, and requérir, to request, are conjugated as acquérir.

Conquérir, to conquer, is seldom used but in the IND. pret. je conquis, &c. and in the SUBJ. imperf. je conquisse. Its chief use is in the compound tenses.

Ouir, to hear, is only employed in the INF. pres. ouïr. Part. past. ouï. IND. pret. j'ouïs, tu ouïs, &c. and SUBJ. imperf. j'ouisses, tu ouisses, &c. Its principal use is in the compound tenses, when it is generally accompanied by another verb; as, je l'ai, or je l'avais ouï dire, I have, or I had heard it said.

VETIR, to clothe.

Part. pres. vêtant.* Past. vêtu.

IND. pres. vêts,* vêts,* vêt,* vêtons, vêtez, vêtent.

Imperf. vêttais. Pret. vêtis. Fut. vêtirai. COND. vêtirais.

IMP. vêts,* vête,* vêtons, vêtez, vêtent.

SUBJ. pres. vête. Imperf. vêtisse.

N. B. Vêtir is seldom used in the forms marked with an asterisk, and is most frequently reflected.

Revêtir, to clothe, to invest, is used through all the tenses; dévêtir, to divest, is principally used as a reflected verb, and in some forms only.

IRREGULAR VERBS OF THE THIRD CONJUGATION.

Avoir, to have, is conjugated at length, p. 125.

Ravoir, to have again, and se ravoir, to recover, are only used in the present of the infinitive.

Choir, to fail, has only the participle past, chu, chue, formerly chute, preserved in chape-chute.

DECHOIR, to decay.

(No Part. pres.) Part. past. déchu.

IND. pres. déchois, déchois, déchoit, déchoyons, déchoyez, déchoient.

(No Imperf.) Pret. déchus. Fut. décherrai. COND. décherrais. IMPER. déchois, déchoie, déchovons, déchoyez, déchoient.

SUB. pres. déchoie, déchoies, déchoie, déchoyi-ons, —ez, déchoient. Imperf. déchusse.

Echoir, to fall to, to expire, has only now in use, the IND. pres. il échoit, sometimes pronounced il échet; the pret. il échut; fut. il écherra; cond. il écherrait; the imperf. SUBJ. que j'échusse, &c. and INF. échoir, échéant, échu.

N. B. Choir, déchoir, échoir, take the auxiliary être.

Falloir, to be necessary, is an impersonal verb, the conjugation of which has been given, p. 179.

N. B. No change is to be made in the tenses preceded by je or il.

(a) Verbs in ger retain e before a or o, as je songeais, songeons. Verbs in cer change c into ç before a or o, as effaçant, effaçons. Verbs in eler, eter, double l or t before e mute, as j'appelle, il jette. (b) Génir, to lie, il git, ils gisent.—Ouir, j'ois, ils oient, oit, oyons, oyez, oient, pret. def. j'ouis, past part. ouï. Seldom used except in the participle. Fleurir makes florissant in the present participle; and in the imperfect je florissais, when used metaphorically, as, empire florissant, Rome florissante; but fleurir, to blossom, is regular. (c) Asservir makes in the present, j'asservis, asservis, asservit, asservissions, &c. (d) Neuter verbs in tir, change tir into s, s, t. tons, tez, tent, se repentir, démentir, are conjugated in the same manner, but active verbs change tr into s, s, t. tons, tez, tent, se repentir, démentir, are conjugated, though neuter, follow this rule. (e) Assaillir, and saillir to project, are conjugated like verbs ending in cueillir; saillir has only the third person and the gerunds. (f) Défaillir, to decay or to faint, has only (in the present) défaillons, défailles. (g) Pouvoir, to be able, je peux or je puis and puis-je only, in the interrogations. (h) Choir is used only in the infinitive. Déchoir, to decay, has no imperfect indie. Echoir, to fall, to expire, no imperfect indicative, (used only in the third person.) (i) Seoir, to become, present indicative, il sied, ils sièent. (j) Paitre, to graze, no preterit definite, but repâître, to feed, is regular. Naitre, to be born, renaitre, to be born again, make in the preterit, naquis, renacquis. (k) Faire (and its deriv.) je fais, fais, fait, faisons, faites, font. pret-def fia. (l) Dire, to say, jadis, dis, dit, disions, dites, disent. Redire, as dire. Maudire, je maudis, maudis, maudit, maudissons, maudissez, maudissent. (m) Frîre, to fry, no imperfect. Preterit definite like the present. (Future and cond. regular) imperative fris, it may be conjugated throughout with faire, viz. Je fais frîre, etc. (n) Clôre or clorre, to close, je clos, tu closes, il clot. Fut. and cond. regular imperative clos. Déclorre, like clorre. (o) Luire and réchauffer. Preterit definite not used.

Y is generally changed into i before e mute, as envoyer s'envoie. Croire, ils croient, &c. The imperfect of the indicative is formed from the first plural person of the present, by changing ons into aie, ais, ait, ions, iez, aient. J'étais, I was, is the only exception to this rule.

The future absolute is formed from the present of the infinitive by changing

er into erat .	ir into irai .	voir into verrai .	re into rai .
yer into terai .	ourir into ourrai .	avoir into aurai .
	enir into tendrai .	cevoir, deçoir , into cevrai, devrai .
	guérir into guerrai .	aloir into audrai .
	cueillir into }	choir into cherrai .
	cueillerai }	seoir into siérai .

EXCEPTIONS. aller, future. j'irai. envoyer, s'envoierai. saillir, (to project.) il saillera. falloir, il faudra. prévoir, je prévoierai. pouvoir, je pourrai. pleuvoir, il pleuvra. mouvoir, je mouvrai. surseoir, je surseoirai. vouloir, je voudrai. être, je serai. faire, je ferai.

The second person, third, &c. are to be formed from the first by changing rai into ras, ras, rons, rez, ront.

The CONDITIONAL is formed from the first person of the future by changing rai into rais, rais, rions, riez, raient.

The IMPERATIVE has no first person in the singular. The 2d person of the singular, the 1st and 2d of the plural, are alike with the corresponding per. of the pres. ind. except in the imperative of verbs ending in er, orir, frir, cueillir, which drop the e in the imperative—viz. tu parles, imp. paris; tu couvres, imp. couvre; tu souffres, imp. souffre; tu cueilles, imp. cueille; the third person like the corresponding of the present of the subjunctive.

EXCEPTIONS. (See Avoir and Être.)

Plural,	allons-ez-	sachez-ez-ent .	veillons-ez-ent .
	aillent .

The PRESENT OF THE SUBJUNCTIVE is formed from the 3d plural person of the present of the indicative, by changing ent into e, es, e, for the singular. The 1st and 2d person of the plural like the corresponding of the imperfect, and the 3d like the 3d of the present.

EXCEPTIONS. (See Avoir and Être.)

	aller .	faire .	valoir .
Subj.	que j'aïlle-es-e.	fasse-es-e.	vaïlle-es-e.

	seoir, to best.	vouloir.	falloir.
Subj.	qu'il siée.	veuïlle-es-e.	qu'il faïlle.
		vouïlions-iez-veuillent.

The IMPERFECT OF THE SUBJUNCTIVE is formed from the preterit def. by changing ai into asse, asse, as, assions, assiez, assent. e into sse, esse, s, esions, esiez, essent.

The PRESENT PARTICIPLE will be formed from the first plural person of the present of the indicative, by changing ons into ant.

EXCEPTIONS.

être.	avoir.	savoir.	seoir. (to sit.)	échoir.
étant.	ayant.	sachant.	séant.	échéant.

The PAST PARTICIPLE may be formed from the preterit def. by changing ai into é, is into i, fris into frî, pris into vert, ins into enu, dis into du, isis into is, gis into ni, us into u. No change is to be made in the preterits ending in pris, quis.

EXCEPTIONS.

(The feminine of the participle is formed by adding e.)

	Bénir .	mourir.	vêir.	seoir.	voir.
Past part.	Béni or bénit .*	mort.	vêtu.	sé.	vu.

	Mis.	rompu.	résolu. ‡	tratt.	vaincu.

The derivatives have the same exceptions.

* Only in the verbs ending in dre, like répondre.

† Béni is used only for things, as, eau bénite, pain béni.

‡ Conclure makes conclu. Exclure past part. exclus or exclu.

§ Résoudre makes also résous, résout, in the sense of resolved into. Dissoudre and absoudre, past part. dissous, dissoute, absous, absoute.

CHAP. VI.

OF THE PREPOSITIONS.

Prepositions, which are so called, from being prefixed to the nouns which they govern, serve to connect words with one another, and to show the relation between them. Thus, in this phrase, le fruit de l'arbre, the fruit of the tree, de expresses the relation between fruit and arbre. Likewise in this, utile à l'homme, useful to man; à forms the relation between the noun homme and the adjective utile. De and à are prepositions, and the word to which they are prefixed, is called their regimen.

There are different kinds of prepositions.

Some are used—to denote place, as:

CHEZ. Il est chez lui, he is at home.

DANS. Il se promène dans le jardin, he is walking in the garden.

DEVANT. Il est toujours devant mes yeux, he is always before my eyes.

DERRIÈRE. Il ne regarde jamais derrière lui, he never looks behind him.

PARMI. Que de fous parmi les hommes! how many fools among men!

SOUS. La taupe vit sous terre, the mole lives under ground.

SUR. Il a le chapeau sur la tête, he has his hat on (his head.)

VERS. L'aimant se tourne vers le nord, the loadstone points towards the north.

CHAP. VII

OF THE ADVERB.

The adverb is a word which accompanies verbs, adjectives, or even other adverbs, to express their manner, or circumstances.

REMARK. There are adjectives which are sometimes used as adverbs, as, il chante juste, he sings well; elle chante faux, she sings out of tune; ils ne voient pas clair, they do not see clear; cette fleur sent bon, this flower has a good smell, &c. The adjectives, juste, faux, clair, and bon, here supply the place of adverbs.

Adverbs are of different kinds.

The most numerous are those which express manner, and are formed from adjectives by the following method:

RULE I. When the adjective ends, in the masculine, with a vowel, the adverb is formed by adding ment; as, modeste-ment, modestly; poli-ment, politely; ingénn-ment, ingenuously, &c.

EXCEPTIONS. Impuni makes impunément, and traître, traîtreusement.

The following six take é close before -ment, instead of the e mute in the adjective.

aveuglement	blindly	conformément	conformably commodément	commodiously	énormément	enormously
incommodément	incommodiously	opiniâtrément	obstinately

Observe that the adverbs, follement	foolishly	bellement	softly mollement	effeminately	nouvellement	newly

are to be considered as coming from the adjectives, fol, mol, bel, nouvel, and accordingly belong to the following rule.

RULE II. When the adjective ends with a consonant, in the masculine, the adverb is formed from the feminine termination, by adding ment; as, grand of defence. The savage is almost continually at war: he canpresque toujours not remain at rest.

He has acted, on this occasion, like en repos dans en

a great man.

grandement, greatly; franc, franchement, frankly; naïf, naïvement, artlessly, &c.

EXCEPTIONS. 1st. Gentil, makes gentiment, prettily.

2nd. The following eight adverbs,

communément	commonly	importunément	importunately
confusément	confusedly	obscurément	obscurely
diffusément	diffusedly	précisément	precisely
expressément	expressly	profondément	deeply take before ment the é close instead of the e mute, in the feminine of the adjectives from which they are derived:

REM. The six following adverbs are not derived from adjectives.

comment	how	profusément	lavishly
incessamment	presently	nuitamment	by night
notamment	especially	sciemment	knowingly

3rd. Adjectives ending in -nt, form their adverbs by changing -nt into -mment, as consta-nt, consta-mment, constantly; éloque-nt, éloque-mment. Except lent and présent, the only two of this class, that follow the second general rule, making lentement and présentement.

REM. Most adverbs denoting manner, and a few others, have the three degrees of comparison, as, profondément, aussi, plus, or moins profondément, fort, bien, or très-profondément, and le plus profondément.

The following degrees of comparison are irregular.

POSITIVE.		COMPARATIVE.		SUPERLATIVE.
bien	well	mieux	better	le mieux	the best
mal	bad	pis	worse	le pis	the worst
peu	little	moins	less	le moins	the least

EXERCISE ON THESE ADVERBS.

Bourdaloüe and Masillon have both spoken very eloquently on evangelical truths; but the former has prin- cipally (proposed to himself) to convince the mind; the latter has generally had in view to touch the heart. Several of la Bruyère's characters are as finely drawn as they are deli- cately traced.

There are likewise various other sorts of adverbs:

OF	{	Affirmation,	as	Certes , certainly: oui , yes.
		Consent,	—	Soit , be it so; volontiers , willingly.
		Doubt,	—	Peut-être , perhaps.
		Denial,	—	non , ne , ne pas , ne point , no, not.†
OF	{	Order, or	{	Premièrement , first; secondement , 2dly, &c.
		Rank,		D'abord , at first; ensuite , après , afterwards; auparavant , before.
OF	{	Place, or	{	Où , where; ici , here; là , there; de-ça , on this side; de là , on that side; par-tout , every where; près , proche , near, nigh; loin , far, &c.†

OF CONJUNCTIONS.

The conjunction is a word which serves to connect words, or sentences, as, Il pleure et rit en même temps, he cries and laughs at the same time; the word et unites the first sentence, il pleure, with the second, il rit. Likewise in Pierre et Paul rient, Peter and Paul laugh; the word et unites these two sentences into one, Pierre rit and Paul rit.

There are different kinds of conjunctions.

To unite two words under the same affirmation, or under the same negation, et is used for the affirmation, and ni, neither, nor, for the negation.

To denote an alternative, or distinction, ou, either, or; soit, que, whether, or; tantôt, sometimes, &c.

Interjections are words, which serve to express the sudden emotions of the soul. The only point to be attended to, is not to place them between words which custom has made inseparable. There are interjections for every feeling, viz.

PART II.

THE SYNTAX,

OR

WORDS CONSIDERED IN THEIR CONSTRUCTION.

CHAP. I.

§ I.

OF THE SUBSTANTIVE.

THERE are some substantives which are never used in the plural; such are—1. The names of metals, considered in their original state; as, l'or, gold, le platine, platina. 2. The names of virtues and vice; as, la chasteté, chastity, l'ivrognerie, drunkenness. 4. Some words of a physical or moral nature; as, l'ouïe, hearing, l'odorat, smelling, le sang, blood, le sommeil, sleep, la pauvreté, poverty. .4. The infinitive of verbs and adjectives used substantively, together with some other words, which cannot be reduced to any particular class.

Others, on the contrary, which likewise cannot be reduced to any particular class, are never used in the singular; as, Annales, annals; ancêtres, ancestors, mouchettes, snuffers, &c.

§ II.

OF COMPOUND NOUNS.

Of the formation of their plural.

1. When a noun is compounded of a substantive and an adjective, they both take the sign of the plural; as, un gentilhomme, a nobleman; des gentilshommes, noblemen.

2. When a noun is compounded of two substantives, united by a preposition, the first only takes the sign of the plural; as, arc-en-ciel, a rainbow; des arcs-en-ciel, rainbows.

3. When a noun is compounded of a preposition, or verb, and a substantive, the substantive alone is put in the plural; as, un entre-sol, (a low room between two floors,) des entre-sols; un garde-fou (rails on bridges,) des garde-fous.

REMARK. There is a small number of substantives composed of a verb and an adverb; as, un passe-partout, a master or general key; or of a verb repeated; as, passe-passe, sleight of hand: they never take the sign of the plural.

CHAP. II.

OF THE ARTICLE.

1. The difficulty attendant on rendering into French the a or an, which precedes a substantive when it follows the verb to be, will easily be removed by examining whether that substantive be restricted by a particular idea; if it be not restricted, the a or an is not expressed in French; thus, I am a Frenchman, I am a prince, must be translated by je suis Français, je suis prince. But if it be restricted, then the a or an must be expressed by the word un placed before the substantive, as, I am a Frenchman of an illustrious family, I am a very unfortunate prince, must be translated by je suis un Français d'une illustre maison, je suis un prince très-malheureux.

2. When the verb être is preceded by the demonstrative ce, in phrases of this kind, un is always required before the substantive, as, c'est un trésor, &c.

3. The French do not use the article before substantives, expressing the quality of a preceding noun: though, in cases of this kind, the English usually employ the article the, and still more frequently a, or an; as, Télémaque, fils d'Ulysse, roi d'Ithaque, Telemachus, the son of Ulysses, king of Ithaca; le Duc d'York, prince du sang, the Duke of York, a prince of the blood.

§ III.

ON MEASURE, WEIGHT, &c.

1. The English make use of a, or an, before nouns of measure, weight, and purchase; as, wheat is sold for a crown a bushel; butter sells for sixpence a pound; wine sold yesterday for forty crowns a hogshead, 'tis more than a groat a bottle. But the French make use of the article le, la, as, le blé se vend un écu le boisseau; le beurre se vend six sous la livre; le vin se vendit hier quarante écus le muid, c'est plus de quatre sous la bouteille.

2. When speaking of time, a or an is expressed in French by the preposition par, as, so much a week, tant par semaine.

3. In English, a is sometimes put between the pronoun which expresses admiration, and the substantive that accompanies it, as, what a beauty! but, in French, the un is never expressed in similar cases, as, quelle beauté!

4. In English, when the adverbs more and less are repeated to express a comparison, they must be preceded by the article, as, the more difficult a thing is, the more honourable it is. But, in French, the article is omitted, as plus une chose est difficile, plus elle est honorable.†

CHAP. III.

OF THE ADJECTIVE.

It has been said (p. 97), that an adjective agrees in gender and number with the substantive which it qualifies; from this rule, however, must be excepted nu, bare, and demi, half, when placed before a substantive, and feu, late, when before the article or a pronominal adjective, as, il va nu-pieds, he goes barefoot; je suis à vous dans une demi-heure, I will be with you in half an hour; feu la reine, the late queen; feu ma mère, my late mother. But the agreement takes place, if nu and demi be placed after the substantive, and feu between the article or pronominal adjective and the substantive, as, il a les pieds nus, his feet are bare; je suis à vous dans une heure et demie, I will be with you in an hour and a half; la feue reine, ma feue mère.

2. An adjective frequently serves to qualify two or more substantives, expressing either persons, or things of different genders.

If it be used to qualify more than two substantives, it must agree with them; for, either these substantives perform the office of subject, as, la grammaire, la logique, et la rhétorique, méthodiquement enseignées, ne s'oublient guère, grammar, logic, and rhetoric, when taught with method, are seldom forgotten; or they constitute the regimen, as, c'est un homme d'une valeur, d'une vertu, et d'une fidélité, éprouvées, he is a man of tried courage, virtue, and fidelity.

If it be used to qualify only two substantives, the substantive of persons must be distinguished from the substantive of things; with the first, the rules of agreement are to be observed in all cases: with the second, custom allows, when the substantives form the regimen, to make the adjective agree with the last only; as, elle avoit les yeux et la bouche ouverte. Nevertheless, modern grammarians prefer the agreement, even in this case.

3. With respect to phrases like the following, les langues Anglaise et Française sont fort cultivées, though they are in opposition to the rules of grammar, yet, it is allowable to use them. However, in strict propriety, it seems better to say, la langue Française et l'Anglaise sont très-cultivées.†

II.

DIFFERENCE OF CONSTRUCTION BETWEEN THE ENGLISH AND FRENCH LANGUAGES.

1. In English, the substantive of measure is placed before the substantive, or adjective expressing the dimensions, as, a tower two hundred feet high, or in height. In French, the word which expresses dimension, is placed first, if it be an adjective, and the preposition de be added to it as a regimen, as une tour haute de deux cents pieds. But, if it be a substantive, or an adjective used substantively, it is placed after, with the preposition de, either before the noun of measure, or of dimension, as: une tour de deux cents pieds de haut, or de hauteur. This last mode is the most elegant.

OF THE PRONOUNS.

§ I.

OF THE PERSONAL PRONOUNS.

Of the Place of Personal Pronouns.—See p. 102.

There is no difficulty in placing personal pronouns, when they act as subjects: the person who speaks always names himself last, and the person addressed is generally named first.

EXAMPLES.

Vous et moi, nous irons à la campagne, You and I will go into the country.
Nous irons ce soir à la promenade, vous, votre frère, et moi, Will you take a walk this evening, you, your brother, and I.

RULE. The pronouns il and ils always represent a substantive masculine, il, if it be singular; and ils, if it be plural; and elle and elles, on the contrary, represent a substantive feminine, elle, if it be singular; elles, if plural.

Thus in speaking of the rose; we should say, elle a un parfum exquis, aussi est-elle la fleur la plus recherchée, it has an exquisite fragrance, and is indeed the choicest of flowers; because rose is feminine and singular; and in speaking of several ladies: elles ont autant de modestie que de beauté, d'esprit et de grâce, they have as much modesty as they have beauty, wit, and accomplishments; because dames is feminine and plural.†

With respect to pronouns, when used as a regimen, custom has established the following rules:

RULE I. The pronouns me, te, se, leur, le, la, les, y, and en, are generally placed before verbs, as are nous, vous, and lui, when without a preposition.

EXAMPLES.

Il me dit	he tells me	Je lui parle	I speak to him

RULE II. The pronouns moi, toi, soi, nous, vous, lui, eux, elle, and elles, are placed after verbs, when they are preceded by a preposition.

EXAMPLES.

Cela dépend de moi,	That depends on me.
Je pense à toi,	I think of thee.
On s'occupe trop de soi,	We are too attentive to ourselves.
Que dites-vous d'eux ?	What do you say of them ?

RULE III. In imperative phrases, when affirmative, moi, toi, nous, vous, lui, leur, eux, elle, elles, le, la, les, y, and en, are placed after verbs; but, with a negation, REM. If the pronouns me, te, moi, toi, intervene betwixt an imperative and an infinitive, me, te, are used when the imperative is without a regimen direct.

EXAMPLES.

Venez me parler,	Come and speak to me.
Va te faire coiffer,	Go and get thy hair dressed.

But moi, toi, are used if the imperative have a regimen direct.

EXAMPLES.

Laissez-moi faire,	Let me do it.
Fais-toi coiffer,	Get thy hair dressed.

2. If moi, toi, when placed after the imperative, be followed by the pronoun en, they are changed into me, te.

EXAMPLES.

Donnez-m'en,	Give me some.	Retourne-t'en,	Go back.
---------------------	---------------	-----------------------	----------

3. When there are two imperatives joined together by the conjunctions et, ou, it is most elegant to place the second pronoun before the verb.

Ne leur en, etc.	Apporte-y, etc. Apporte-l'y. Ne l'y, etc. Apporte-y en. N'y en, etc.

RULE IV. When several pronouns accompany a verb, me, te, se, nous, vous, must be placed first; le, la, les, before lui, leur; and y before en, which is always the last.

EXAMPLES.

Prêtez-moi ce livre; je vous le Lend me that book; I will rerendrai demain; si vous me turn it to you to-morrow; if le refusez, je saurai m'en pas- you refuse me, I can make ser, shift without it.

Aurez-vous la force de le leur Will you have resolution dire? enough to mention it to them?

Il n'a pas voulu vous y mener, He would not take you there.

Je vous y en porterai, I will bring you some there.

EXCEPTION. In an imperative sentence, when affirmative, le, la, les, are always placed first, as, donnez-le-moi, give it me, offrez-la-lui, offer it to him; conduisez-les-y, conduct them thither; and moi is placed after y, as, menez-y-moi, carry me thither; but nous will precede y, as, menez-nous-y, take us thither.‡

Repeat to them continually, that, without honesty, one can never succeed in the world. Do not repeat to them continually the same things. Acknowledge him as your master, and obey REMARK. The word même is sometimes added to the pronouns moi, toi, soi, nous, vous, eux, lui, elle, elles, to specify the person, or thing spoken of.

EXAMPLES.

Ils se sont perdus eux-mêmes,	They have ruined themselves.
Le monde estime bien des choses	The world prizes many things
qui, en elles-mêmes, sont fort	which, in themselves, are
méprisables,	worthless.

II.

OF THE RELATIVE PRONOUNS.—P. 113.

The relative pronouns are qui, que, dont, lequel, &c. see p. 113.

RULE I. Qui, when a relative, is always of the number, gender, and person of its antecedent.

EXAMPLES.

Moi qui suis son fils,	I who am his son.
Toi qui es si jeune,	Thou who art so young.
L'enfant qui joue,	The child who plays.
Nous qui étudions,	We who study.
Vous qui riez,	You who laugh.
Les livres qui instruisent,	The books which instruct.

In the first example, qui is singular, and of the first person, because the pronoun moi is in the singular, and of the first person. In the second, it is singular, and of the second person, for a similar reason, &c. ¶

¶ EXERCISE.

RULE II. Que, when a relative, is of the number and gender of its antecedent.

EXAMPLES.

C'est moi que l'on demande,	It is I whom they ask for.
C'est toi qu'on appelle,	It is thou whom they call.
La femme que je vois si bien parée,	The woman whom I see so well dressed.
C'est nous que vous offensez,	It is we whom you offend.
C'est vous que je cherche,	It is you I am seeking.
Les dames que vous voyez,	The ladies whom you see.†

Dont sometimes represents dequi, duquel, de laquelle, desquels, desquelles, and even de quoi.

OBSERVE 1.—That qui, que, and dont, may equally apply to persons and things; but qui, preceded by a preposition, can never apply to things; in this case, lequel, duquel, auquel, &c. must be used.

2.—Lequel, laquelle, &c. apply both to persons and things; but—quoi applies only to things.

The adverb où is likewise employed as a relative pronoun, for dans lequel, auquel, dans laquelle, &c.

EXAMPLES.

Voilà le but où il tend, That is the object he has in view.
Ce sont des affaires, où je suis embarrassé, Those are affairs with which I am perplexed.

REMARK. Où admits the prepositions de and par.

EXAMPLES.

§ III.

OF PRONOUNS ABSOLUTE.—p. 114.

See p. 114, the pronouns absolute, qui, que, quoi, quel, lequel.

Qui signifies quel homme, what man; quelle personne, what person.

EXAMPLES.

Qui vous a dit cela ? Who told you that ?

J'ignore qui a fait cela, I don't know who did that.

Que signifies quelle chose, what thing.

EXAMPLES.

Que dit-on ? What do they say ?

Je ne sais qu'en penser, I don't know what to think of it.

Quoi has the signification of que.

EXAMPLES.

A quoi s'occupe-t-on ? What are they engaged in ?

Dites-moi en quoi je puis vous servir, Tell me how I can serve you.

REM. If que, or quoi, be followed by an adjective, it requires the preposition de before that adjective.

In interrogations, or after a verb, quel is used to ask the name, or qualities of a person, or thing.

EXAMPLES.

Quel homme est-ce ?

What man is it ?

Quel temps fait-il ?

What weather is it ?

Je ne sais quel homme c'est,

I don't know what man it is.

Il sait quel parti prendre,

He knows what steps to pursue.

The adverb où, it has been already seen, is employed as a relative pronoun ; it is likewise used as a kind of absolute pronoun.

Où represents en quel endroit, in what place, or à quoi, to what.

EXAMPLES.

Où allez-vous ?

Where are you going ?

Où cela nous mènera-t-il ?

Where will that take us ?

J'ignore où l'on me conduit,

I don't know where they are taking me.

Il n'a pas prévu où cette conduite le menerait,

He did not foresee where such conduct would lead him.

REMARK I. When où is preceded by the preposition de, it marks the place, or cause, spoken of.

EXAMPLES.

D'où vient-il ?

Where does he come from ?

D'où sa haine procède-t-elle ?

Whence proceeds his hatred ?

REMARK II. Où preceded by the preposition par, signifies through what place, or by what means.

EXAMPLES.

Par où avez-vous passé?

Which way did you come?

Par où me tirerais-tu d'affaire?

Which way shall I extricate myself?

Voilà par où j'ai passé,

This is the way I came.

Je ne sais par où je me tirerai d'affaire,

I don't know which way I shall extricate myself.

By the manner in which these pronouns are employed, it will be seen they are only interrogative, when at the beginning of a sentence, and, consequently, the most proper name for them is that of pronouns absolute.†

§ IV.

OF DEMONSTRATIVE PRONOUNS.—P. 115.

Ce, cette, ces, are often joined to the adverbs of place, ci, here, and là, there, in order to point out in a more precise manner the thing spoken of, the demonstrative pronoun is then placed before the substantive, and ci and là after it.

EXAMPLES.

Ce livre-ci this book Cet homme-là that man
Cette fleur-ci this flower Ces femmes-là those women

Celui, celle, ceux, celles, are followed by the preposition de, when placed before a substantive, and by a pronoun relative, when placed before a verb.

EXAMPLES.

Les maladies de l'âme sont plus dangereuses que celles du corps, The disorders of the mind are more dangerous than those of the body.
L'homme dont je vous ai parlé, est celui que vous voyez, The man of whom I spoke to you is he whom you see.
De toutes les choses du monde, c'est celle que j'aime le moins, Of all the things in the world, it is that which I like least.

REMARK. The pronouns celui, celle, ceux, celles, when followed by a pronoun relative, are expressed in English, by the personal pronouns, he, she, they, or by that which, those which, such as, &c. ¶ but that cannot succeed.

-là ne saurait réussir.

Celui-ci and celui-là adopt the gender and number of the substantives whose place they supply. When opposed to each other, celui-ci marks the nearest object and celui-là the remotest.

EXAMPLE.

Celui-ci plait, mais celui-là cap- This pleases, but that captitive, vates.

Ci and là coalesce with ce, and form two other demonstrative pronouns, ceci and cela, the first of which signifies cette chose-ci, this object; the second, cette chose-là, that object.

They may be used singly; but when they are opposed to each other, ceci expresses the nearest object, and cela the remotest.

EXAMPLE.

Je n'aime point ceci, donnez- I don't like this, give me that.
moi cela,

REMARK. When cela is alone, and not opposed to the pronoun ceci, it refers, like this last, to an object pointed to.

EXAMPLES.

Que dites-vous de cela? What do you say of that?
Cela est fort beau, † That is very handsome.

§ V.

OF INDEFINITE PRONOUNS.

FIRST CLASS.

Of those that are never joined to a Substantive.—p. 116.

Quelqu'un means un, une, one.

EXAMPLES.

Nous attendons des hommes, il en viendra quelqu'un, We expect men, some one will come.

Plusieurs femmes m'ont promis de venir, il en viendra quelqu'une, Several ladies have promised me to come, some one of them will come.

Quelqu'un, taken absolutely and substantively, is of both genders, and means une personne, a person.

EXAMPLE.

J'attends ici quelqu'un, I wait here for somebody.

Quelques-uns signifies plusieurs dans un plus grand nombre, several out of a great number.

EXAMPLES.

Quelques-uns assurent, Some people affirm.

Entre les nouvelles qu'il a débitées, il y en a quelques-unes de vraies, Among the reports he has circulated, several are true.

Quiconque, whoever, signifies quelque personne que ce soit, qui que ce soit, any person whatever. It takes no plural, and is never used but of persons.

EXAMPLE.

Ce discours s'adresse à quiconque est coupable, This speech is addressed to whoever is guilty.

Chacun, each, every one, is used either distributively, or collectively. It has no plural.

Distributively, it means chaque personne, chaque chose, each person, or thing. It is then used likewise in the feminine, and requires the preposition de after it.

EXAMPLES.

Chacun de nous vit à sa mode, Each of us lives as he pleases.

Voyez séparément chacune de ces médailles. Look at each of these medals separately.

Collectively, it signifies toute personne, every person.

EXAMPLE.

Chacun a ses défauts,†

Every body has his faults.

Autrui, means les autres personnes, other people: it only applies to persons, is never accompanied by an adjective, has no plural, and is never used in a sentence without being preceded by a preposition.

EXAMPLE.

La charité se réjouit du bonheur d'autrui,

Charity rejoices in the happiness of others.

Personne, which is always masculine and singular, means nul, qui que ce soit, nobody, whosoever. In this sense, it is preceded or followed by the negative ne, which is placed after personne, when this word stands before the verb; and before the verb, when personne stands after. The same observation applies to rien.

EXAMPLES.

Il ne faut nuire à personne, We must injure nobody.
Personne n'est assuré de vivre jusqu'au lendemain, Nobody is certain of living till to-morrow.

REM. I. The negative is sometimes understood, as, y a-t-il quelqu'un ici? is there any body here? personne, nobody. Personne stands for il n'y a personne, there is nobody here.

REM. II. In interrogative phrases without negation, or in those expressing doubt, personne signifies quelqu'un, any body.

EXAMPLES.

Personne oserait-il nier? Would any body dare deny?
Je doute que personne soit assez hardi, I doubt whether any body be bold enough.

REM. III. When personne is placed in the second member of a comparison, it means any body.

EXAMPLE.

Cette place lui convient mieux qu'à personne, That place suits him better than any body.

Rien, nothing, which is masculine and singular, is used with, or without, a negation. When with a negation, it means nulle chose, nothing.

EXAMPLE.

Il ne s'attache à rien de solide, He applies himself to nothing fixed.

When used without a negation, it means quelque chose, something.

EXAMPLE.

Je doute que rien soit plus propre à faire impression que, &c. I doubt whether any thing be more suited to make an impression than, &c.

The negation is sometimes understood, que vous à coûté cela? rien, how much did you pay for it? nothing.

It always requires the preposition de before the adjective, or participle, that follows it, and then the verb is understood, as is likewise the negation, as, rien de beau que le vrai, nothing is noble but truth. ¶

SECOND CLASS.

Of those which are always joined to a Substantive.—p. 118.

Quelque, some, signifies un, une, entre plusieurs, one out of several; it is of both genders, and takes the number of the substantive.

EXAMPLE.

Adressez-vous à quelque autre personne, Apply to somebody else.

Chaque, each, every, which is of both genders, has no plural.

EXAMPLE.

Chaque pays a ses coutumes, Each country has its customs.

Quelconque, aucun, any, quel que ce soit, whatever it be; quel qu'il soit, whoever he be, is of both genders, and always is placed after a substantive; when used with a negative it is always singular.

EXAMPLE.

Il ne veut se soumettre à aucune autorité quelconque, He will submit to no authority whatever.

Certain, signifies quelque, certain, some. In this sense it is used alike of persons and things; but it is always placed before the substantive.

EXAMPLE.

J'ai ouï dire à certain homme, I have heard some man say.
à un certain homme,

Un, une, a, or an, when used indeterminately for quelque, certain, some person, or some thing, takes the gender of the substantive to which it is joined.

EXAMPLES.

J'ai vu un homme qui courait, I saw a man who was running.
Je me suis promené dans une grande et belle prairie,† I walked in a large fine meadow.

THIRD CLASS.

Of those which are sometimes joined to a Substantive, and sometimes not.—page 119.

Nul, and pas un, not any, not one, are employed either alone, or in conjunction with a substantive. They are accompanied by the negation, assume the feminine, but have no plural, and may be followed by the preposition de.

EXAMPLES.

Nul de tous ceux qui y ont été Not one of those who went n'en est revenu, there has returned.
Pas un ne croit cette nouvelle, Not one believes that intelligence.
Je n'en ai nulle connaissance, I have no knowledge of it.
Il n'y a pas une seule personne There is not a single person that qui le croie. believes it.

Aucun signifies nul, no, not any, when accompanied by a negation, and may be followed by the preposition de.

EXAMPLE.

Vous n'avez aucun moyen de You have no means of succeeding réussir dans cette affaire, in that affair.

This pronoun is seldom employed in the plural, except before substantives, which, in some particular sense, are better employed in the plural.

EXAMPLE.

Il n'a fait aucunes dispositions, He has made no dispositions.

REM. Aucun may be employed without a negation in interrogative sentences, or those which express doubt, or exclusion.

EXAMPLES.

Aucun homme fut-il jamais plus Was ever any man more successful?
heureux?
On doute qu'aucune de ces affaires They doubt whether any of réussisse, those affairs will succeed.
Le plus beau morceau d'éloquence The finest piece of eloquence qu'il y ait dans aucune langue, that exists in any language, &c. &c.

Autre. other, expresses a difference between two objects, or between one and several; as, quelle autre chose souhaitez-vous de moi? what else do you wish of me?

REM. Autre is sometimes used to express a person but indeterminate; as, j'aime mieux que vous l'appreniez de tout autre que de moi, I had rather you learn it of any other person than me.

Un is sometimes opposed to autre; in which case, these two words are preceded by the article, supply the place of the substantives to which they relate, adopt their gender and number, and form the pronouns l'un l'autre, l'un et l'autre, and ni l'un ni l'autre.

L'un l'autre, each other, one another, applies both to persons and things: it takes both gender and number, and requires the article before the two words of which it is composed. If there be any preposition, it must be placed before the last. When these two words are used in conjunction, they express a reciprocal relation between several persons or things.

EXAMPLE.

Il faut se secourir l'un l'autre, We ought to assist each other.

When used separately, they denote a difference.

EXAMPLE.

Les passions s'entendent les unes avec les autres ; si l'on se laisse aller aux unes, on attire bientôt les autres, Our passions have a relation with each other: if we indulge some, the others will soon follow.

REM. In the latter case l'un is used for the person or thing first mentioned, and l'autre for the person or thing last spoken of.

L'un et l'autre, both; these two words mark union. They require the verb to be in the plural.

EXAMPLE.

L'une et l'autre sont bonnes, Both are good.

Ni l'un ni l'autre, neither; these two words on the contrary mark separation. The verb must be in the plural.

EXAMPLE.

Ni l'un ni l'autre n'ont fait leur devoir,† Neither has done his duty.

ne penser que * soit

Même signifies qui n'est pas autre, which is not different. It is of both genders, and takes the plural.

EXAMPLES.

C'est le même homme,	It is the same man.
La même personne,	The same person.
Ce sont les mêmes raisons,	They are the same reasons.
Ce poème est le même que celui dont je vous ai parlé,	This poem is the same that I was mentioning to you.

Tel means pareil, semblable, de même, such, like, similar. It takes both genders and both numbers.

EXAMPLES.

Un tel projet ne saurait réussir,	Such a scheme cannot succeed.
Il n'y a pas de tels animaux, de telles coutumes,	There are no such animals, no such customs.

When used alone, it either preserves its proper signification, or it expresses a person indeterminately.

EXAMPLES.

Vous ne sauriez me persuader rien de tel,	You cannot persuade me of any such thing.
Tel fait des libéralités, qui ne paie pas ses dettes,	The same man is liberal in giv- ing, who does not pay his debts.

Plusieurs, several, which is plural and of both genders, is used alike of persons and of things. When united to a substantive, or relating to it, it signifies an indeterminate number, without relation to another.

EXAMPLES.

Plusieurs motifs l'ont déterminé,	Several reasons determined him.
Je crois cela pour plusieurs rai- sons,	I believe that for several rea- sons.

But it is likewise used as a part of a greater number.

EXAMPLE.

Parmi un si grand nombre de gens, il y en eut plusieurs qui s'y opposèrent,	Out of so great a number of persons, several objected to it.
--	--

When plusieurs is employed absolutely as a substantive, it always means plusieurs personnes, several persons.

EXAMPLE.

Plusieurs aiment mieux mourir que de perdre leur réputation,	Many would rather die than forfeit their character.
---	--

Tout is used either alone, or with a substantive.

When employed alone, it signifies toutes choses, all things; toute sorte de choses, every kind of things.

EXAMPLE.

Tout nous abandonne au moment de la mort; il ne nous reste que nos bonnes œuvres, Every thing forsakes us at the moment of death; we retain nothing but our good works.

When united to a substantive, it is used either collectively, or distributively.

Considered collectively, tout signifies the totality of a thing, and is then followed by the article.

EXAMPLES.

Tout l'univers, The whole universe.
Tous les corps célestes, All the celestial bodies.

Considered distributively, tout signifies chaque, each; in this case, it is not accompanied by the article.

EXAMPLE.

Tout bien est désirable,† Every good is desirable.

FOURTH CLASS.

Of those which are followed by QUE.—P. 120.

Qui, que, whoever, is only said of persons, and signifies quelque personne que, whatever person; it requires the verb following to be in the subjunctive.

EXAMPLES.

Qui que ce soit qui ait fait cela,	Whoever has done that, is a
c'est un habile homme,	man of talent.
Qui que je sois,	Whoever I may be.
Qui que ç'aît été,	Whoever it may have been.
Qui que c'eût été,	Whoever it might have been.
Qui que ce puisse être,	Whoever it may be.

When qui que, followed by ce soit, is used with a negative, it signifies aucune personne, nobody; as, je n'y trouve qui que ce soit, I find nobody there.

Quoi que, whatever it be, is only used of things, and signifies quelque chose que, whatever thing; it requires also the verb following to be in the subjunctive.

EXAMPLES

Quoi que ce soit qu'il fasse, ou	Whatever he does or says, he
qu'il dise, on se défie de lui,	is distrusted.
Quoi que vous disiez, je le ferai,	Whatever you may say, I will do it.

REM. When quoi que, followed by ce soit, is used with a negation, it signifies aucune chose, not any thing.

EXAMPLE.

Sans application, on ne peut réussir en quoi que ce soit,†	Without application, it is impossible to succeed in any thing whatever.

Quel que signifies de quelque sorte, de quelque espèce que ce soit, of whatever sort, or kind it may be, when relating to things; or, qui que ce soit, whoever it may be, when relating to persons. It takes both gender and number according to the person, or thing, it relates to, and requires the subjunctive.

EXAMPLES.

Quelles que soient vos affaires, Whatever business you may have, come.
Je n'en excepte personne, quel qu'il soit, I except nobody, whoever he may be.

REM. Lequel que, whosoever, whichever, is also used; as, lequel des trois que vous choisissiez, peu m'importe, whichever of the three you choose, I care little.

Quelque—que, of both genders, when united to a substantive, signifies quel que soit le, quelle que soit la, &c., whatever be the, &c. It has both numbers, and requires the subjunctive.

EXAMPLES.

Quelque raison qu'on lui apporte, Whatever reason is adduced, he believes nothing about it.
Quelques efforts que vous fassiez, vous ne réussirez point, Whatever attempts you may make, you will never succeed.

When united to an adjective, it operates as an adverb, and signifies à quelque point que, however great a degree; it then neither takes gender, nor number.

Tout—que signifies quoique, encore que, though, quelque, however. On this occasion, tout is considered as an adverb, and is employed with adjectives of every kind, and even with some substantives.

EXAMPLES.

OF THE VERB.

Agreement of the Verb with the Subject.

The subject is that of which something is affirmed, and may always be known by the answer to this question, qui est-ce qui? who, or what is it? as, Pierre vit, Peter lives; l'oiseau vole, the bird flies; if it be asked, qui est-ce qui vit? who is it that lives? qui est-ce qui vole? what is it that flies? The answers Pierre and l'oiseau, shew that Pierre and l'oiseau are the subjects of the verbs vit and vole.

RULE. The verb must be of the same number and person as its subject.

Tu joues,	Thou playest.	Vous plaisantez,	You jest.

La vertu est aimable, virtue is amiable.

Ris is in the singular number, and the first person, because je, its subject, is in the singular, and the first person. Joues is in the singular, and the second person, as tu is in the singular, and the second person, &c. ¶

REM. I. When a verb has two subjects both singular, it is put in the plural.

EXAMPLE.

Mon père et ma mère m'aiment My father and mother love me tendrement,† tenderly.

Vous, votre frère, et moi, nous lisons ensemble la brochure nouvelle,	You, your brother, and I, read together the new pamphlet.
Vous et votre ami, vous viendrez avec moi,†	You and your friend will come with me.

REM. III. When a verb has the relative pronoun qui for its subject, it is put in the same number and person as the noun, or pronoun, to which qui relates.

EXAMPLES.

OF THE REGIMEN OF VERBS.

A verb is active, when it will admit after it quelqu'un, or quelque chose; and, the word, which is put after the verb, is called the regimen of that verb. Observe that this regimen may be known by asking the question, qu'est-ce que? It is called direct, and may be either a noun, or a pronoun.

RULE. When the regimen of the active verb is a noun, it is always placed after the verb; when it is a pronoun, it is generally placed before it.

EXAMPLE.

Ma mère aime tous ses enfans, My mother loves all her children.

Je vous aime, and not in English, J'aime vous, I love you,

Il m'aime, and not Il aime moi, he loves me.†

Besides this regimen direct, some active verbs may have a second, which is called indirect, and is marked by the words à or de.

EXAMPLES.

Il a fait un présent à sa sœur, He has made a present to his sister.

† EXERCISE ON THE REGIMEN OF VERBS.

Il accuse son ami d'imprudence. ‡ He accuses his friend of imprudence.

The second regimen is known by the answer to these questions; à qui? to whom? à quoi? to what? de qui? of whom? de quoi? of what?

EXAMPLES.

A qui a-t-il fait un présent? To whom did he make a present?
A sa sœur, To his sister.
De quoi accuse-t-il son ami? Of what does he accuse his friend?
D'imprudence, Of imprudence.

Passive verbs require de, or par, before the noun, or pronoun, that follows them.

EXAMPLES.

La souris est mangée par le chat, The mouse is eaten by the cat.
Un enfant sage est aimé de tout le monde, A good child is loved by every body.

The city of Troy was taken, plundered, and destroyed by the confederate Greeks, 1148 years before the Christian æra: this event has been celebrated by the two greatest poets of Greece and Italy. You will only be beloved, esteemed, and courted by men, (in proportion as) you join the qualities of the heart to those of the mind. OF THE NATURE AND USE OF MOODS AND TENSES.

Of the Indicative.

The indicative is that mood which simply declares and affirms a thing. It contains eight tenses, viz. the present, the imperfect, the preterit definite, the preterit indefinite, the preterit anterior, the pluperfect, the future simple, and the future anterior.

The present marks that a thing is now passing, that is, either existing, or doing.

EXAMPLES.

J'aime, I love. Ils jouent, They play.

The imperfect expresses a present with respect to something past.

EXAMPLE.

J'entrais au moment où vous sortiez, I came in at the moment you were going out.

Or it expresses something past, but habitual, without fixing the time of its duration.

EXAMPLE.

César était un habile général, Cæsar was an able general.

The preterit definite marks that a thing took place at a time completely past.

EXAMPLE.

J'écrivis hier à Rome, I wrote yesterday to Rome.

The preterit indefinite expresses a thing as having taken place at a time which is neither precise, nor determinate.

His work.	has pleased every	one, because it unites
ouvrage m.	à	art. monde joindre ties of sentiment.

art. pl.

EXAMPLE.

Il m'a fait un vrai plaisir en venant me voir, He has given me real pleasure by coming to see me.

Or at a time which is not absolutely past.

EXAMPLE.

J'ai vu cette semaine beaucoup de monde,† I have seen many people this week.

The preterit anterior expresses that a thing had taken place immediately before a time which is passed, and this tense is either definite, or indefinite. There is the same difference between its two forms, as between the two preterits, definite and indefinite.

EXAMPLES.

J'eus dîné hier à midi, I had dined yesterday at twelve.
Quand j'eus dîné hier, midi sonna, When I had dined yesterday, it struck twelve.
J'ai eu déjeûné ce matin à dix heures, I had done breakfast this morning at ten o'clock.

The pluperfect is that past tense which expresses a thing as having taken place at any period antecedent to the time when another thing happened; or it expresses a thing habitually done before another.

EXAMPLES.

J'avais soupé quand il entra, I had supped when he came in.
Lorsque j'étais à la campagne, When I was in the country, as dès que j'avais déjeûné, j'allais, soon as I had breakfasted, I à la chasse, used to go a hunting.

The future absolute, is that tense which expresses that an action or event will take place at a time which does not yet exist.

EXAMPLE.

J'irai demain à la campagne, I shall go to-morrow into the country.

The future anterior is the tense which expresses that at a time when a thing will take place, another thing will have already taken place.

EXAMPLE.

Quand j'aurai fini, je sortirai, When I have done, I shall go out.

OF THE CONDITIONAL.

The conditional is the mood which affirms on conditions; it has two tenses, the present and the past.

The present of the conditional is that tense which expresses that a thing would take place on certain conditions.

EXAMPLE.

Je ferais votre affaire avant peu, si elle dépendait uniquement de moi, I would settle your business before long, if it only depended upon me.

The past of the conditional is that tense which expresses that a thing would have taken place at a time which no longer exists, dependant on certain conditions.

EXAMPLE.

J'aurais, ou j'eusse fait votre affaire, si vous m'en aviez, ou m'en eussiez parlé,† I would have settled your business, if you had mentioned it to me.

OF THE IMPERATIVE.

The imperative is that mood which commands, exhorts, entreats, or reproves. It is a present with respect to the injunction, and a future with respect to the thing enjoined.

In many verbs a compound of the imperative may be used to express an injunction to have a thing done previously to another, as, ayez dîné avant que je revienne, have dined before I return.†

OF THE SUBJUNCTIVE.

The subjunctive, is that mood which expresses a subordination to what precedes. With this dependance it forms a sense, and none without. Je voudrais qu'il lût, forms sense, but qu'il lût, alone and unconnected, does not.

This mood contains four tenses, the present or future, the imperfect, the preterit, and the pluperfect.

The present and the future of the subjunctive can only be distinguished by the sense; in this phrase, il faut que je vous sois bien attaché pour venir vous voir par le temps qu'il fait, I must have a great esteem for you to come and see you in such weather as this; je sois, expresses a present time; but in this, je ne crois pas que vous obteniez cela de lui, I do not think you will obtain that of him, vous obteniez expresses a future, and stands for vous obtiendrez.

The imperfect, the preterit, and the pluperfect of the subjunctive express also a past, or future, according to circumstances: in this phrase, soupçonnez-vous qu'il ne le fît pas, did you suspect he would not do it, fît expresses a past; but in this, je désirerais qu'il vît du monde, I wish him to see company, vît marks a future. ¶

OF THE INFINITIVE.

The infinitive is that mood which affirms indeterminately without either number, or person.

It denotes of itself, neither present, past, nor future, except when it follows other verbs. The present always expresses a present, relative to the preceding verb; as, je le vois, je le vis, je le verrai venir, I see, I saw, I shall see him come. The past always expresses a past, relative to the verb that precedes it, je crois, je croyais l'avoir vu venir, I think, I thought that I had seen him coming. To express a future, the infinitive must be preceded by the infinitive of the verb devoir; as, je croyais devoir y aller, I thought I was to go there.

REMARK. The infinitive also expresses a future after the verbs permettre, espérer, compter, s'attendre, and menacer; as, il promet de venir (qu'il viendra.) he promises to come (that he will come;) il menace de s'y rendre (qu'il s'y rendra.) he threatens to go (that he will go) there.†

OF THE PARTICIPLE.

The participle is a part of the verb which partakes of the properties both of a verb and an adjective; of a verb, as it has its signification and regimen, of an adjective, as it expresses the quality of a person, or thing.

There are two participles, the participle present, and the participle past.

OF THE PARTICIPLE PRESENT.

The participle present always terminates in ant; as, aimant, finissant, recevant, rendant.

EXERCISE ON THE PARTICIPLE PRESENT.

That mountain being very high, and thus commanding a élevé ainsi dominer sur grande étendue pays ind-2 * propre à

RULE. The participle present remains unchanged, and takes neither gender nor number when it expresses an action, as, une montagne, or des montagnes dominant sur des plaines immenses, a mountain, or mountains commanding immense plains; un homme, des hommes, une femme, des femmes lisant, parlant, marchant, a man, men, a woman, women reading, speaking, walking. But when, like an adjective, it expresses simply a quality, it takes both the gender and number of its substantive; as, un homme obligeant, an obliging man; une femme obligeante, an obliging woman; des tableaux parlans, speaking portraits; la religion dominante, the established religion; à la nuit tombante, at night fall.

What grammarians call gerund, is nothing but the participle present, to which the word en is prefixed; on se forme l'esprit en lisant de bons livres, we form our minds by reading good books.

OF THE PARTICIPLE PAST.

The participle past has various terminations ; as, aimé, fini, reçu, ouvert, dissous, &c.

This participle may either agree with its subject, or its regimen.

AGREEMENT OF THE PARTICIPLE PAST WITH ITS SUBJECT.

RULE I. The participle past, when accompanied by the auxiliary verb être, agrees with its subject in gender and number.

EXAMPLE.

Mon frère est tombé,	My brother is fallen.
Mes frères sont tombés,	My brothers are fallen.
Ma sœur est tombée,	My sister is fallen.
Mes sœurs sont tombées,	My sisters are fallen.

RULE II. The participle past, when it follows the verb avoir, never agrees with its subject.

Mes frères ont écrit,	My brothers have written.
Ma sœur a écrit,	My sister has written.
Mes sœurs ont écrit,	My sisters have written.
Les Amazones ont acquis de la célébrité,	The Amazons have acquired celebrity.
J'ai contraint les soldats à marcher,	I have forced the soldiers to march.

REMARK. The participle of the verb être, and of all the neuter verbs which are conjugated with the auxiliary verb avoir, never vary, as, il or elle a été, he, or she has been; ils or elles ont été, they have been; il or elle a dormi, he, or she has slept; ils or elles ont nui, they have annoyed. ¶

AGREEMENT OF THE PARTICIPLE PAST WITH ITS REGIMEN.

RULE I. The participle past always agrees with its regimen direct, when that regimen is placed before the participle, whether the auxiliary verb that accompanies it be avoir, or être.

EXAMPLES.

Les écoliers que j'ai eus, ont fait de grands progrès,	The pupils, whom I have had, have made rapid progress.
Lucrece s'est tuée,	Lucretia has killed herself.
J'ai renvoyé les livres que vous m'aviez prêtés,	I have sent back the books which you had lent me.
Que de soins je me suis donnés!	What pains I have taken!
Quelle affaire avez-vous entreprise?	What business have you undertaken?
Quand la race de Caïn se fut multipliée,	When the race of Cain had multiplied.
Ces yeux que n'ont émus ni soupirs ni terreur,	Those eyes which neither sighs nor terror have moved.
Le Dieu Mercure est un de ceux que les anciens ont le plus multipliés,	The God Mercury is one of those whom the ancients have multiplied the most.

EXERCISE ON THE AGREEMENT OF THE PARTICIPLE PAST WITH ITS REGIMEN.

All the letters which I have received, confirm that important news. The agitated life which I have led till now, makes me sigh for retirement. The difficulties present, makes me sigh for retirement. The difficulties which the academies (have proposed to one another) do not seem easy to (be resolved.) The sciences which you have studied, will prove infinitely useful (to you.) The death which Lucretia (gave herself), has (made her immortal.) The cities which those nations have (built for themselves) are but a collection of huts. The persons whom you have seen, are a collection of huts. The persons whom you have seen, are a collection of huts.

REM. The regimen which precedes the participle is, either one of these pronouns, que, me, te, se, le, la, les, nous, and vous, or a noun sometimes joined to the pronoun quel, sometimes preceded by the word of quantity, combien, or que, signifying combien, how much, as may be seen in the examples already given.†

RULE II. The participle past never agrees with its regimen, either when that participle is without regimen direct, or when, having a regimen direct, that regimen is placed after it.

RULE III. The participle past takes neither gender nor number, when the participle and the auxiliary verb to which it is joined are used impersonally, nor when that participle is followed by a verb, which governs the pronouns, or pronouns preceding it.

EXAMPLES.

Les chaleurs excessives qu'il a fait cet été, ont beaucoup nui à la récolte,	The excessive heats, which we have had this summer, have done great injury to the corn.

se donner * rendez-vous.

Elle s'est laissé séduire,

She has suffered herself to be seduced.

REMARK. To make a right application of the second part of this rule, we ought to examine whether we can put the regimen immediately after the participle. As we cannot say; J'ai fait la maison, vous avez entendu les vertus, vous n'avez pas voulu les mathématiques, it follows that the regimen belongs to the second verb. Sometimes, however, the regimen may relate either to the participle, or to the following verb, according to the meaning of the speaker. Thus, Je l'ai vu peindre, means, I saw her picture drawn; but Je l'ai vue peindre, signifies, I saw her painting.

Sometimes it happens likewise, that, in sentences which seem to resemble each other, the regimen in one belongs to the participle, and in the other, to the verb which follows it. For instance, this question, Avez-vous entendu chanter la nouvelle actrice? Have you heard the new actress sing? should be thus answered, Oui je l'ai entendue chanter, yes, I have: but this question, Avez-vous entendu chanter la nouvelle ariette? Have you heard the new song? must be answered, Oui, je l'ai entendu chanter, yes, I have.†

† EXERCISE.

The great changes which (have taken place) in administration, have astonished many people. The heavy rains which we have had in the spring, have been the cause of many diseases. The scarcity which there was last winter, has afforded the opportunity of doing much good. What news has reached you? How many imprudent steps were taken on that occasion! How many large ships have been built in England within these fifty years! The figures which you have learned to draw are of great beauty. We

CHAP. VI.

OF THE ADVERBS.

Situation of the Adverbs.

RULE I. In the simple tenses, the adverb is generally placed after the verb; and, in the compound tenses, between the auxiliary and the participle.

EXAMPLES.

L'homme le plus éclairé est ordinairement celui qui pense le plus modestement de lui-même. Avez-vous jamais vu un pédant plus absurde et plus vain ?

The man who is most learned is generally he who thinks most modestly of himself. Have you ever seen a pedant more absurd and more vain?

Compound adverbs, and those which have preserved the regimen of the adjectives from which they are derived, are placed always after the verb, as,

EXAMPLES.

C'est à la mode,	That is fashionable.
Il a agi conséquemment,	He has acted consistently.

Adverbs which denote time in an indeterminate manner are likewise placed after the verb.

EXAMPLES.

Il eût fallu se lever plus matin, It would have been necessary to rise earlier.

On a vu cela autrefois, That has been seen formerly.

EXCEPTIONS. 1. Adverbs of order, rank, and those which express a determinate time, are placed either before or after the verb.

ought never to swerve from the good path which we falloir ind-1 * s'éloigner route f. on expliquer sembler saisir see that I have not (been mistaken) respecting the affairs which se tromper ind-4

 I had foreseen you would have in hand.
prévoir que * *

EXAMPLES.

Nous devons premièrement faire notre devoir ; secondement, chercher les plaisirs permis, We ought, first, to do our duty; secondly, enjoy lawful pleasures.
Aujourd'hui il fait beau ; il pleuvra peut-être demain, To-day, it is fine ; it will rain perhaps to-morrow.

2. These adverbs, comment, où, d'où, par où, combien, pourquoi, quand, used with, or without interrogation, are always placed before the verb which they modify.

EXAMPLES.

Comment vous portez-vous ? How do you do ?
Où allez-vous ? Where are you going ? [it.
Il ne sait comment s'y prendre, He does not know how to set about RULE II. The adverb is always placed before the adjective which it modifies.

EXAMPLE.

C'est une femme fort belle, très sensible, et infiniment sage, She is a woman very beautiful, of great sensibility, and infinitely prudent.

RULE III. Adverbs of quantity and comparison, and the three adverbs of time, souvent, toujours, jamais, are placed before the other adverbs.

EXAMPLES.

Si poliment, fort poliment, So politely, very politely.
Très-heureusement, Very happily.
Le plus adroitement, The most skilful.
Ils ne seront jamais étroitement unis, They never will be intimately united.
Ils sont toujours ensemble, They are always together.
C'est souvent à l'improviste qu'il arrive, He often comes unexpectedly.

Souvent may, however, be preceded by an adverb of quantity, or comparison, as, si souvent, assez souvent, fort souvent, plus souvent, moins souvent, trop souvent.

REM. When adverbs of quantity and comparison meet together in a sentence, the following is the order which custom has established.

Si peu	Bien peu	Beaucoup *	trop	Tant mieux
Trop peu	Bien plus	Beaucoup plus	»	Tant pis,
Très-peu	Bien davantage	Beaucoup moins		&c.

* Beaucoup is not, as the English much, susceptible of being modified by any adverb preceding, thus, très-beaucoup, trop beaucoup, &c. would be barbarism.

When biën stands before another adverb, it means very, much, &c. as in the preceding and following examples.

Bien assez, Quite enough. Frapper bien fort, To strike very hard.
Bien moins, Much less. Bien tard, Very late.

But when it is placed after the adverb, it signifies well; as,

Assez bien, Pretty well. Fort bien, Very well.
Moins bien, Not so well. Aussi bien, As well.

These rules have been sufficiently exemplified. p. 143.

CHAP. VII.

OF THE CONJUNCTIONS.

The conjunction que serves to complete a comparison; it is elliptically used to express a restriction, when placed after ne, and it generally gives grace, energy, and precision to sentences.

EXAMPLE.

QUE	expressing comparison	L'Asie est plus grande que l'Europe.	Asia is larger than Europe.
	for rien que	On ne parle que de la nouvelle victoire.	They talk of nothing but the new victory.
	—je souhaite que	Qu'il vive, pour je souhaite qu'il vive.	May he live, for I wish that he may live.
	—à moins que	Cela ne finira pas qu'il ne vienne.	There will be no end to it, unless he come.
	—sans que	Qu'il fasse le moindre excès, il est malade.	If he commits the least excess, he is ill.
	—dès que
	—aussitôt que
	—si, or quand
	—soit que	Qu'il perde, ou qu'il gagne son procès, c'est un homme ruiné.	Whether he gains or loses his lawsuit, he is a ruined man.
	—jusqu'à ce que	Attendez qu'il vienne.	Wait till he comes.

QUE	for pourquoi ?	{ Que ne se cor- rige-t-il ?	{ Why does he not re- form ?
	— comme	Méchant qu'il est.	Wicked as he is.
		Que Dieu est grand !	How great is the Al- mighty !
	— combien !	{ Que je hais les méchants !	{ How much I hate the wicked !

Another frequent use of this conjunction is, to save the repetition of comme, parceque, puisque, quand, quoique, si, &c. when to phrases beginning with these words, others are added under the same regimen, by means of the conjunction et ; as,

Si l'on aimait son pays, et qu'on en désirât sincèrement la gloire, on se conduirait de manière, &c.† If we loved our country, and sincerely wished its glory, we should act so as, &c.

EXERCISE ON THE CONJUNCTIONS.

We have every thing to fear from his wisdom, even more ^{encore} than from his power. What ^{Ce que art.} men style ^{appeler} greatness, glory, power, profound policy, ^{profond politique f.} is in the eyes of God ^à only misery, weakness, and vanity. May they understand, at last, that without ^{comprendre} internal peace there is no happiness. May she ^{avec soi-même 2 art. 1} be as happy as she deserves to ^{point de} be ! GOVERNMENT OF CONJUNCTIONS.

The conjunctions which unite sentences to one another are followed either by the infinitive, the indicative, or the subjunctive.

Those that are followed by an infinitive, are,

-1. Such as are distinguished from prepositions, only by being followed by a verb; as,

Il faut se reposer après avoir travaillé, One ought to rest after having laboured.

2. Those which have the preposition de after them; as,

Il travaille afin de vous surpasser, ¶ He works that he may surpass you.

aussi bien que,	vu que,	tant que,	comment, &c.

They are followed by the indicative, because the principal sentence, which they unite with that which is incidental, expresses the affirmation in a direct, positive, and independent manner.

The use of the six following conjunctions,

si non que,	de sorte que,	tellement que,
si ce n'est que,	en sorte que,	de manière que, varies according to the meaning expressed by the principal sentence.

EXAMPLE OF THE INDICATIVE.

Je ne lui ai répondu autre chose, si non que j'avais exécuté ses ordres.

I made him no other answer, but that I had executed his orders.

EXAMPLE OF THE SUBJUNCTIVE.

Je ne veux autre chose, si non que vous travailliez avec plus d'ardeur.

I desire nothing else, but that you would study with greater ardour.

The indicative is required in the first sentence, by the verb j'ai répondu expressing a positive affirmation, and the subjunctive in the second, because je veux expresses a compound, or desire.†

PART III.

IDIOMS,
OR WORDS CONSIDERED IN THEIR PARTICULAR RULES.

CHAP. I.

OF THE SUBSTANTIVE.

The substantive performs three functions in language, that of the subject, the regimen, or the apostrophe.

The substantive is the subject, whenever it is that of which something is affirmed. When we say, l'oiseau vole, the bird flies; le lion ne vole pas, the lion does not fly; the substantives oiseau and lion are subjects; because it is affirmed of the first that it flies, and of the second that it does not fly.

It is to the substantive as the subject that every thing relates in a sentence. In the following, un homme juste you love me (too much) to wish to afflict me so cruelly; and *trop pour vouloir **

 I shall have the pleasure, (as long as) I live, of seeing you walk
tant que ind-7
 in the ways of honour and virtue.
sentier art. pr. art.

EXERCISE ON THE SUBSTANTIVE.

1. A king, who is inaccessible to men, is inaccessible to truth also, and passes his life in a ferocious 2 inhuman 3 grandeur 1: as he is continually afraid of being deceived, he always 2 unavoidably 3 is 1 and deserves to be so; besides, he is at the mercy of slanderers and tale-bearers, a base 2 malicious 3 tribe, 1 who feed on venom, and invent mischief rather than cease to injure.

2. The good which a man does, is never lost; if men forget it, God remembers and rewards it.

(1.) Is inaccessible also, l'est aussi; ferocious, sauvage; inhuman, et farouche; as he is afraid, craignant; is, l'est; to be so, de l'être; besides, de plus; tale-bearers, rapporteur; tribe, nation; feed upon, se nourrir de; mischief, mal; to injure, de nuire.

(2.) Good, bien; a man, on; remember, s'en souvenir.

et ferme n'est ébranlé, ni par les clameurs d'une populace injuste, ni par les menaces d'un fier tyran; quand même le monde brisé s'écroulerait, il en serait frappé, mais non pas ému, the adjectives juste and ferme modify the subject homme, and all the rest modify un homme juste et ferme.

The substantive is the regimen, when governed, either by another substantive, by an adjective, by a verb, or by a preposition, as, la loi de Dieu, the law of God. aimer son prochain, to love one's neighbour.

utile à l'homme, useful to man. chez son père, at his father's.

In French, a substantive cannot be governed by another substantive, but by the help of a preposition; such as de, as, la difficulté de l'entreprise, the difficulty of the undertaking; or à, or pour, as, l'abandon à ses passions, the giving way to one's passions; le goût pour le plaisir, the love of pleasure.

GENERAL RULE. When two substantives are found together, the one governing, the other governed, the former is generally placed first.

EXAMPLE.

La beauté des sentimens, la violence des passions, la grandeur des événemens et les succès miraculeux des grandes épées des héros, tout cela m'entraîne comme une petite fille.—Sévigné. The beauty of sentiments, the violence of passions, the grandeur of events, and the prodigious successes of the huge swords of heroes, all these transport me like a little girl.

REMARK. This order is not followed—1. When, in English, two substantives are joined by an s and an apostrophe, placed after the first, thus, 's, as, the king's palace. 2. When the two English substantives form a compound word, as, silk-stockings. ¶

¶ EXERCISE.

(1.) Trembling, tremblant; diffused, répandu; dim, sombre; bespangled, parsemé; with, de; heighten, rehausser; scene, spectacle.

The substantive is an apostrophe, whenever it is the object addressed; as, rois, peuples, terre, mer, et vous, cieuz, écoutez-moi! In this sentence, the substantives rois, peuples, terre, mer, and cieuz, form an apostrophe.

N. B. It is only in highly oratorical language, that the address is thus directed to inanimate, or absent objects.†

2. Nothing was heard but the warbling of birds, or the soft breath of the zephyrs sporting in the branches of the trees, or the murmurs of a lucid rill falling from the rocks, or the songs of the young swains who attended Apollo.

3. A smiling boy was, at the same time, caressing a lap-dog, which is his mother's favourite, because it pleases the child.

4. There are several gold and silver mines in this beautiful country; but the inhabitants, simple, and happy in their simplicity, do not even deign to * reckon gold and silver among their riches.

(2.) Nothing but, on ne plus que; breath, haleine; sporting, qui se jouer, ind-3; branches, rameaux; lucid rill, eau claire; falling, (which fell;) swains, berger; attended, suivre, ind-2.

† EXAMPLE OF A BEAUTIFUL APOSTROPHE.

O Hippias! Hippias! I shall never see thee again! * O my dear Hippias! it is I, cruel and * void of compassion, who taught thee to despise death. Cruel Gods! ye prolonged my life, only that I might see the death of Hippias! O my dear child, whom I had brought up with so much care, I shall see thee no more. O dear shade, summon me to the banks of the Styx, the light grows hateful to me; it is thou only, my dear Hippias, whom I wish to see again. Hippias! Hippias! O my dear Hippias! I live but to pay the last duty to thy ashes.

Never, ne plus; void of compassion, moi impitoyable; taught, apprendre, ind-1; prolonged, prolonger, ind-1; only that I might, pour me faire; brought up, nourrir, ind-4; with so much care, et qui me coûter, ind-4, tant de soins; shade, ombre; summon, appeler; to, sur; banks, rive; grows hateful, être odieux; I live but to, ne vivre encore que pour; pay, rendre; ashes, cendre.

CHAP. II.

OF THE ARTICLE.

GENERAL PRINCIPLE. The article is to be used before all substantives common, taken in a determinate sense, unless there be another word performing the same office; but it is not to be used before those that are taken in an indeterminate sense.

CASES IN WHICH THE ARTICLE IS TO BE USED.

RULE I. The article necessarily accompanies all substantives common, which denote a whole species of things, or determinate things.

EXAMPLES.

L'homme se repaît trop souvent de chimères,	Man too often feeds on chimeras.
Les hommes à imagination sont toujours malheureux,	Men of fanciful dispositions are always unhappy.
L'homme dont vous parlez est très-instruit,	The man you speak of is very learned.

In the first example, the word homme is taken in its fullest sense; it denotes a collective universality. In the second, les hommes à imagination, denotes a particular class only. In the third, l'homme denotes but one individual, being restricted by the incidental proposition, dont vous parlez.

REMARK. In English, the article is not used before substantives taken in a general sense, as, Men of genius, women of sound understanding.‡ ‡ EXERCISE ON THE ARTICLE.

1. The moment elegance, the most visible image of fine taste, appears, it is universally admired: men differ respecting the other constituent parts of * beauty, but they all unite without hesitation in acknowledging the power of elegance.

2. Men of superior genius 2, while 1 they * see 3 the rest of

(1.) The moment, du moment que; fine, délicat; appears, se montrer; is, elle est; respecting, sur; constituent, (which constitute); hesitation, hésiter; in, pour.

(2.) While, tandis que; struggling, se tourmenter; obvious, qui s'offrent d'elle mêmes; glance, ils pénètrent en un instant; lightning, foudre, f.; through, traverser; track, espace; that, qu'on; be measured, mesurer.

RULE II. The article is put before substantives employed in the sense of an extract, or denoting only a part of a species; but it is omitted, if they be preceded by an adjective, or a word of quantity.

EXAMPLES.

Du pain et de l'eau me feroient plaisir,	Some bread and water would please me.
Je vis hier des savans qui ne pensent pas comme vous,	I yesterday saw some learned men, who do not think as you do.
Voilà de beaux tableaux,	There are beautiful pictures.
J'achetai hier beaucoup de livres,	I bought yesterday many books.
Que de livres j'achetai hier !	How many books I bought yesterday !

REMARK. Among the words of quantity must be reckoned plus, moins, pas, point, and jamais.

EXAMPLES.

Il n'y eut jamais plus de lumières,	There never was more learning.
Il y a moins d'habitans à Paris qu'à Londres,	There are fewer inhabitants in Paris than in London.
Je ne manque pas d'amis,	I do not want for friends.

EXCEPTIONS. Bien is the only word of quantity which is followed by the article.

EXAMPLES.

Il a bien de l'esprit,	He has a great deal of wit.
Elle a bien de la grâce,	She is very graceful.

REMARK. The sense of extract is marked in English by the word some, or any, either expressed or understood, which answers to quelques, a particular adjective, and consequently to du, de la, de l', des, which are elegantly used instead of quelque, quelques, mankind painfully * struggling to comprehend obvious 2 truths 1, glance themselves * through * the most remote 2 consequences 1, like lightning through a track that cannot be measured.

3. The man who lives under an habitual 2 sense 1 of the divine 2 presence 1, preserves a perpetual cheerfulness of temper, and enjoys, every moment, the satisfaction of thinking himself * in company with the dearest and best of friends.

These expressions: des petits-maitres, des sages-femmes, des petits-pâtés, &c. are not exceptions to this rule, because, in cases of this kind, the substantives are so united with the adjectives, as to form but one and the same word. We should likewise say; le propre des belles actions, les sentimens des anciens philosophes, &c.; because, in expressions of this kind, the substantives are taken in a general sense. ¶

¶ EXERCISE.

1. We could not cast our eyes on either shore, without seeing opulent cities, country houses agreeably situated, lands yearly covered with a golden harvest, meadows abounding in flocks and herds, husbandmen bending under the weight of the fruits, and shepherds who made the echoes around them repeat the sweet sounds of their pipes and flutes.

2. Provence and Languedoc produce oranges, lemons, figs, olives, almonds, chestnuts, peaches, apricots, and grapes of an uncommon sweetness.

3. The man who has never seen this pure light, is as  blind as one who is born blind: he dies without having seen any thing; at most, he perceives nothing but glimmering and false lights, vain shadows and phantoms that have no reality.*

4. Among the Romans, those who were convicted of having used illicit or unworthy means to obtain an employ, were excluded from it for ever.

5. Those who govern are like the celestial bodies, which have great splendour and no rest.

6. What beauty, sweetness, modesty, and at the same time what nobleness and greatness of soul!

7. Themistocles, in order to ruin Aristides, made use of many artifices, which would have covered him with infamy in the eyes of posterity, had not the eminent services which he rendered his country blotted out that stain.

(1.) Could, pouvoir, ind-2; our, art.; either, les deux; seeing, apercevoir: yearly, tous les ans; covered with, qui se couvrir de, ind-2; abounding in, remplis de; flocks and herds, troupeau; bending, qui étaient accablés; weight, poids; shepherds, bergers; pipes, chalumeau; the echoes, aux échos; around them, d'alentour.

(3.) Who is born blind, aveugle-né; without having, n'avoir jamais, inf-3; any thing, rien; at most, tout au plus; perceives nothing from, apercevoir ne que; glimmering, sombre; lights, lueur; no reality, rien de réel.

(4.) Used, employer; illicit or unworthy means, moyen illicite, on voie indigne, pl.; were, ind-2; from it, en.

(5.) Great, beaucoup de; splendour, éclat; no rest, (that have no rest) repos.

(6.) What, que de. — (7.) Ruin, perdre; made use of many, employer bien; artifices, manœuvres; covered, cond-3; with, de; infamy, opprobre; in, à; had, si; rendered, ind-3, à; blotted out, effacer, cond-3: stain, tache.

RULE III. The article is put before proper names of countries, regions, rivers, winds, and mountains.

EXAMPLES.

La France a les Pyrénées et la Méditerranée au sud, la Suisse et la Savoie à l'est, les Pays-Bas au nord, et l'océan à l'ouest. France is bounded on the south by the Pyrenees and the Mediterranean, on the east by Switzerland and Savoy, on the north by the Netherlands, and on the west by the ocean.

La Tamise, le Rhône, l'aquilon, les Alpes, le Cantal, The Thames, the Rhone, the north wind, the Alps, the Cantal.

REM. By apposition we find the words: le mont Parnasse, le mont Valérien, &c. le fleuve Don, &c. But, we should say, la montagne de Tarare, &c. la rivière de Seine, &c. though never, le fleuve du Rhône, but simply, le Rhône.†

8. The consequences of great passions are blindness of mind and depravity of heart.

9. Noblemen should never forget that their high birth imposes great duties on * them.

(8.) Of mind, of heart, de, art.

(9.) Noblemen, gentilhomme; should, devoir, ind-1.

† EXERCISE.

1. Europe is bounded on the north by the Frozen Ocean; on the south by the Mediterranean Sea, which separates it from Africa; on the east by the continent of Asia; on the west by the Atlantic Ocean. It contains the following 2 states 1: on the north, Norway, Sweden, Denmark, and Russia; in the middle, Poland, Prussia, Germany, the United Provinces, the Netherlands, France, Switzerland, Bohemia, Hungary, the British Isles; on the South, Spain, Portugal, Italy, Turkey in Europe.

2. The principal rivers in Europe, are, the Volga, the Don or Tanais, and the Boristhenes, or Nieper, in Muscovy; the Danube,

(1.) Bounded, borné; on, à; frozen ocean, mer glacial, f.; south, sud or midi; Mediterranean sea, Méditerranée, f.; east, est or orient; west, ouest or occident; Norway, &c., SEE P. 70.; British Isles, îles Britanniques; Turkey in, Turquie de.

(2.) Muscovy, Moscovie; Vistula, Vistule, f.; Loire, f.; Seine, f.; Rhône, m.; Garonne, f.; Ebro, Ebre; Tagus, Tage, m.; Thames, Tamise, f.; Severn, Saverne, f.

EXCEPTIONS. The article is not used before the names of countries:

1. When those countries have the names of their capitals, as Naples est un pays délicieux, Naples is a delightful country.

2. When these are governed by the preposition en, as, il est en France, he is in France; il est en Espagne, he is in Spain.

3. When those names are governed by some preceding noun, and have the sense of an adjective, as, vins de France, French wines; noblesse d'Angleterre, the English nobility.

4. When speaking of those countries as of places we come from, as, je viens de France, I come from France; j'arrive d'Italie, I am just arrived from Italy. However, when speaking of the four parts of the world, the present practice favours the use of the article, as, je viens de l'Amérique, j'arrive de l'Asie.†

the Rhine, and the Elbe, in Germany; the Vistula, or Wezel, in Poland; the Loire, the Seine, the Rhone, and the Garonne, in France; the Ebro, the Tagus, and the Douro, in Spain; the Po, in Italy; the Thames, and the Severn, in England; and the Shannon, in Ireland.

3. The principal mountains in Europe, are the Daarne Fields, between Norway and Sweden; Mount Crapel, between Poland and Hungary; the Pyrenean Mountains, between France and Spain; the Alps, which divide France and Germany from Italy.

4. The bleak north wind never blows here, and the heat of summer is tempered by the cooling 2 zephyrs 1, which arrive to refresh the air towards the middle of the day.

(3.) Pyrenean Mountains, Pyrénées.

(4.) Bleak; rigoureux; north wind, aquilon; heat, ardeur; cooling, rafraîchissant; arrive, venir; to refresh, adoucir.

† EXERCISE.

1. Naples may be called a paradise, from its beauty and fertility. From this country 2 some suppose 1 Virgil took the model of the Elysian 2 Fields 1.

2. I have been a * prisoner in Egypt, as a * Phœnician;

(1.) From, à cause de; from this country, que c'est là, où; some suppose, quelques personnes penser.

(2.) Prisoner, captif; under that name, c'est sous ce nom que (both alike.)

The article is also used before the names of countries, either distant, or little known, la Chine, China : le Japon, Japan ; le Mexique, Mexico ; and before those which have been formed from common nouns : le Havre, le Perche, la Flèche, &c.

REMARK. In English, the article is generally omitted before the names of countries.

CASES IN WHICH THE ARTICLE IS NOT USED.

RULE I. The article is omitted before nouns common, when, in using them, nothing is said as to the extent of their signification.

EXAMPLES.

Le sage n'a ni amour ni haine,	The wise man has neither love nor hatred.
Ils ont renversé religion, morale, gouvernement, sciences, beaux-arts, en un mot, tout ce qui fait la gloire et la force d'un Etat,	They have overturned religion, morality, government, sciences, fine arts, in a word, every thing which constitutes the glory and strength of a state.

Hence the article is not employed before nouns.

1. When they are in the form of a title, or an address.

EXAMPLES.

Préface,	Preface.	Il demeure	He lives in
Livre premier,	Book the 1st.	Rue Piccadilly,	Piccadilly,
Chapitre dix,	Chap. the 10th.	Quartier St. James,	St. James's.

2. When they are governed by the preposition en.

EXAMPLES.

Regarder en pitié, to look with pity. Vivre en Roi, to live as a king.

under that name I have long suffered, and under that name I have been set at liberty.

3. He has received French and Spanish wines, Italian silks, Provence oil, and English wool.

4. We set sail from Holland for the Cape of Good Hope.

5. I was but just arrived from Russia, when I had the misfortune to lose my father.

6. I had set off from America, when my brother arrived there.

(4.) Set sail, partir ; for, pour se rendre.

(5.) I was but just, ne faire que de.

(6.) Set off, partir ; there, y.

3. When they are joined to the verbs avoir, or faire, with which they form only one idea.

EXAMPLES.

Avoir peur, To be afraid. Faire pitié, To excite pity.

4. When they are used as an apostrophe, or interjection.

EXAMPLE.

Courage, soldats, tenez ferme, Courage, soldiers, stand firm.

5. When they serve to qualify a noun, or pronoun.

EXAMPLES.

Il est quelquefois plus qu'homme, He is sometimes more than man.

Son Altesse Royale le Duc d'York, Prince du sang, &c. His Royal highness the Duke of York, Prince of the blood.

6. The article is not put before the substantive beginning an incidental sentence, which is opposed to what has been said.

EXAMPLES.

Tous les peuples de la terre ont une idée plus ou moins développée d'un Etre-Suprême; preuve évidente que le péché originel n'a pas tout-à-fait obscurci l'entendement. All the nations of the earth have an idea more or less clear of a Supreme Being; an evident proof that original sin has not totally obscured the understanding.

7. When they are governed by the words genre, espèce, sorte, or terms of this kind.

¶ EXERCISE.

1. The highways are bordered with laurels, pomegranates, jessamines, and other trees which * are * always green, and always in bloom. The mountains are covered with flocks, which yield a fine wool, in great request among all the known nations 1 (of the world.*)

2. The fleets of Solomon, under the conduct of the Phœnicians, made frequent voyages to the land of Ophir and Tharsis, (of the kingdom of Sophala, in Ethiopia,) whence they returned at the end of three years, laden with gold, silver, ivory, precious stones 1, and other kinds of merchandise.

3. Costly furniture 2 is not allowed there 1, nor magnificent attire, nor sumptuous feasts, nor gilded palaces.

(1) Highways, chemin; with, de; pomegranates, grenadier; in bloom, fleuri; yield, fournir; wool, laine, pl.; in great request, recherché; among, de.

(2) Made, fait; end, bout; laden, chargé.

(3) Is not allowed there, on n'y souffre ni; furniture, meuble; costly, précieux; attire, ornement; feasts, repas.

EXAMPLES.

Sorte de fruit,	A sort of fruit.	Bande de voleurs,	A troop of robbers.
Genre d'ouvrage,	A kind of work.	Pile de livres,	A pile of books.
Monceau d'argent,	A heap of money.	Mente de chiens,	A pack of dogs.

RULE II. The article is not used, either before nouns preceded by the pronominal adjectives mon, ton, son, notre, votre, leur, ce, nul, aucun, chaque, tout, (used for chaque.) certain, plusieurs, tel, or before those which are preceded by a cardinal number without any relation whatever.

EXAMPLES.

Nos mœurs mettent le prix à nos richesses,	Our manners fix the value of our riches.
Toute nation a ses lois,	Each nation has its laws.
Cent ignorans, doivent-ils l'emporter sur un homme instruit?	Are a hundred blockheads to be preferred to one learned man?

5. He was in a kind of ecstasy, when he perceived us.

6. In the most corrupt age, he lived and died a wise man.*

7. Are you surprised that the worthiest 2 men Lare but men, and betray remains of the weakness of humanity, amid the innumerable 2 snares 1 and difficulties which * are * inseparable from royalty?

8. He excited our pity, when we saw him after his disgrace.

9. Hear then, O nations full of valour! and you, O chiefs, so wise and so united! hear what I have * to * offer to you.

10. Out of this cavern issued, from time to time, a black 2 thick 3 smoke 1, which made a sort of night at mid-day.

† EXERCISE.

1. That good father was happy in his children, and his children were happy in him.

(4.) Extensive, vaste; fields, campagne; ears, épi; bounteous, fécond.

(5.) In a kind of, comme en. — (6.) Age, siècle.

(7.) That, de ce que; worthy, estimable; but, encore; betray, montrer; remains, reste; snares, piège; difficulties, embarras.

(8.) He excited our pity, il nous fit pitié. — (9.) Hear, écouter.

(10.) Out of, de; issued, sortir; thick, et épais; smoke, fumée; mid-day, milieu du jour.

RULE III. Proper names of deities, men, animals, towns, and particular places, do not take the article.

EXAMPLES.

Dieu a créé le ciel et la terre,	God has made heaven and earth.
Jupiter était le premier des dieux,	Jupiter was the first of the gods.
Bucéphale était le cheval d'Alexandre,	Bucephalus was Alexander's horse.
Rome est une ville d'une grande beauté,	Rome is a city of great beauty.

EXCEPTIONS. Proper names, however, take the article, when used in a limited sense.

EXAMPLES.

Le Dieu des Chrétiens,	The God of Christians.	Le Bucéphale, d'Alexandre,	Alexander's Bucephalus.
Le Dieu de paix,	The God of peace.	L'Ancienne Rome,	Ancient Rome.
Le Jupiter d'Homère	Homer's Jupiter.	La Rome Moderne,	Modern Rome.

N. B. In imitation of the Italians, the French use the article before the names of several painters and poets of that nation, by an elliptical mode of expression, the words peintre, poète, or seigneur, being understood. †

2. Those imitative 2 sounds 1 are common to all languages, and form, as it were, their * real basis.

3. Every man has his foibles, his moments of ill * humour, even his irregularities.

4. Each plant has virtues peculiar to it, the knowledge 2 of which I could not but be infinitely useful.

5. In all his instructions, he is careful to remember that grammar, logic, and rhetoric, are three sisters, that ought never to be disjoined.

(2.) Common, fondu; to, dans; and form as it were, et ils en sont comme; real, fondamentale.

(4.) Peculiar, qui sont propres; to it, lui; could, cond-1; not but, ne que.

(5.) He is careful to remember, ne point perdre de vue; ought, on devoir, ind-1; to be disjoined, séparer.

† EXERCISE.

1. Jupiter, son of Saturn and Cybele, or Ops, after having ex-

(1.) Expelled, chasser; divided, en partager; inheritance, héritage

CHAP. III.

OF THE ADJECTIVE.

I.

OF THE ADJECTIVE WITH THE ARTICLE.

RULE I. Adjectives used substantively, are like substantives common, accompanied by the article, if the occasion require it.

EXAMPLE.

Les fous inventent les modes, et les sages s'y conforment. Fools invent fashions, and wise men conform to them.

pelled his father from the throne, divided the paternal * inheritance with his two brothers, Neptune and Pluto.

2. On a dispute at a feast of the gods, between Juno, Pallas, and Venus, for the pre-eminence of beauty, Jupiter, not being able to bring them to an agreement, referred the decision to Paris, a shepherd of Mount Ida, with directions that a golden apple should be given to the fairest. Paris assigned to Venus 2 the golden * prize 1.

3. God said : let there * be 2 light 1, and there * was 2 light 1.

4. The Apollo di Belvidere, and the Venus di Medicis, are valuable 2 remains 1 of antiquity.

5. May and September are the two finest months in the year in the south of France.

6. The God of Abraham, Isaac, and Jacob, was the only true God.

(2.) On, dans; at a feast, qu'il y eut à un festin; being able, pouvoir; to bring to an agreement, accorder; referred, renvoyer; directions, ordre; that a golden, &c. to give a golden apple to; assigned, adjuger.

(4.) Di Belvidere, Belvédér; di, de; valuable, précieux.

(6.) Only, seul.

¶ EXERCISE.

1. Were the learned of antiquity to come to life again, they would be much astonished at the extent of our knowledge.

2. The ignorant have, in a * large stock of presumption, what they want in real knowledge, and that is the reason they are admired by fools.

(1.) Were the, si les; to come again, revenir, ind-2; life, monde; at, de; knowledge, connaissance, pl.

(2.) Large stock, forte dose; they want, il leur manque; knowledge, science; the reason, ce qui fait que; they are &c. the fools admire them.

RULE II. When a noun is accompanied by two adjectives, expressing opposite qualities, the article must be repeated before each adjective.

EXAMPLES.

Les vieux et les nouveaux soldats sont remplis d'ardcur,	The old and the newly raised soldiers are full of ardour.
Il faut fréquenter la bonne compagnie et fuir la mauvaise,	We ought to frequent good and shun bad company.

REM. But if those qualities be nearly similar, the article is not repeated, as, Le sage et pieux Fénélon;—if merely different, it is perhaps better to repeat it, as, Le sensible et l'ingénieux Fénélon.

N. B. In French the substantive must be joined to the first adjective, when governed by different words.†

RULE III. The article is used before the adjective which is joined to a proper name, either to express its quality, or to distinguish the person spoken of from those who might bear the same name.

EXAMPLES.

Le sublime Bossuet,	Le vertueux Fénélon,	Le tendre Racine.
The sublime Bossuet.	The virtuous Fénélon.	The tender Racine.
Louis le Gros,	Louis le Juste,	Louis le Grand,
Louis the Fat.	Louis the Just.	Louis the Great.

REM. If the adjective, which is joined to a proper name, precede that name, it expresses a quality, which may be common to many; if it follow, it expresses a distinguishing quality. Thus—Le savant Varron; and Varron le savant; do not convey the same meaning: in the first example, Varron merely obtains the quality of

† EXERCISE.

1. The ancient 1 and modern 3 writers 2 are not agreed upon that point.
2. The wise man preserves the same tranquillity of mind in good or bad fortune.
3. The man who is jealous of his reputation frequents good and shuns bad company.
4. Grand and vigorous thoughts were always the offspring of genius.

(1.) Writers, auteurs; are agreed, s'accorder. (2.) The wise man, le sage.
(4.) Vigorous, fort; offspring, fruit.

savant; in the second, Varron is distinguished for his learning from all of the same name.†

RULE IV. When a superlative relative precedes a substantive, the article serves for both; if it follow, the article must be repeated before each.

EXAMPLES.

Les plus habiles gens font quelquefois les plus grandes fautes, or Les gens les plus habiles font quelquefois les fautes les plus grandes.
The ablest men sometimes commit the grossest blunders.‡

II.

THE PLACE OF ADJECTIVES.

RULE I. Pronominal and numerical adjectives precede their substantive, as do generally the following sixteen, beau, bon, brave, cher, chétif, grand, gros, jeune,

‡ EXERCISE.

1. The great Corneille astonishes by beauties of the first order, and by faults of the worst taste. If the tender Racine does not often rise so high, at least, he is always equal, and possesses the art of always interesting the heart.

2. The more we read the fables of the good and artless La Fontaine, the more we are convinced they are a book for all ages, and the manual of the man of taste.

3. It was only under the reign of Louis the Just, (XIII.) that good taste began to show itself in France: but it was under that of Louis the Great that it was carried to perfection.

(1.) By par des; order, ordre; is always equal, se soutenir; possesses, avoir.

(2.) The more we, plus on; artless, simple; are convinced, on se convaincre; they are, que c'est; a, le; for, de; manual, manuel.

(3.) Only, ne que; carried, porter à.

† EXERCISE.

1. It has been said of the Telemachus of the virtuous Fénélon, that it is the most useful 2 present 1 the muses have made to mankind; for, could the happiness of man be produced by a poem, it would be by that.

2. The smoothest 2 waters 1 often conceal the most dangerous 2 gulfs 1.

(1.) It has been said, on a dit, present, don que; have made, subj-3; could, (if the, &c. could, ind-2); be produced by, naitre de; would be, naitre, cond-1.

(2.) Smoothest, tranquille.

mauvais, méchant, meilleur, moindre, petit, saint, vieux, and vrai, when taken in their literal sense.

EXAMPLES.

Mon père,	My father.	Plusieurs officiers,	Several officers.
Quel homme,	What man.	Grand homme,	Great man.
Vieille femme,	Old woman.	Six arbres,	Six trees.
Dix guinées,	10 guineas.	Chétive mine,	Mean look.

EXCEPTION 1. The pronoun quelconque.

EXAMPLE.

D'une manière quelconque, In whatever manner.

2. Adjectives of number, joined to proper names, pronouns, and substantives, as quotations.

EXAMPLES.

George Trois,	George III ^d .	Chapitre dix,	Chapter 10 th .
Lui dixième,	He the tenth.	Page trente,	Page the 30 th .

3. The above sixteen adjectives, when connected by a conjunction with another adjective, which is to be placed after the substantive.

EXERCISE ON THE PLACE OF ADJECTIVES.

1. There have been ages, when a great man was a sort of prodigy produced by a mistake of nature.

2. In almost all nations, the great geniuses that have adorned them were contemporaries.

3. Young people, says Horace, are supple to the enticements of vice, lavish, presumptuous, and equally impetuous and light in their passions; old people, on the contrary, are covetous, dilatory, timid, ever alarmed about the future, always complaining, hard to please, panegyrists of times past, censors of the present, and great givers of advice.

4. What man was ever satisfied with his condition, and dissatisfied with his abilities?

5. Thirty chambers which have a communication one with another, and each of them an iron door, with six huge bolts, are the places where he shuts himself up.

(1.) Ages, des siècles; when, où; produced, enfanter.

(2.) In, chez; nations, peuple; adorned, illustrer, ind-4.

(3.) People, gens; supple, souple; lavish, prodigue; impetuous, vif; old, f. pl. (the following adjectives in. pl.) covetous, avare; dilatory, temporisateur; about, sur; complaining, plaintif; hard, difficile; please, contenter; times, sing.

(4.) Dissatisfied, mécontent; abilities, esprit.

(5.) Have a communication, communiquer; each of them, dont chacun avoir; huge, gros; bolts, verrou; places, lieu, sing.; shuts himself, se renfermer.

EXAMPLE.

C'est une femme grande et bien faite, She is a tall well-made woman.

REM. In English, two, or even several adjectives, may qualify a substantive, without a conjunction: but in French, this is generally required, as, c'est un homme aimable et poli, he is an amiable well-behaved man; EXCEPT when custom allows the substantives to be placed between two adjectives; as, c'est un grand homme sec, he is a tall thin man.

RULE II. Adjectives formed from the participle present of verbs, are, generally, placed after the substantive; ouvrage divertissant, entertaining work; and from the participle past, always; figure arrondie, round figure; those expressing—form, table ovale, oval table;—colour, maison blanche, white house;—taste, herbe amère, bitter herb;—sound, orgue harmonieux, harmonious organ;—action, procureur actif, active attorney;—effect, coutume abusive, custom founded in abuse;—arrangement, ordre grammatical, grammatical order;—species, qualité occulte, occult quality;—nation, générosité Anglaise, English generosity;—those ending in -esque, -il, -ule, -ic, -ique, -in:

Style burlesque ,	Burlesque style.	Bien public ,	Public welfare.
Jargon puéril ,	Childish jargon.	Ris sardonique ,	Sardonic grin.
Femme crédule ,	Credulous woman.	Voix enfantine ,	Childish voice.

but in this, custom is the best guide.†

† EXERCISE.

1. An affected simplicity is a refined imposture.
2. The smiling images of Theocritus, Virgil, and Gessner, excite in the soul a soft sensibility.
3. In that antique palace are to be seen neither wreathed columns, nor gilded wainscots, nor valuable basso-relieues, nor

(1.) Refined, délicat. (2.) Smiling, riant; excite, porter; soft, doux.
 (3.) Are to be seen, on ne voit; wreathed, torse; wainscots, lambris; basso-relieues, bas relief; ceilings, plafond; curiously, artistement; had existence, exister.

RULE III. Although it may seem that adjectives expressing moral qualities are placed indifferently before or after the substantive; yet taste and a correct ear will assign them their proper situation.

In conversation, or in a broken, loose style, it may be indifferent to say femme aimable, or aimable femme; talens sublimes, or sublimes talens, &c.; but in the dignified style, the place of the adjective may, in a variety of instances, affect the beauty of a sentence.†

III.

REGIMEN OF ADJECTIVES.

RULE. A noun may be governed by two adjectives, provided these do not require different regimens, as:

ceilings curiously painted, nor grotesque figures of animals, which never had existence but in the imagination of a child or a madman.

4. If human life is exposed to many troubles, it is also susceptible of many pleasures.

5. A ridiculous man is seldom so by halves.

6. Spanish manners have, at first sight, something harsh and uncivilized.

7. French urbanity has become a proverb among foreign nations.

(4.) Many, bien de; troubles, peine.

(5.) So, le; by halves, à demi.

(6.) Spanish, Espagnol; manners, mœurs; at first, d'abord; sight, au premier abord; uncivilized, sauvage.

(7.) Become, passer en; among, chez.

† EXERCISE.

1. An amiable woman gives to every thing she says an inexpressible grace; the more we hear, the more we wish to hear her.

2. The majestic eloquence of Bossuet is like a river, which carries away every thing in its rapid course.

3. The sublime compositions of Rubens have made 1 an English traveller 2 say 2, that this famous painter was born in Flanders, through a mistake of nature.

(1.) Give to, répandre sur; we, on.

(2.) River, fleuve; carries away, entraîner; its rapid course, la rapidité de son cours.

(3.) Say, dire à; famous, célèbre; through, par; mistake, méprise.

Cet homme est utile et cher à sa famille, that man is useful and dear to his family. But it would be incorrect to say: Cet homme est utile et chéri de sa famille, that man is useful and beloved by his family; because the adjective utile does not govern the preposition de. ¶

ADJECTIVES OF NUMBER.

Unième is used only after vingt, trente, quarante, cinquante, soixante, quatre-vingt, cent, and mille. C'est la vingt-et unième fois, it is the twenty-first time; see page 101.

Cent, in the plural, takes s, except when followed by another noun of number, as,

Ils étaient deux cents,	They were two hundred.
Trois cents hommes,	Three hundred men.
Ils étaient deux cent dix.	They were two hundred and ten.

Vingt, in quatre-vingt, and six-vingt, also takes s, when followed by a substantive, as,

Quatre-vingts hommes,	Eighty men.
Six-vingts abricots,	Six score apricots.

But it takes no s, when followed by another term expressing number, quatre-vingt-un arbres, quatre-vingt-dix hommes.

The ordinal numbers, collective and distributive, always take the sign of the plural: les premières dou-

CHAP. IV.

OF THE PRONOUNS.

1.

OF PERSONAL PRONOUNS.

I.

Office of Personal Pronouns.

The personal pronouns have the three characteristics of the substantive, that is, subject, regimen, and apostrophe; but with this difference, that some always form the subject; two only are used as an apostrophe: some always form the regimen, and lastly, others are sometimes the subject and sometimes the regimen.

‡ EXERCISE.

1. They made in the parish and in the neighbouring places a collection which produced a hundred and twenty-one guineas.

2. William, surnamed the Conqueror, king of England, and duke of Normandy, was one of the greatest generals of the eleventh century; he was born at Falaise, and was the natural son of Robert, duke of Normandy, and of Arlotte, a furrier's daughter.

3. Make haste; it will soon be ten o'clock. We shall have a good deal of difficulty to arrive in time.

4. The winter was so severe in one thousand seven hundred and nine, that there was but one olive tree that resisted it,* in a plain where there had been more than ten thousand.

5. It was the twenty-first of January, one thousand seven hundred and ninety-three, that the unhappy Louis the sixteenth was led to the scaffold.

(1.) They, on; neighbouring places, voisinage, sing.; collection, quête.

(2.) William, Guillaume; furrier, fourreur.

(3.) Make haste, se dépêcher; will be, ind-1; a good deal of difficulty, bien de la peine; in, à.

(4.) Severe, rude; but, ne que; had been, ind-2.

Je, tu, il, and ils, are always the subject; these four pronouns cannot be separated from the verb which they govern, but by personal pronouns acting as a regimen, or by the negative ne.

EXAMPLES.

Je ne lui en veux rien dire,	I will say nothing to him about it.
Tu en apprendras des nouvelles,	Thou wilt hear news of it.
Il nous raconta son histoire,	He told us his history.
Ils sont survenus à l'improviste,	They are come unexpectedly.

The two acting as an apostrophe are toi and vous, whether they stand alone, or are preceded by the interjection ô; as, toi, ô toi : vous, ô vous. ¶

Me, te, se, leur, le, la, les, y, and en, are always used as a regimen :—direct, when acted upon by the verb :—indirect, when referable to the prepositions à or de, (see p. 273, 274.) They always precede the verb, except in the imperative when affirmative; and can never ¶ EXERCISE ON PERSONAL PRONOUNS.

1. The better to bear the irksomeness of captivity and solitude, I sought for books; for I was overwhelmed with melancholy, for want of some knowledge to cherish and support my mind.

2. Since thou art more obdurate and unjust than thy father, mayest thou suffer evils more lasting and more cruel than his!

3. What! say they, do not men die fast enough without destroying each other? Life is so short, and yet it seems that it appears too long to them. Are they sent into the world to tear each other in pieces, and to make themselves wretched?

4. O thou, my son, my dear son, ease my heart: restore me what is dearer to me than my life. Restore to me my lost son, and restore thyself to thyself.

5. O ye, who hear me with so much attention, believe not that I despise men: no, no, I am sensible how glorious it is to toil to make them virtuous and happy; but this toil is full of anxieties and dangers.

(1.) To bear, supporter; irksomeness, ennui; overwhelmed with, accablé de; for want, faute; to cherish, qui pût nourrir; support, soutenir.

(2.) Obdurate, dur; mayest, pouvoir, subj-1; lasting, long.

(3.) Die fast enough, être assez mortel; destroying each other, se donner encore une mort précipitée; sent into, sur; world, terre; tear in pieces, se déchirer; make themselves, se rendre.

(4.) Ease, soulager; restore, rendre; lost, (whom I have lost,) perdre.

(5.) I am sensible, savoir; glorious, grand; to toil, travailler à; toils, travail; anxiety, inquiétude.

be separated from it by any other word, except tout, rien, and jamais, which may intervene before an infinitive.

EXAMPLES.

C'est leur tout refuser,	It is refusing them every thing.
C'est ne me rien permettre,	It is allowing me nothing.
Il a juré de ne lui jamais pardonner,	He has sworn he would never pardon him.

Me, te, se, form a regimen sometimes direct, and sometimes indirect;—direct, when they represent moi, toi, soi;—indirect, when they supply the place of à moi, à toi, à soi.

EXAMPLES.

Vous me soupçonnez mal à propos,	You suspect me unjustly.
Je t'en remercie,	I thank thee for it.
Il se perd de gaieté de cœur.	He ruins himself out of wantonness.
Vous me donnez un sage conseil,	You give me prudent advice.
Je te donne cela,	I give thee that.
Il se donne bien du mouvement,	He is an active stirring man.

Leur is always indirect, as it stands for à eux, or à elles.

EXAMPLES.

Je leur représentai le tort, qu'ils, ou qu'elles se faisaient,†	I represented to them the injury they did themselves.
--	---

EXERCISE.

1. He has been speaking to them with such energy, as has astonished them.

2. Women ought to be very circumspect; for a mere appearance is sometimes more prejudicial to them than a real fault.

3. He comes up to me with a smiling countenance, and pressing my hand, says: My friend, I expect you to-morrow at my house.

4. He said to me: Wilt thou torment thyself incessantly for advantages, the enjoyment of which I could not render thee more happy? Cast thy eyes round thee: see how every thing

(1.) Such energy as, une force qui.

(2.) Mere, simple; more prejudicial, faire plus de tort.

(3.) Comes up—with, aborder—de; pressing, serrer; my hand, la main; says, il me dit; at my house, chez moi.

(4.) Incessantly, sans cesse; advantages, des biens; could, savoir, cond-1; cast, porter; thy, art; smiles, sourdre.

Le, la, les, are always direct; as,

je le vois, je la vois,	for	je vois lui, je vois elle.
je les vois,	—	je vois eux, je vois elles.

But y and en are always indirect; as,

Je n'y entends rien,	for	je n'entends rien à cela.
ces fruits sont bons, en vou-	—	voulez-vous de ceux ?
lez-vous ?	—	{ un peu une certaine somme, or quantité d'argent.
avez-vous reçu de l'argent ?	—
—oui, j'en ai reçu.

Though seeming to perform the function of regimen direct, in this last and other phrases of the same kind, it is obvious that there is in the word en an ellipsis, which may be readily supplied. See p. 108.†

smiles at thee, and seems to invite thee to prefer a retired and tranquil life to the tumultuous pleasures of a vain world 1.

5. The ambitious man * agitates, torments, and destroys himself, to obtain the places or the honours to which he aspires; and when he has obtained them, he is still not satisfied.

(5.) Destroys, consumer; to, pour.

† EXERCISE.

1. I have known him since his childhood, and I always loved him on account of the goodness of his character.

2. This woman is always occupied in doing good works: you see her constantly consoling the unhappy, relieving the poor, reconciling enemies, and promoting the happiness of every one around her.

3. The more you live with men, the more you will be convinced that it is necessary to know them well before you * form a connexion with them.

4. Enjoy the pleasures of the world, I consent to it; but never give yourself up to them.

5. I shall never consent to that foolish scheme; do not mention it any * more.

6. Have you received some copies of the new work? Yes, I have, (received some.)

(1.) Have known, connaître, ind-1; loved, ind-4; on account, à cause; the goodness of his, (his good.)

(2.) In, à; works, œuvres, f. pl.; constantly, sans cesse; consoling, &c. inf-1; relieving, assister; promoting, faire; every one around her, tout ce qui l'environne.

(3.) Live, ind-7; be convinced, se convaincre; before, avant de; form a connexion, vous lier.

(4.) Enjoy, jouir de; give yourself up, se livrer.

(5.) Scheme, entreprise; mention, parler de. (6.) Copies, exemplaire.

The pronouns, which are sometimes the subject and sometimes the regimen, are nous, vous, moi, toi, lui, elle, eux, elles.

Nous and vous are the subject in, nous aimons, vous aimez; the regimen direct in, ils nous aiment, ils vous aiment; and indirect in, ils nous parlent, ils vous parlent.

In general, moi, toi, are only the subject by apposition, or reduplication, whether they precede, or follow the verb, as,

Moi, dont il déchire la réputation,	I, whose reputation he is asper-
je ne lui ai jamais rendu que	sing, always did him acts of
de bons offices,	kindness.
Toi, qui fais tant le brave, tu	Wouldst thou, who pretendest
oserais, &c.	to be so brave, dare, &c.
Je prétends, moi,	I do maintain, I.
Tu dis donc, toi,	Thou sayest then, thou.

REM. Sometimes the personal pronouns je and tu are not expressed, but understood, as, Moi, trahir le meilleur de mes amis! I, betray my best friend!

Faire une lâcheté, toi! Thou, be guilty of such baseness!

that is, je voudrais, &c. tu pourrais, &c.

They are likewise the subject, when they are placed in a kind of apposition expressed by ce and il in impersonal verbs, as, qui fut bien aise? ce fut moi; ce ne peut être que toi; que vous reste-t-il?—moi.

After a conjunction, they are either the subject, or regimen, according to the nature of the phrase, as, nous y étions, mon père et moi; il ne craint ni toi ni moi.

In phrases which are not imperative, toi and moi can only be the object by apposition before or after the verb, as, voudriez-vous me perdre, moi, votre allié, &c. toi, je te soupçonnerais de perfidie!

After a preposition, they alone can be employed, as, vous servirez-vous de moi? selon moi, vous avez raison; il est fâché contre toi.

What has just been remarked of toi and moi, is applicable to lui, but with this difference, that lui can only be the object after ne—que signifying only, or in distributive phrases, as,

N'aimez que lui, je ne le trouve pas mauvais; mais ne me laissez pas, That you should like only him, I do not disapprove, but do not hate me.

So, protégez nous, lui, à cause de, &c. et moi, parce que, &c. we may likewise say by apposition, aimez-le, lui qui, &c.

Eux is employed in the same manner as lui, but differs from it in this, that it cannot be the regimen indirect, except after a preposition, as, parliez-vous d'eux? est-ce à eux que vous parlez?

REM. Lui and eux may be the subject in distributive phrases without being in apposition, as,

Mes frères et mon cousin m'ont secouru; eux m'ont relevé, et lui m'a pansé, My brothers and cousin assisted me; they took me up, and he dressed my wounds.

The natural office of elle and elles, is to form the subject; however, they are susceptible of all the other uses just mentioned, except that they cannot be the regimen indirect, unless preceded by a preposition, as, c'est à elles que je parle.†

† EXERCISE.

1. In the education of youth, we should propose to ourselves to cultivate, to polish their understanding, and thus to enable them to fill with dignity the different stations assigned them; but, above all, we ought to instruct them in that religious worship which God requires of them.

2. What! you would suffer yourself to be overwhelmed by adversity!

3. Il stoop to the man who has imbrued his hands in the blood of his king!

4. Thou! take that undertaking upon thyself? Canst * thou think of it.

(1.) Youth, jeunes gens; should, devoir, ind-1; to cultivate, (to them;) to polish, (to them,) orner; understanding, l'esprit; enable, disposer; stations, place, (which are) assigned, (to) them; worship, culte; requires, demander.

(2.) Suffer yourself, se laisser, cond-1; to be overwhelmed, abattre.

(3.) Stoop to, s'abaisser devant, subj-1; imbrued, souiller; in, de.

(4.) Take upon thyself, se charger, cond-1; of it, y.

II.

ON THE PRONOUN soi.

Soi is generally accompanied by a preposition, and is used in phrases, where there is an indeterminate pronoun, either expressed or understood: on doit rarement parler de soi; il est essentiel de prendre garde à soi.

5. Your two brothers and mine take charge of the enterprise; they find the money, and he will manage the work.

6. It is I who have engaged him to undertake this journey.

7. It is thou who hast brought this misfortune on thyself.

8. When you are at Rome, write to me as often as you can, and give me an account of every thing that can interest me.

9. He told it to thee thyself.

10. Fortune, like a traveller, shifts from inn to inn: if she lodges to-day with me, to-morrow, perhaps, she will lodge with thee.

11. Whom dost thou think we were talking of?—it was of thee.

12. Descartes deserves immortal praise, because it is he who has made reason triumph over authority in philosophy.

13. He is dissatisfied with himself.

14. She is never satisfied with herself.

15. The indiscreet often betray themselves.

16. Saumaise, speaking of the English authors, said, that he had learned more from them than from any other.

17. To love a person, is to render him, on every occasion, all the services in our power, and to afford him, in society, every comfort that depends upon us.

(5.) Take charge, se charger; find, fournir; money, fonds, pl.; manage, conduire, ind-1.

(6.) Undertake, faire; journey, voyage.

(7.) Hast brought on thyself, s'attirer, ind-4.

(8.) Are, ind-7; can, ind-7; give, faire; an account, le détail.

(9.) Told, dire, ind-4.

(10.) Shifts from inn to inn, changer d'auberge; with, chez; she will lodge, ce être.

(11.) Were talking, parler, subj-2.

(12.) Triumph over, triompher de.

(13.) Is dissatisfied with, se déplaître,

(14.) Satisfied with, content de.

(15.) Betray, se trahir.

(17.) In our power, dont on être capable; afford, procurer à; comfort, agrément; depends upon, dépendre de.

In this case, it is the regimen indirect; but it may be employed without a preposition.

1. With the verb être, as, En cherchant à tromper les autres, c'est souvent soi qu'on trompe, or on est souvent trompé soi-même, in attempting to deceive others, we frequently deceive ourselves. In this situation it is the subject.

2. After ne que, or by opposition, as,

N'aimer que soi, c'est n'être bon à rien,	To love only ourselves, is being good for very little.
Penser ainsi, c'est s'aveugler soi-même,	To think in this manner, is to blind one's-self.

It is in these examples the regimen; but when de soi and en soi are used in a definitive sense in speaking of things, they mean de sa nature, and dans sa nature.†

III.

CASES WHERE THE PRONOUNS elle, elles, eux, lui, leur, MAY APPLY TO THINGS.

The personal pronouns elle and elles, when the regimen, generally apply to persons only. Thus, in speak-

‡ EXERCISE ON THE PRONOUN soi.

1. To excuse in one's-self the follies which one cannot excuse in others, is to prefer being a fool one's-self to seeing others so.

2. To be too much dissatisfied with ourselves, is a weakness; but to be too much satisfied (with ourselves) is (a) folly.

3. We ought to despise no one: how often have we needed the assistance of one more insignificant than ourselves?

4. If we did not attend so much to ourselves, there would be less egotism in the world.

5. Vice is odious in itself.

6. The loadstone attracts iron (to itself.)

(1.) Follies, sottises; others, autrui; prefer, aimer mieux; fool, sot; to seeing, que de voir; so, tel.

(3.) We ought, falloir, ind-1; how often, combien de fois; we, on; needed the assistance, n'avoir pas besoin; insignificant, petit.

(4.) We, on; attended to, s'occuper de; egotism, égoïsme.

(6.) Loadstone, aimant.

ing of a woman, we must say, Je m'approchai d'elle, je m'assis près d'elle; but, in speaking of a table, Je m'en approchai, je m'assis auprès.

However, with the prepositions avec, après, à, de, pour, en, &c. they may be applied to things. Thus it is correct to say of a river,

Cette rivière est si rapide, quand elle déborde, qu'elle entraîne avec elle tout ce qu'elle rencontre; elle ne laisse après elle que du sable et des cailloux,

That river is so rapid when it overflows, that it carries away every thing it meets with in its course; it leaves nothing behind but sand and pebbles.

—of an enemy's army,

Nous marchâmes à elle,

We marched up to it.

—of things, reasons, truth, &c. as,

Ces choses sont bonnes d'elles-mêmes,

These things are good in themselves.

J'aime la vérité au point que je sacrifierais tout pour elle,

I love truth to that degree, that I would sacrifice every thing for it.

Ces raisons sont solides en elles-mêmes,

Those reasons are solid in themselves.

After the verb être, they are applied only to persons, and likewise when they are followed by the relatives qui and que, as, C'est à elle, c'est d'elles que je parle, c'est elle-même qui vient.

The same may be said of the pronoun eux, which is also generally applied to persons only, yet custom allows us to say,

Ce chien et ces oiseaux font tout mon plaisir; je n'aime qu'eux; eux seuls sont mon amusement; je ne songe qu'à eux,

This dog and these birds are my only pleasure, I love nothing but them; they alone are my diversion: I think of nothing else.

Lui and leur are generally applied to persons, but are sometimes used in speaking of animals, plants, and even inanimate objects, as,

Ces chevaux sont rendus, faites-leur donner un peu de vin, Ces orangers vont périr, si on ne leur donne de l'eau,

Those horses are exhausted, give them a little wine.

Those orange-trees will die unless they have a little water.

Ces murs sont mal faits, on ne leur a pas donné assez de talus, Those walls are not skilfully built, they are not sufficiently sloped upward.

Upon these previous observations then may be founded the following

RULE. The pronouns elle, elles, eux, lui, and leur, ought never to be applied to things, except when custom does not allow them to be replaced by the pronouns y and en.†

† EXERCISE.

1. Virtue is the first of blessings; it is from it alone we are to expect happiness.

2. The labyrinth had been built upon the lake Mæris, and they had given it a prospect proportioned to its grandeur.

3. Mountains are frequented on account of the air one breathes on them: how many people are indebted to them for the recovery of their health?

4. War brings in its train numberless evils.

5. It is a delicate affair which must not be too deeply investigated, it must be lightly passed over.

6. I have had my house repaired, and have given it quite a new appearance.

7. Those trees are too much loaded; strip them of part of their fruit.

8. This book cost me a great deal, but I am indebted to it for my knowledge.

9. Self-love is captious; we, however, take it for our guide; to it are all our actions directed, and from it we take counsel.

10. These arguments, although very solid in themselves, yet made no impression upon him, so powerful a chain is habit.

11. These reasons convinced me, and by them I formed my decision.

12. I leave you the care of that bird; do not forget to give it water.

(1.) Blessings, bien; are, devoir.

(2.) Had been built, on bâti, ind-6; prospect, vue.

(3.) On account, à cause; breathes, respirer; on them, y; are indebted for, devoir: recovery, rétablissement.

(4.) Brings, entraîner; in its train, avec elle; numberless, bien de.

(5.) Affair, matière; must, ind-1; be deeply investigated, approfondir, inf-1; be passed, glisser; over, dessus.

(6.) Have had, faire, ind-4; appearance, air.

(7.) Strip, ôter; of part, une partie.

(8.) A great deal, cher; knowledge, instruction.

(9.) We, (it is it that we;) to it (it is to it that we direct all, &c.) direct, rapporter; from it, (and it is from it that, &c.)

(10.) No, ne aucun; so strong, &c. (so much habit is a, &c.) habit, habitude.

(11.) And from, (and it is from them that;) by, d'après; formed my decision, se décider.

IV.

DIFFICULTY RESPECTING THE PRONOUN le EXPLAINED.

Le, la, les, are sometimes pronouns, and sometimes articles. The article is always followed by a noun, le roi, la reine, les hommes; whereas the pronoun is always joined to a verb, je le connais, je la respecte, je les estime.

The pronoun le may supply the place of a substantive, or an adjective, or even of a member of a sentence.

There is no difficulty, when it relates to a whole member of a sentence; it is then always put in the masculine singular, as,

On doit s'accommoder à l'humeur des autres autant qu'on le peut,§

We ought to accommodate ourselves to the temper of others as much as we can.

Nor is there any difficulty when le supplies the place of a substantive; it then always takes the gender and number of that substantive, as, Madame, êtes-vous la mère de cet enfant?—Ou, je la suis. Madame, are you the mother of that child?—Yes, I am. Mesdames, êtes-vous les parentes dont Monsieur m'a parlé?—Oui, nous les sommes.

REM. Though the word relating to the following questions, is not expressed in English, yet it must

§ EXERCISE.

1. The laws of nature and decency oblige us equally to defend the honour and interest of our parents, when we can do it without injustice.

2. We ought not to condemn, after their death, those that have not been condemned during their life.

(2.) We ought, falloir; condemned, lo.

always be so in French: this word is le, which takes either gender, or number, according to its relation. ¶

It only remains, therefore, to lay down the following

RULE. The pronoun le takes neither gender nor number, when occupying the place of an adjective.

EXAMPLES.

Madame, êtes-vous enrhumée?—Oui, je le suis.

Mesdames, êtes-vous contentes de ce discours?—Oui, nous le sommes.

Y eut-il jamais une femme plus malheureuse que je le suis?

REM. This rule is observed, when the substantives are used adjectively, as,

Madame, êtes-vous mère?—Oui, je le suis.

Mesdames, êtes-vous parentes?—Oui, nous le sommes.

Elle est fille, et le sera toute sa vie.

But not if the adjectives be used substantively, as,

Madame, êtes-vous la malade?—Oui, je la suis.

Therefore this question; Etes-vous fille de M. le duc? is to be answered, Oui, je le suis; but this, Etes-vous la fille de M. le duc?—Oui, je la suis. †

¶ EXERCISE.

1. Is that your idea?—Can you doubt that it is?
2. Are you Mrs. Such-a-one?—Yes, I am.
3. Are those your servants?—Yes, they are.

(1.) Idea, pensée; that it is, ce être, subj-1.

(2.) Mrs., Madame; such-a-one, un tel.

(3.) Those, ce là; they, ce.

† EXERCISE.

1. Ladies, are you glad to have seen the new piece?—Yes, we are.

2. I, a * slave! I, born to command! alas! it is but too true that I am so.

3. She was jealous of her authority, and she ought to be so.

4. Was there ever a girl more unhappy, and treated with more ridicule than I am?

5. You have found me amiable: why have I ceased to appear so to you?

6. Have we ever been so quiet as we are?

7. Madam, are you married?—Yes, I am.

8. Madam, are you the bride?—Yes, I am,

(1.) Ladies, Mesdames.

(2.) Slave, esclave; but, ne que.

(3.) Ought, devoir, ind-2.

(4.) With more ridicule, plus ridiculement.

The same rule is likewise observed with the article placed before plus, or moins, and an adjective. It takes neither gender nor number, when there is no comparison, as,

La lune ne nous éclaire pas autant que le soleil, même quand elle est le plus brillante, The moon does not give us so much light as the sun, even when it shines brightest.

But it takes them when there is comparison, as,

De toutes les planètes, la lune est la plus brillante pour nous,† Of all the planets, the moon is the most brilliant to us.

V.

REPETITION OF THE PERSONAL PRONOUNS.

RULE I. Pronouns expressing the first and second persons, when the subject must be repeated before all the verbs, if those verbs are in different tenses; it is always even better to repeat them, when the verbs are in the same tense.

EXAMPLES.

Je soutiens et je soutiendrai toujours,	I maintain, and (I) will always maintain.
Vous dites, et vous avez toujours dit,	You say, and (you) have always said.
Accablé de douleur, je m'écriai et je dis,	Overwhelmed with sorrow, I exclaimed and (I) said.
Nous nous promenions sur le haut du rocher, et nous voyions sous nos pieds, &c.	We were walking upon the summit of the rock, and we saw under our feet, &c.

† EXERCISE.

1. This father could not bring himself to condemn his children, even when they were most guilty.
2. This woman has the art of shedding tears, even when she is least afflicted.
3. Out * of so many criminals, only the most guilty should be punished.
4. Although that woman displays more fortitude than the others, she is not, on that account, the least distressed.

- (1.) Could, ind-2; bring himself, se résoudre.
 (2.) Shedding, répandre de; even when, dans le temps même que.
 (3.) Only the most, &c. (one must punish only the most guilty;) only, ne que.
 (4.) Displays, montrer; fortitude, fermeté; on that account, pour cela; distressed, affligé.

In all cases these pronouns must be repeated, though the tenses of the verbs do not change, if the first of these is followed by a regimen, as,

Vous aimerez le Seigneur votre Dieu, et vous observerez sa loi, ¶ You shall love the Lord your God, and (you shall) observe his law.

RULE II. The pronouns of the third person, when they form the subject, are hardly ever repeated before verbs, except when those verbs are in different tenses.

EXAMPLES.

La bonne grâce ne gâte rien ; elle ajoute à la beauté, relève la modestie, et y donne du lustre, A graceful manner spoils nothing: it adds to beauty, heightens modesty, and gives it lustre.
Il n'a jamais rien valu, et ne vaudra jamais rien, He never was good for any thing, and never will be.
Il est arrivé ce matin, et il repartira ce soir, He arrived this morning, and (he) will set off again this evening.

However, perspicuity requires the repetition of the pronoun, when the second verb is preceded by a long incidental phrase, as—Il fond sur son ennemi, et après

¶ EXERCISE ON THE REPETITION OF THE PERSONAL PRONOUN.

1. My dear child, I love you, and I shall never cease to love you: but it is that very love that I have for you which obliges me to correct you for your faults, and to punish you when you deserve it.

2. I heard and admired these words, which comforted me a little, but my mind was not sufficiently at liberty to make him a reply.

3. Thou art young, and doubtless thou aimest at the glory of surpassing thy comrades.

4. God has said: you shall love your enemies, bless those that curse you, do good to those that persecute you, and pray for those who slander you. What a difference between this morality and that of philosophers!

(1.) Correct for, reprendre de.

(2.) Heard, écouter, ind-2; words, discours, sing.; my mind, &c. (I had not the mind, &c.) sufficiently at liberty, assez libre; to make a reply, répondre à.

(3.) Aimest at, aspirer à; surpassing, l'emporter, &c.

(4.) Slander, calomnier; between, de; and that, à celle.

L'avoir saisi d'une main victorieuse, il le renverse, comme le cruel aquilon abat les tendres moissons qui dorent la campagne.†

RULE III. Any personal pronoun, when the subject must be repeated before verbs, when passing from an affirmation to a negation, and vice versâ, or when the verbs are joined by any conjunction, except et and ni.

EXAMPLES.

Il veut et il ne veut pas,	He will and he will not.
Il donne d'excellens principes, parce qu'il sait que les progrès ultérieurs en dépendent,	He lays down excellent principles, because he knows that upon them depends all further progress.
Il donne et reçoit,	He gives and receives.
Il ne donne ni ne reçoit,‡	He neither gives nor receives.

† EXERCISE.

1. He took the strongest cities, conquered the most considerable provinces, and overturned the most powerful empires.

2. He takes a hatchet, completely cuts down the mast which was already broken, throws it into the sea, jumps upon it amidst the furious billows, calls me by my name, and encourages me to follow him.

3. He marshals the soldiers, marches at their head, advances in good order towards the enemy, attacks and breaks them, and, after having entirely routed them, (he) cuts them to pieces.

(1.) Overtaken, renverser.

(2.) Completely cuts down, achever de couper; jumps upon it, s'élancer dessus; billows, onde.

(3.) Marshals, ranger en bataille; breaks, renverser; entirely routed, achever de mettre en désordre; cuts, tailler.

‡ EXERCISE.

1. It is inconceivable how whimsical she is; from one moment to another she will and she will not.

2. The Jews are forbidden to work on the sabbath; they are as it * were * locked in slumber; they light no fire, and carry no water.

3. For nearly a week she has neither eaten nor drunk.

4. The soldier was not repressed by authority, but stopped from satiety and shame.

(1.) (She is of a whimsical cast inconceivable) whimsical cast, bizarrerie, f.

(2.) (It is forbidden to,) forbidden, défendre; sabbath, jour du sabbat; locked, enchaîné; slumber, repos; light, allumer.

(3.) For, depuis; nearly, près de; a week, huit jours; has eaten....drunk, ind-1

(4.) Repressed, réprimer; stopped, s'arrêter, ind-3; from, par.

RULE IV. Pronouns, when they form the regimen, repeated before any verb.

EXAMPLE.

L'idée de ses malheurs le poursuit, le tourmente et l'accable, The idea of his misfortunes pursues (him,) torments (him,) and overwhelms him.
Il nous ennuie et nous obsède sans cesse, He wearies (us) and besets us unceasingly.

EXCEPTION. It is not repeated before such compound verbs as express the repetition of the same action, when the verbs are in the same tense, as,

Je vous le dis et redis, il le fait et refait sans cesse. ¶

VI.

RELATION OF THE PRONOUNS OF THE THIRD PERSON TO A NOUN AS EXPRESSED BEFORE.

RULE. The pronouns of the third person, il, ils, elle, elles, le, la, les, must always relate to a noun, whether subject or regimen, taken only in a definite sense, before expressed in the same tense, but they must not be applied to a subject and regimen at the same time.

EXAMPLE.

La rose est la reine des fleurs, aussi est-elle l'emblème de la beauté, The rose is the queen of flowers; therefore it is the emblem of beauty.

¶ EXERCISE.

1. It is taste that selects the expressions, that combines, arranges, and varies them, so as to produce the greatest effect.
2. Horace answered his stupid critics not so much to instruct them, as to expose their ignorance, and let them see that they did not even know what poetry was.
3. Man embellishes nature itself; he cultivates, extends, and polishes it.

- (1.) So as to, de manière à ce qu'elles, subj-l.
 (2.) Stupid, sot; not so much, moins; as to, que pour; show, (to them,) their, &c. let see, faire entendre; was, c'était que.

J'aime l'ananas; il est exquis, I like the pine-apple; it is delicious.

But the two following sentences would be equivocal;

Racine a imité Euripide, en tout ce qu'il a de plus beau dans sa Phèdre, Racine has imitated Euripides in all that he has most beautiful in his Phædra.

Le légat publia une sentence d'interdit; il dura trois mois, The legate published a sentence of interdiction; it lasted three months.

As in the first of these two sentences il may relate, either to Racine or to Euripides, and from the construction of the second sentence, il cannot, as it should, relate to interdit. Again, it is not altogether correct, to say, Nulle paix pour l'impie; il la cherche, elle fuit, No peace for the wicked: he seeks it, it flies.

Because, from the construction, the pronouns la and elle seem to be used for nulle paix, whereas the meaning requires that they should supply the place of the substantive paix, in the affirmative.†

† EXERCISE.

1. Poetry embraces all sorts of subjects; it takes in every thing that is most brilliant in history; it enters the fields of philosophy; it soars to the skies; it plunges into the abyss: it penetrates to the dead; it makes the universe its domain; and if this world be not sufficient, it creates new ones, which it embellishes with enchanting abodes, which it peoples with a thousand various inhabitants. •

2. Egypt aimed at greatness; and wished to • strike the eye at a distance, always pleasing it by the justness of proportion.

3. Egypt, satisfied with its own territory, where every thing was in abundance, thought not of conquests; it extended itself in another manner, by sending colonies to every part of the globe, and with them civilization and laws.

(1.) Subjects, matière; takes in, se charger de; that is, y avoir de; (in) the fields, soars to, s'élever dans; plunges, s'enfoncer; to, chez; (its domain of the universe); be sufficient, suffire; ones, monde; enchanting, enchanté; abodes, demeure; various, divers.

(2.) Greatness, grand; wished, vouloir; eye, pl.; at a distance, dans l'éloignement; (in) pleasing, contenter.

(3.) Was in abundance, abonder; thought of, songer à; in, de; by, en; to, par; part of the globe, terre.

II.

POSSESSIVE PRONOUNS.

Explanation of some difficulties attendant on the use of the possessive pronouns.

The possessive pronouns son, sa, ses, leur, leurs, relate either to pronouns, to things personified, or simply to things. If they relate to persons, or things personified, their place can never be supplied by others: but if they relate to things, the following rules must be observed.

The possessive pronouns are always employed,

1. When the object to which they relate is either named, or designated by a personal pronoun in the same member of a phrase.

EXAMPLES.

L'Angleterre étend son commerce par toute la terre,	England extends her commerce over the whole globe.
Elle envoie ses flottes dans toutes les mers,	She sends her fleets into every part of the ocean.

2. Before a noun, when qualified even by a single adjective, unless the noun form the regimen.

EXAMPLE.

Ses ressources immenses sont inépuisables,	Her immense resources are inexhaustible.
--	--

3. After every preposition.

EXAMPLE.

C'est par sa position, jointe à la sagesse de son gouvernement, qu'elle réunit dans son sein de si grands avantages,	It is by her situation, joined to the wisdom of her government, that she unites such vast advantages within herself.
--	--

4. The Messiah is expected by the Hebrews; he comes and calls the Gentiles, as it had been announced by the prophecies; the people that acknowledge him as come, is incorporated with the people that expected him, without a single moment of interruption.

(4.) Gentiles, Gentil; (the prophecies had announced it;) acknowledges, reconnaît; with, & without, sans qu'il y ait; single, seul.

4. Before all words which can govern the preposition de.

EXAMPLES.

Son parlement est le sanctuaire de la plus sage politique, Her parliament is the seat of the wisest policy.
Son roi n'a de pouvoir que pour faire le bien, Her king possesses power only to do good.

On all other occasions, the article, with the pronoun en, placed immediately before the verb, must be substituted.

EXAMPLE.

Tout enfin contribue à m'en faire aimer le séjour ; j'en admire surtout l'exacte police, en même temps que les lois m'en paraissent extrêmement sages,† In short, every thing conspires to make me love that residence : I particularly admire the strictness of her police, at the same time when her laws appear to me extremely wise.

† EXERCISE ON THE POSSESSIVE PRONOUNS.

1. A new custom was a phenomenon in Egypt : for which reason, there never was a people that preserved so long its customs, its laws, and even its ceremonies.

2. Solomon abandons himself to the love of women : his understanding declines, his heart weakens, and his piety degenerates into idolatry.

3. That superb temple was upon the summit of a hill : its columns were of Parian marble, and its gates of gold.

4. Laocoon is one of the finest statues in France : not only the whole, but all its features, even the least, are admirable.

5. The Thames is a magnificent river : its channel is so wide and so deep below London-bridge, that several thousands of vessels lie at their ease in it.

6. This fine country is justly admired by foreigners : its climate is delightful, its soil fruitful, its laws wise, and its government just and moderate.

7. The trees of that orchard have sun enough, yet its fruits are but indifferent.

(1.) Phenomenon, prodige ; for which reason, aussi ; a, de ; preserved, subj-3.

(2.) Understanding, esprit ; declines, baisser ; weakens, s'affaiblir.

(3.) Summit, haut ; hill, colline ; Parian, de Paros.

(4.) In, qu'il y ait en ; the whole, l'ensemble ; even, jusqu'à.

(5.) Magnificent, superbe ; channel, lit ; below, au dessous de ; lie at, être à ; their, art. ; in it, y.

(6.) Justly, avec raison ; soil, sol.

(7.) Have sun enough, être bien exposé ; but indifferent, assez mauvais.

Again, when there exists any doubt whether the possessive pronoun ought to be used, or not, before a noun that is the regimen, the following is the RULE. The article, not the possessive pronoun, must be put before a noun forming the regimen, when a pronoun which is either subject, or regimen, sufficiently supplies the place of that possessive, or when there is no sort of ambiguity.

EXAMPLES.

J'ai mal à la tête,	I have the head-ache.
Il faudrait lui couper la jambe,	It would be necessary to take off his leg.
Ce cheval a pris le mors aux dents,‡	That horse has run away.

8. The Seine has its source in Burgundy, its mouth is at Havre-de-Grâce.

9. The pyramids of Egypt astonish, both by the enormity of their bulk, and the justness of their proportions.

10. Egypt alone could erect monuments for posterity; its obelisks are to this day, as well for their beauty as for their height, the principal ornaments of Rome.

11. History and geography throw mutual light on each other; a * perfect knowledge of them ought to enter into the plan of good education.

(8.) Mouth, embouchure; Havre, le Havre.

(9.) Both, également et; bulk, masse; and, et par.

(10.) Egypt alone could, il n'appartenait qu'à l'Egypte de; erect, élever; to this day, encore aujourd'hui; as well for, autant par; height, hauteur.

(11.) Throw mutual light, &c. s'éclairer l'une par l'autre; of them, (their.)

‡ EXERCISE.

1. During the whole winter he has had bad eyes.

2. I had a fall yesterday, and hurt my back and head.

3. It would be better for a man to lose his life than forfeit * his honour by a criminal 2 action 1.

4. In this bloody battle, he received a wound by a shot in his right arm, and another in his left leg: by dint of care his arm was saved, but it was necessary to amputate his leg.

(1.) Has had bad, avoir mal à.

(2.) Had a fall, se laisser tomber; hurt, se faire mal à; back, reins, pl.

(3.) Would be better, valoir mieux, cond-1.

(4.) A wound by a shot, un coup de feu; in, à; by dint, à force; his arm, &c. (they saved the arm to him;) was necessary, falloir, ind-3; to amputate, to him.

But should either the personal pronoun, or circumstances, not remove all ambiguity, then the possessive pronoun must be joined to the noun, as,

Je vois que ma jambe s'enfle,	I see that my leg is swelling.
Il lui donna sa main à baiser,	He gave him his hand to kiss.
Elle a donné hardiment son bras au chirurgien,†	She courageously presented her arm to the surgeon.

Ma, not la, because I may also see the leg of another person swelling.

REM. 1. Although verbs which are conjugated with two pronouns of the same person generally remove every kind of amphibology, yet custom authorizes some familiar expressions, in which the possessive pronoun seems to be redundant, as,

Il se tient ferme sur ses pieds,	He stands firm upon his feet.
Je l'ai vu, de mes propres yeux.	I have seen it with my own eyes.

2. When speaking of an habitual complaint, the possessive pronoun is properly used, as,

Sa migraine l'a repris,	His head-ache is returned.
--------------------------------	----------------------------

The possessive pronouns are subject to the same rules as the article; they must therefore be repeated before all substantives which are either subject or regimen, and before adjectives which express different qualities, as,

Son père, sa mère, et ses frères sont de retour,	His father, mother, and brothers are come back.
Je lui ai montré mes plus beaux et mes plus vilains habits,	I have shown him my finest and my ugliest dresses.

† EXERCISE.

1. In this interview, they made each other presents; she gave him her portrait, and he gave her his finest diamond.

2. A young surgeon preparing to bleed the great Condé, this prince said to him, smiling, do not you tremble to bleed me? I, my lord, no, certainly; it is not I, it is you who ought to tremble. The prince, charmed with the reply, immediately gave him his arm.

(1.) Interview, entrevue; made each other, se faire mutuellement.

(2.) Preparing, se disposer; bleed, saigner; smiling, d'un air riant; it is, not I, (it is not me;) it is you, (it is to you;) who ought to, do; reply, répartie.

This rule, which is seldom observed in English, is common in French to all pronominal adjectives.†

III.

RELATIVE PRONOUNS.

Qui, when it is the subject, may very properly relate both to persons and things.

EXAMPLES.

L'homme qui joue perd son temps, The man who games loses his time.

Le livre qui plaît le plus, n'est pas toujours le plus utile, The book which pleases most is not always the most useful.

But when it is the regimen, it can only be used of persons, or of things personified, whether the regimen be direct, or indirect.

EXAMPLES.

Quand on est délicat et sage dans ses goûts, on ne s'attache pas, sans savoir qui l'on aime, He who is wise and discriminate in his choice, does not form an attachment, without knowing the person he loves.

† EXERCISE.

1. Whatever he may do, he always finds himself safe.
2. Can you still doubt the truth of what I tell you? Would you ask a stronger proof than that I give you, it is that I heard it, yes, heard it with my own ears.
3. My gout does not allow me a moment's repose.
4. It is in vain that I exhort you to work and study: your idleness, that cruel disease under * which you labour, renders useless all the exhortations of friendship.
5. If you wish to be beloved, fail not to perform the promises you have just made.
6. In the retreat that I have chosen for myself, my study and my garden are my greatest delight.
7. He brought me into his laboratory, and showed me his large and small vessels.

(1.) Finds himself, se retrouver; safe, sur ses jambes.

(2.) Can, cond-1; doubt, douter de; ask, exiger.

(3.) Allow, laisser.

(4.) It is in vain that I, je avoir beau; you labour, vous travailler.

(5.) Fail not, ne pas manquer; perform, remplir; have just made, venir de faire.

(6.) For myself, (to me;) study, cabinet; are, faire; greatest, plus cher.

(7.) Brought, mener; laboratory, laboratoire; vessels, vaisseau.

L'homme à qui appartient ce beau jardin est très-riche, The man to whom this fine garden belongs is very rich.
 La femme de qui vous parlez, The woman of whom you are speaking.

REM. When the regimen indirect is expressed by the preposition de, then dont should be preferred to de qui. It is better to say: la femme dont vous parlez; however, when the verb expresses a kind of transfer or conveyance, de qui must be used, as,

Celui de qui je tiens cette nouvelle, The person from whom I had that intelligence.

RULE I. Qui must not be separated from its antecedent, when that antecedent is a noun.

EXAMPLE.

Un jeune homme qui est docile aux conseils qu'on lui donne, et qui aime à en recevoir, aura infailliblement du mérite, A young man who is obedient to the advice that is given him, and who loves to receive this, will infallibly have merit.

REM. In some phrases qui may be separated from the substantive, by several words: that is, when the sense obliges us to refer it to that substantive, as,

Il a fallu, avant toute chose, vous faire lire dans l'écriture sainte, l'histoire du peuple de Dieu, qui fait le fondement de la religion.

This sentence is very correct, because, as du peuple determines the kind of history, and de Dieu the kind of people, the mind necessarily goes back to the substantive histoire, to which it refers the incidental phrase.

Qui may likewise be separated from its antecedent, when this antecedent is a pronoun used as the regimen direct, as,

Il la trouva qui pleurait à chaudes larmes, He found her crying bitterly.
 Je le vois qui joue, I see him playing.

Because, in this case, the true place of the pronoun is before the verb, and it is the same as saying, il trouva elle qui pleurait, &c. je vois lui qui joue. Also in these kinds of sentences, which are real gallicisms, Ceux-là ne sont pas les plus malheureux, qui se plaignent le plus, ‡ Those are not the most unhappy who complain the most.

RULE II. The relative qui must always have a reference to a noun taken in a determinate sense.

EXAMPLES.

L'homme est un animal raisonnable, qui, &c. Il me reçut avec une politesse, qui, &c.

But we cannot say, l'homme est animal raisonnable, qui, &c. Il me reçut avec politesse, qui, &c.

REM. Though in many phrases, the determinate nature of the nouns is not expressed, yet it is clearly understood. Thus, all these phrases are correct:

Il n'a point de livre, qui ne soit de son choix,	He has not a book that is not of his own selecting.
Y a-t-il ville dans le royaume qui soit plus favorisée?	Is there a city in the kingdom that is more favoured?
Il se conduit en homme qui connaît le monde,	He behaves himself like a man who knows the world.

‡ EXERCISE.

1. A young man who loves vanity of dress, like a woman, is unworthy of wisdom and glory; glory is only due to a heart that knows how * to * suffer pain and trample upon pleasure.

2. Thyself, O my son, my dear son, thou * thyself that now enjoyest a youth so cheerful and so full of pleasure, remember that this delightful age is but a flower which will be 1 withered 3 almost as soon 2 as blown.

3. Men pass away like flowers, which open in * the morning, and at night are withered and trampled under foot.

4. You must have a man that loves nothing but truth and you, that will speak the truth in spite of you, that will force all your intrenchments; and this necessary character is the very man whom you have sent into exile.

5. We perceived him waiting for us, quietly seated under the shade of a tree.

(1.) Vanity of dress, à se parer vainement; trample upon, fouler aux pieds.

(2.) Cheerful, vif; full of, féconde en; remember, se souvenir; delightful, bel; withered, sécher; blown, éclose.

(3.) Open, s'épanouir; and, (which;) at night, le soir; withered, flétrir; under, à; foot, art. pl.

(4.) You must have, il vous falloir; nothing but, ne que; will speak, will force, subj.-1; intrenchments, retranchement; character, homme; man, même; sent into exile, exiler.

(5.) Waiting for, (who waited,) attendre; under, à.

Il est accablé de maux, qui ne lui laissent pas un instant de repos, He is overwhelmed with misfortunes, that do not allow him a moment's rest.
C'est une sorte de fruit, qui ne mûrit pas en Europe, It is a sort of fruit that does not ripen in Europe.

From the translation of all the above examples, it is evident that livre, ville, maux, are really determinate, the meaning being: il n'a pas un livre qui, &c. y a-t-il une ville qui, &c. ¶

Que relates both to persons and things. It is always the regimen direct, and cannot subsist without an antecedent expressed, which it generally follows. L'homme que je vois, la pêche que je mange. We say, generally, because, in some instances, it may be separated from the antecedent by several words: that is, when the mind necessarily goes back to that antecedent, as in this sentence of Fléchier's, Qu'est-ce qu'une armée?—c'est un corps animé d'une infinité de passions différentes, qu'un homme habile fait mouvoir pour la défense de la patrie.

REM. There are instances where que is apparently

¶ EXERCISE.

1. He received us with such goodness, civility, and grace, as charmed us, and made us forget all we had suffered.
2. There is no city in the world where there are more riches and a greater population.
3. Is there a man can say, I shall live till to-morrow?
4. He has no friend but would make for him every kind of sacrifice.
5. He is surrounded by enemies, who are continually observing him, and would be very glad to detect him in a fault.
6. In his retreat, he lives like a philosopher, who knows mankind and mistrusts them.
7. The pine-apple is a sort of fruit that in Europe ripens only in hot-houses.
8. That man is a sort of pedant, who takes words for ideas, and facts confusedly heaped together for knowledge.

- (1.) Such—as, un—qui; civility, politesse. (2.) There are, subj.
 (3.) Man, (who;) can, subj. (4.) But, qui ne; would make, subj-2.
 (5.) Like a, en; philosopher, sage; mistrusts, se défier de.
 (7.) Pine-apple, ananas; hot-houses, serre chaude.
 (8.) Heaped together, entasser; knowledge, savoir.

used as regimen indirect for à qui, or dont, as: C'est à vous que je parle ; c'est de lui que je parle ; de la façon que j'ai dit la chose. But in this case, que is a conjunction.†

Lequel and dont relate both to persons and things. But lequel ought never to be used either as a subject, or object, except to avoid ambiguity ; for, whenever the sense is evident, qui or que must be used.

Lequel, with the preposition de, is either followed, or preceded by a noun, which it unites to the principal sentence. If it be followed, dont is preferable to duquel, both for persons and things. Thus :

La Tamise dont le lit, and not, de laquelle.
Le prince dont la protection, and not, duquel.

If lequel be preceded by the noun, we can only make use of duquel when speaking of things, as, la Tamise, dans le lit de laquelle ; and it is always better to use it when speaking of persons, as, le prince à la protection duquel ; de qui would not be so well.

With the preposition à auquel, when speaking of

† EXERCISE.

1. The God whom the Hebrews and Christians have always served, has nothing in common with the deities full of imperfection and even of vice worshipped by the rest of the world.

2. The Epic poem is not the panegyric of a hero who is proposed as a * pattern, but the recital of great and illustrious actions, which are exhibited for imitation.

3. The good which we hope for * presents itself to us, and disappears like an empty dream, which vanishes when we awake : to teach us, that the very things which we think we hold fast in our hands, may slip away in an instant.

4. Plato says, that, in writing, we ought to hide ourselves, to disappear, to make the world forget us, that we may present nothing but the truths we wish to impress.

(1.) (That the rest of the world worshipped.)

(2) Is proposed, on propose ; as, pour ; pattern, modèle ; is exhibited, on donne ; imitation, exemple.

(3.) Good, bien ; disappears, s'envoler ; empty, vain ; vanishes, &c. le réveil fait évanouir ; we * hold fast, tenir le mieu ; in our hands * ; slip away, nous échapper.

(4.) We, on ; to make the world forget, se faire oublier ; that we may present but, pour ne produire que ; wish, vouloir ; impress, persuader.

things, as, les places aux-quelles il aspire, but we ought to prefer à qui, when speaking of persons, as,

Les rois à qui on doit obéir.

Auxquels would not do so well.

So the relative qui, preceded by a preposition, never relates to things, but to persons only.†

Quoi only relates to things. It is placed after the word to which it relates, but is always preceded by a preposition, and is generally followed by the subject of the phrase with which it is connected, as,

La chose à quoi on pense ; voilà les conditions sans quoi la chose ne peut se faire.

To this mode of expression are to be preferred, lequel, duquel, auquel, as being much better ; for quoi is never used with any degree of propriety, but

† EXERCISE.

1. The grand principle on which the whole turns is, that all * the world is but one republic, of which God is the common father, and in which every nation forms, as it were, one great family.

2. Homer, whose genius is grand and sublime like nature, is the greatest poet, and perhaps the most profound moralist of antiquity.

3. The celebrated Zenobia, whose noble firmness 2 you have admired 1, preferred dying with the title of queen, rather * than accept the advantageous 2 offers 1 which Aurelian made her.

4. The Alps, on the summit of which the astonished eye discovers perpetual snow and ice, present, at sun-set, the most striking and most magnificent spectacle.

5. A king, to whose care we owe a good law, has done more for his own glory, than if he had conquered the universe.

6. The ambitious man * sees nothing but pleasure in the possession of the offices to which he aspires with so much eagerness instead of seeing the trouble that is inseparable from them.

7. Kings, whom religion makes it our duty to obey, are, upon earth, the true representation of the providence of God.

(1.) Turns, rouler ; every, chaque ; as it were, comme.

(2.) Preferred, aimer mieux ; than, que de.

(4.) Perpetual, éternel ; snow, ice, pl ; sun-set, soleil couchant ; striking, imposant.

(5.) Care, sollicitude.

(7.) (To) whom ; makes it our duty to, faire un devoir de ; representation, image.

when it relates to a vague and indefinite subject, such as ce, or rien, as,

C'est de quoi je m'occupe sans cesse.

Il n'y a rien à quoi je sois plus disposé.

Où, d'où, par où, relate only to things. They are never used, but when the nouns, to which they refer, express some kind of motion, or rest, at least metaphorically, as,

Voilà le but où il tend,

C'est une chose d'où dépend le bonheur public,

Les lieux par où il a passé,

That is the end he aims at.

It is a thing upon which the public happiness depends.

The places through which he has passed.

ABSOLUTE PRONOUNS.

Qui relates only to persons presenting but a vague indeterminate idea, as,

¶ EXERCISE.

1. What a young man, who begins the world, ought principally to attend to, is not to give it a high opinion of his understanding, but to gain numerous friends by the qualities of his heart.

2. A youth passed in idleness, effeminacy, and pleasure, lays up for * us nothing but sorrow and disgust in old age; this, however, is what we little think of when we are young.

3. There is nothing by which we are more affected than the loss of fortune, although, being frail and perishable by its nature, it cannot contribute to our happiness.

4. A grove, in which I defy the burning heats of the dog-star, a retired valley, where I can meditate in peace, a high hill, whence my eye extends over immense plains, are the places where I spend the happiest moments of my life.

(1.) To what, ce à quoi; begins, entrer dans; to attend, s'attacher; it, y; opinion, idée; understanding, esprit; to gain, se faire; numerous, beaucoup de.

(2.) Idleness, inutilité; effeminacy, mollesse; pleasure, volepté; lays up, préparer; of, à; we, on.

(3.) By, à; we, on; affected, sensible; frail, frêle; by, de; cannot, subj-1; our (the.)

(4.) Grove, bosquet; defy, braver; burning heats, ardeur; dog-star, canicule; spend, passer.

Qui sera assez hardi pour l'attaquer ? Who will be bold enough to attack him ?

It is likewise used in the feminine, and in the plural, as,

Qui est cette personne-là ? Who is that person ?
Qui sont ces femmes-là ? Who are those women ?

Que and quoi relate to things only, as,

Que pouvait la valcur en ce combat funeste ? What could valour do in that fatal combat ?
A quoi pensez-vous ? What are you thinking of ?

Que is sometimes used for à quoi, de quoi, as,

Que sert la science sans la vertu ? What avails learning without virtue ?
Que sert à l'avare d'avoir des trésors ? What use is it to the miser to possess treasures ?

that is, à quoi sert, &c. de quoi sert, &c.

Quoi, when relating to a whole sentence, is the only authorized expression that can be used, as,

La vie passe comme un songe ; c'est cependant à quoi on ne pense guères.

REM. Que and quoi require the preposition de before the adjective or substantive that follows them, as,

Que dit-on de nouveau ? quoi de plus agréable !
Que d'inconséquences dans sa conduite !

Quel relates to both persons and things, as,

Quel homme peut se promettre un bonheur constant ?
Quelle grâce ! quelle beauté ! mais quelle modestie !

• Où, d'où par où, relate but to things.†

* † EXERCISE ON ABSOLUTE PRONOUNS.

1. Who could ever persuade himself, did not daily experience convince us of it, that, out of a hundred persons, there are ninety who sacrifice, to the enjoyment of the present, all the best founded hopes of the future.

2. Who would not love virtue for its own sake, could he see it in all its beauty ?

(1.) Did, si ; out of, sur ; future, avenir.

(2.) Its own sake, elle-même ; could he, si on pouvoit, ind-2.

V.

DEMONSTRATIVE PRONOUNS.

Ce, joined to the verb être, always governs this verb in the singular, except when it is followed by the third person plural.

C'est moi, c'est toi, c'est lui, c'est nous, c'est vous.

But in different cases we must say,

*Ce sont eux, ce sont elles, Sont-ce les Anglais, qui ont fait cela ?
Ce furent vos ancêtres qui, Est-ce les Anglais que vous aimez ?
Fût-ce nos propres fils qui, Fût-ce nos propres fils que.*

Ce, when relating to a person, or thing mentioned before, supplies the place of il, or elle. Ce must always be used, when the verb être is followed by a substantive, accompanied by the article, or the adjective un.

3. He who does not know how * to apply himself in his youth, does not know what to do when arrived at maturity.

4. He was a wise legislator, who, having given to his countrymen laws calculated to make them good and happy, made them swear not to violate any of those laws during his absence: after which, he went away, exiled himself from his country, and died poor in a foreign land.

5. What people of antiquity ever had better laws than the Egyptians? What other nation ever undertook to erect monuments calculated to triumph over both time and barbarism?

6. What more instructive and entertaining than to read celebrated authors in their own language? What beauty, what delicacy, and grace, which cannot be transcribed into a translation, are discovered in them!

7. When Ménage had published his book on the Origin of the French language, Christina, queen of Sweden, said: "Ménage is the most troublesome 3 man 1 in the world 2: he cannot let one word 2 go 1 without its passport: he must know whence it comes, where it has passed through, and whither it is going."

(3.) (To) what; to do, s'occuper; when arrived, &c., dans l'âge mûr.

(4.) He, ce; calculated, propre; not to, (that they would not;) went away, partir.

(5.) Calculated to, fait pour; both, également; over, de.
(6.) Language, langue; delicacy, finesse; which cannot, qu'on ne peut; be transcribed, faire passer; translation, traduction; are, &c. n'y découvre-t-on pas.

(7.) When, après que; Christina, Christine; troublesome, incommode; the, de, art; cannot, ne saurait; go, passer; must, vouloir.

EXAMPLES.

Lisez Homère et Virgile : ce sont les plus grands poètes de l'antiquité,	Read Homer and Virgil : they are the best poets of antiquity.
La douceur, l'affabilité et une certaine urbanité, distinguent l'homme qui vit dans le grand monde ; ce sont là les marques auxquelles on le reconnaît,	Gentleness, affability, and a certain urbanity, distinguish the man that frequents polite company ; these are marks by which he may be known.
Avez-vous lu Platon ? c'est un des plus beaux génies de l'antiquité,	Have you read Plato ? he is one of the greatest geniuses of antiquity.

But, when the verb être is followed by an adjective, or by a substantive taken adjectively, il, or elle, must be used.

EXAMPLES.

Lisez Démosthène et Cicéron ; ils sont très-éloquens,	Read Demosthenes and Cicero ; they are very eloquent.
J'ai vu l'hôpital de Greenwich ; il est magnifique et digne d'une grande nation,	I have seen Greenwich Hospital ; it is superb, and worthy of a great nation.
Compteriez-vous sur Valère ? ignorez-vous qu'il est homme à ne jamais revenir de ses premières idées ?	Would you rely upon Valère ? do you not know that he is a man who will never abandon his first opinions ?

Ce, followed by a relative pronoun, relates to things only. It is always masculine singular, as it only denotes : EXERCISE ON DEMONSTRATIVE PRONOUNS.

1. It is we who have drawn that misfortune upon * ourselves through our thoughtlessness and imprudence.

2. It was the Egyptians that first observed the course of the stars, regulated the year, and invented arithmetic.

3. Peruse attentively Plato and Cicero : they are the two philosophers of antiquity who have given us the most sound and luminous ideas upon morality.

4. If you are intended for the pulpit, read over and over again Bourdaloue and Massillon : they are both very eloquent ; but the aim of the former is to convince, and that of the latter to persuade.

(1.) Have drawn, s'attirer ; thoughtlessness, légèreté.

(2.) First, les premiers ; stars, astre.

(3.) Peruse, lire ; sound, sain ; morality, morale.

(4.) Are intended for, se destiner à ; pulpit, chaire ; read over and over again, lire et relire sans cesse ; aim, but.

a vague object, which is not sufficiently specified to know its gender and number.

EXAMPLE.

Ce qui flatte est plus dangereux What flatters is more dangerous que ce qui offense, than what offends.

Ce, joined to the relative pronouns, qui, que, dont, and quoi, has, in some instances, a construction peculiar to itself. Both ce and the relative pronoun that follows it, form, with the verb which they precede, the subject of another phrase, of which the verb is always être. Now, être may be followed by another verb, an adjective, or a noun.

When être then is followed by another verb, the demonstrative ce must be repeated, as,

Ce que j'aime le plus, c'est d'être What I like most, is to be seul, alone.

When followed by an adjective, the demonstrative is not repeated, as,

Ce dont vous venez de me parler What you have been mention-est horrible, ing to me is horrid.

When it is followed by a substantive, the demonstrative may either be repeated, or not, at pleasure, except in the case of a plural, or a personal pronoun. Thus, we may say,

Ce que je dis, est la vérité, or, What I say is the truth.
c'est la vérité,

Though the former is best. But we must say,

Ce qui m'indigne, ce sont les What provokes me, are the injuinjustices, qu'on ne cesse de ries which are continually faire, committed.

Ce qui m'arrache au sentiment What alleviates the grief that qui m'accable, c'est vous, oppresses me, is you.

Most of these rules contribute to the elegance of the language. ¶

¶ EXERCISE.

1. What is astonishing is not always what is pleasing.

(1.) Is astonishing, étonner ; is pleasing, plaire.

Ceci and cela apply only to things; however, in the familiar style, custom authorizes us to say, in speaking of one person individually, or of many collectively; cela est heureux! cela croupit dans la fange; cela est gueux et fier, &c.†

CHAP. VI.

PRONOUNS INDEFINITE.

Though on may generally be considered as a masculine pronoun, as in the phrase, on n'est pas toujours maître de ses passions, there are however occasions in which it is evidently feminine, as, on n'est pas toujours jeune et jolie: it may likewise be followed by a plural, as, on se battit en désespérés; est-on des traîtres?

This pronoun must be repeated before all the verbs

† EXERCISE.

1. Whichever of you shall be found to excel the others both in mind and body, shall be acknowledged king of the island.

2. There are admirable pictures; these are after the manner of Rubens, and those after the manner of Van-Huysum.

3. Why are the statues of the most celebrated modern sculptors, notwithstanding the perfection to which the arts have been carried, so much inferior to those of the ancients?

4. He whose soul, glowing, as it were, with divine fire, shall represent to himself the whole of nature, and shall breathe into objects that spirit of life which animates them, those affecting traits which delight and ravish us, will be a man of real genius.

5. He that judges of others by himself, is liable to many mistakes.

6. He that is easily offended, discovers his weak side, and affords his enemies an opportunity of taking advantage of it.

7. He who loves none but himself, deserves not to be beloved by others.

(1.) Be found to excel the others, on juger vainqueur; both in, et pour (repeated.)

(2.) There are, voilà de; picture, tableau; are after, être dans; manner, genre.

(3.) Are, (to be placed before so much inferior;) have been carried, (active voice,) with, on; inferior, au-dessous.

(4.) Glowing with, enflammé de; as it were, pour ainsi dire; the whole of, tout; shall breathe into, répandre sur; affecting, touchant; delight, séduire; real, vrai.

(5.) Is offended, s'offenser; weak side, faible; affords, fournir à; of taking advantage, profiter.

of a sentence, and refer to one and the same subject. Thus, the sentence,

On croit être aimé et l'on ne nous aime pas.

is incorrect; it should be,

On croit être aimé et l'on ne l'est pas.

Quiconque is generally masculine, however, it is feminine, when speaking of, or to females, as, quiconque de vous, Mesdames, &c. Though perhaps, celle de vous, &c. is preferable.†

Chacun, though always singular, may be followed, sometimes by son, sa, ses, and sometimes by leur, leurs, which, in many instances, is embarrassing.

There is no difficulty in those phrases where chacun is not contrasted with a plural number; for then son, sa, ses, must be used, as,

Donnez à chacun sa part,

Give to each his share.

Que chacun songe à ses affaires,

Let every one mind his own business.

RULE. In phrases where chacun is contrasted with a plural to which it refers, son, sa, ses, must be employed, when chacun is placed after the regimen; but † EXERCISE ON PRONOUNS INDEFINITE.

1. Do you sincerely think, said Emily to Lucilla, that when women are sensible and pretty, they are ignorant of * it: no, they know it very well; but if they are watchful over their character, they are not proud of these advantages.

2. We are not slaves, to receive such treatment.

3. Do you know what they do here? They eat, they drink, they dance, they play, they walk, in a word, they kill time in the gayest manner possible.

4. Whoever of you is bold enough to slander me, I will make him repent it.

5. Whoever of you is attentive and discreet, shall receive a reward that will flatter her.

(1.) Sincerely, de bonne foi; Emily, Emilie; women, on; they, on; know, savoir; watchful over, jaloux de; character, réputation; are proud, s'enorgueillir.

(2.) We, on; slaves, (des) esclaves; to receive, pour essayer de.

(3.) They, on; in the gayest manner, le plus galement; possible, (that they can.)

(4.) Is, ind-7; to slander, pour médire de; it (of it.)

(5.) Is, ind-7; that will, fait pour.

leur, leurs, must be used, when chacun is placed before the regimen.

EXAMPLES OF son, sa, ses.

Remettez ces médailles chacune en sa place, Return those medals each into its proper place.
Les hommes devraient s'aimer, chacun pour son propre intérêt, Men ought to love one another, each for his own interest.

EXAMPLE OF leur, leurs.

Les hommes devraient avoir, chacun pour leur propre intérêt, de l'amour les uns pour les autres, Men ought for their own interest, to have an affection for each other.

REM. In phrases where chacun is contrasted with a plural, there are two senses, the collective and the distributive. When chacun is placed after the regimen, the collective sense expressed by the plural is finished; and the distributive chacun acts separately the part of each individual: but when chacun precedes the regimen, the collective sense remaining incomplete, must be carried on to the end; and then the pronoun which follows chacun is put in the plural, as,

La reine dit elle-même aux députés, qu'il était temps qu'ils s'en retournassent chacun chez eux.†

Personne, used as a pronoun, is always masculine;

† EXERCISE.

1. Go into my library, and put the books which have been sent back to me, each into its place.

2. They have all brought offerings to the temple, every one according to his means and devotion.

3. Thierry charged Uncelanus to carry his orders to the mutineers, and to make them retire each under his colours.

4. Each of them has brought his offering, and fulfilled his religious duty.

5. Had Ronsard and Balzac each, in his manner of writing, a sufficient degree of merit to form after them any very great man in verse and in prose?

6. After a day so usefully spent, we went back, each to our own home.

(2.) Offerings, offrande.

(3.) To carry, aller porter; mutineers, mutin; colours, drapeau.

(4.) (They have brought each their, &c.) fulfilled, remplir.

(5.) Manner of writing, genre; a sufficient degree, assez; merit, bon; any, un.

(6.) Day, journée; went back, retourner; to, chez; our own home, (pron. personal.)

of course the adjective relating to it must be of that gender, as,

Personne n'est aussi heureux Nobody is so happy as she.
qu'elle,

L'un et l'autre require the verb they govern to be in the plural. See p. 267.

Ni l'un ni l'autre likewise generally govern the verb in the plural, when both may at the same time receive the action expressed by the verb; however, the two following modes

Ni l'un ni l'autre n'ont fait leur devoir, or

Ni l'un ni l'autre n'a fait son devoir, are authorized; but whenever this action applies only to a single object, the verb must be in the singular, as,

Ni l'un ni l'autre n'est mon père; ni l'un ni l'autre ne sera nommé à cette ambassade.

But when ni l'un ni l'autre elegantly stand after the verb, the verb is always in the plural, as,

Ils ne sont morts ni l'un ni l'autre.†

Tout, and rien, when the regimen direct, are placed after the verb, in simple tenses, and between the auxiliary and the participle, in compound tenses, as, il

7. Minds that possess any correctness, examine things with attention, in order to give a fair judgment of them; and they place each 2 of * them 1 in the rank it ought to occupy.

(7.) Possess any, avoir de; correctness, justesse; give a fair judgment, juger avec connaissance; place, mettre; to occupy, avoir.

† EXERCISE.

1. Nobody is so severe, so virtuous in public, as some women who practise the least restraint in private.

2. Nobody could be happier than she; but as a consequence of that levity which you know she has, she has lost all the advantages that she had received from nature and education.

3. Racine and Fénelon will be always the delight of feeling minds: both 2 possessed 1 in the highest degree the art of exciting in us at pleasure the most tender and the most lively emotions.

(1.) Some, aussi; some, certain; practise the least restraint, être le moins retenu.

(2.) Could, ind-2; the, un; levity, légèreté, know she has, lui connaître.

(3.) Always, dans tous les temps; both, l'un et l'autre; in the, au; pleasure, gré.

avoue tout ; il n'avoue rien ; il a tout avoué ; il n'a rien avoué. But when they form the regimen indirect, they are always placed after the verb, both in simple and in compound tenses, as, il rit de tout ; il ne se mêle de rien ; il a pensé à tout ; il n'a pensé à rien.

Tout is sometimes used as an adverb, as,

Il lui dit tout froidement, He told him quite coolly.

Sometimes also, it represents quoique, encore que, entièrement, quelque, in which case the following rule must be observed,

RULE. Tout before an adjective, or a substantive which is used adjectively, never takes either gender, or number, except when immediately followed by an adjective feminine, beginning with a consonant, or h aspirated, as,

Les enfans, tout aimables qu'ils sont, Children, amiable as they are.

Ils sont tout interdits, They are quite disconcerted.

La vertu tout austère qu'elle paraît, Virtue, austere as it may appear.

Ces images tout amusantes qu'elles sont, These images, entertaining as they may be.

C'est une tête toute vide, It is quite a vacant head.

Ces dames, toutes spirituelles qu'elles sont, These ladies, witty as they may be.

Ces fleurs sont tout aussi fraîches que celles que vous avez, These flowers are quite as fresh as those which you have.

Ces dames sont, tout ainsi que vous, tout comme vous, belles jeunes et spirituelles, These ladies, as well as you, are handsome, young, and ingenious.

In this latter sense, tout is little more than a mere expletive. §

5. Balzac and Voiture enjoyed in their time great celebrity; but neither 2 has been read 1 since by good taste 1; the native and simple graces 3 are preferred 2 to the bombast of the former, and the affectation of the latter.

(4.) Enjoyed, ind-4; neither, ni l'un ni l'autre; has been read, (they read them no more;) native, du naturel; simple, de la simplicité; are preferred, (active voice) depuis que le bon goût a fait préférer les, &c.; bombast, bouffissure.

Quelque—que, joined to a substantive, either alone, or accompanied by an adjective, takes the sign of the plural.

EXAMPLES.

Quelques richesses que vous ayez, Whatever riches you may possess.
Quelques bonnes œuvres que vous fassiez, Whatever good actions you may do.
Quelques peines affreuses que vous éprouviez, However dreadful pains you may suffer.

But, when joined to an adjective, separated from its substantive, it does not take the sign of the plural.

§ EXERCISE.

1. Children, amiable as they are, have, nevertheless, many faults which it is of importance to correct.

2. The philosophers of antiquity, although very * enlightened, have given us but very confused ideas of the Deity, and very vague notions about the principal duties of the law of nature.

3. Those flowers, inodorous as they are, are not the less esteemed.

4. Virtue, austere as it is, makes us enjoy real pleasures.

5. Fables, although very * entertaining, yet 4 truly 5 interest 3 us 2 only, when they convey instruction to us, under the disguise of an ingenious allegory.

6. Although that absurd pedant is an incessant 2 scribbler 1, yet his head is altogether empty.

7. Far be from us those maxims of flattery, that kings are born with talents, and that their favoured souls come out of God's hands completely wise and learned.

8. Those fountains glide quite gently through a mead enamelled with flowers.

9. These peaches are quite as good as those of the south of France.

(1.) Have nevertheless, ne laisser pas d'avoir ; faults, défaut ; of importance, essentiel. (2.) Enlightened, éclairés qu'ils étaient ; of nature, naturel.

(3.) Inodorous, inodore ; not, n'en.

(4.) Enjoy, goûter de.

(5.) Entertaining, amusantes qu'elles sont ; truly, véritablement ; only, ne 1 que 6 ; convey, offrir ; disguise, voile.

(6.) Incessant, infatigable ; scribbler, écrivain ; his head is, (he has not less the head :) not, n'en ; altogether, tout.

(7.) Far be, loin ; of, de, art. ; are born, naître ; with talents, habile ; favoured, privilégié ; come out, sortir ; learned, savant.

(8.) Glide, couler ; gently, doucement ; through a mead, sur un gazon.

(9.) South, midi.

EXAMPLES.

Tous les hommes, quelque opposés qu'ils soient, All men, however opposite they may be.
Ces actions, quelque belles qu'on les trouve, Those actions, however brilliant they may be found.

Quelque—que, and quel que, joined to a substantive, (p. 120,) have the same meaning, although they are not used indifferently for each other. If the pronoun stands before the substantive, we make use of quelque—que; as,

Quelques richesses que vous ayez ;

But, if the verb intervene, then we make use of quel que in two separate words, as,

Quelles que soient les richesses que vous ayez.†

† EXERCISE.

1. Whatever talents you may possess, whatever advantages you may have received from nature and education, with * whatever perfections you may be endowed, expect only the suffrage of a small number of men.

2. However great services you may have rendered mankind, rather look for their ingratitude than their acknowledgments.

3. However useful, however well written the works which you have published, yet think not that you will immediately reap the fruits of your labours; it is but by slow degrees that light introduces itself among men. The course of time is swift: but it seems to lag, when it brings reason and truth along with it.

4. Whatever may be the obstacles which ignorance, prejudice, and envy oppose to the true principles of an art, yet we ought never to be deterred from propagating them: the sun does not cease to shine, because its light hurts the eyes of night-birds.

5. Whatever be your birth, whatever your riches and dignities, remember that you are frustrating the views of Providence, if you do not make use of them for the good of mankind.

(1.) Possess, avoir ; have received, tenir ; be endowed, posséder ; expect, ne s'attendre à ; but, que.

(2.) Mankind, homme, pl. ; rather look for, compter plutôt ; acknowledgments, reconnaissance, sing.

(3.) Immediately, de suite ; reap, recueillir ; by slow degrees, avec lenteur ; among, chez ; swift, rapide ; to lag, se traîner ; along with it, à sa suite.

(4.) We, on ; to be deterred, se rebuter ; propagating, répandre ; shine, éclairer ; its, the article ; hurts, blesser ; night-birds, oiseau de nuit.

(5.) Are frustrating, frustrer.

CHAP. V.

OF THE VERB.

AGREEMENT OF THE VERB WITH ITS SUBJECT.

It has been observed that the verb which has two subjects, both singular, is put in the plural; but to this rule there are the following

EXCEPTIONS.

1. A verb with two subjects, in the singular, is not put in the plural, when the two subjects are only joined together by the conjunctions, ou, comme, aussi-bien que, autant que, &c.

EXAMPLES.

La séduction, ou la terreur, l'a entraîné dans le parti des rebelles,	Either persuasion, or terror, has drawn him into the party of the rebels.
Le roi, aussi-bien que son ministère, veut le bien public,	The king, as well as his ministry, wishes for the public good.
Son honnêteté, autant que son esprit, le fait rechercher,	His honesty, as much as his wit, makes him courted.
L'envie, comme l'ambition, est une passion aveugle,	Envy, like ambition, is a blind passion.

2. The verb is likewise put in the singular, though preceded by plurals, either when there is an expression which collects all the substantives into one, such as, tout, ce, rien, &c. or when the conjunction mais is placed before the last substantive, and this is in the singular.

EXAMPLES.

Biens, dignités, honneurs, tout disparaît à la mort,	Riches, dignities, honours, every thing vanishes at death.
Jeux, conversations, spectacles, rien ne la distrait,	Games, conversations, shows, nothing diverts her.
Perfidies, noirceurs, incendies, massacres, ce n'est là qu'une faible image, &c.	Perfidies, enormities, conflagrations, massacres, all this is but a feeble representation, &c.
Non-seulement toutes ses richesses et tous ses honneurs, mais toute sa vertu s'évanouit,†	Not only all his riches and honours, but all his virtue vanishes.

OF THE COLLECTIVE PARTITIVE.

The collectives general have nothing to distinguish them from substantives common, with regard to the laws of agreement; but the collectives partitive apparently deviate from those laws, in some instances.

RULE. The verb, which relates to a collective partitive, is put in the plural, when that partitive is followed by the preposition de and a plural; but it is put in the singular, either when the partitive is followed by a regimen singular, or when it expresses a determinate quantity, or lastly, when it presents an idea independent of the plural which follows it.

† EXERCISE ON THE VERB.

1. Either fear or inability prevented them from moving.
2. The fear of death, or rather the love of life, began to revive in his bosom.
3. Alcibiades, as well as Plato, was among the disciples of Socrates.
4. Lycurgus, like Solon, was a wise legislator.
5. Euripides, as much as Sophocles, contributed to the glory of the Athenians.
6. Riches, dignities, honours, glory, pleasure, every thing loses its charms from the moment we possess it, because none of those things can fill the heart of man.
7. The gentle zephyrs which preserved, in that place, notwithstanding the scorching heat of the sun, a delightful coolness: streams gliding with a sweet murmur, through meadows interspersed with amaranths and violets; a thousand springing flowers which enamelled carpets ever green; a wood of those tufted trees that bear golden apples, and the blossom of which, renewed every season, yields the sweetest of all perfumes; the warbling of birds; the continual prospect of a fruitful country; in a word, nothing of what till then had made him happy, could assuage the feelings of his grief.

- (1.) Inability, impuissance; moving, remuer.
- (2.) Began to revive, se réveiller; in, au fond de; bosom, cœur.
- (3.) Among, au nombre de.
- (6.) We, on; none, rien, those things, tout cela.
- (7.) Preserved, entretenir; scorching heat, ardeur; interspersed with, parsemer de; springing, naissant; carpets, tapis; tufted, touffu; golden, (of gold,) renewed, (which renews,) se renouveler; (in) every season; yields, répandre; prospect, spectacle; made, rendre; assuage, l'arracher à; feeling, sentiment.

EXAMPLES OF THE PLURAL.

La plupart des hommes sont bien prompts dans leurs juge- ments.	The greatest part of men are very hasty in their judg- ments.
Bien des philosophes se sont trompés,	Many philosophers have been mistaken.

EXAMPLES OF THE SINGULAR.

Une infinité de peuple est ac- courue, (regimen singular.)	An immense number of people flocked together.
La moitié des soldats a péri, (determinate quantity.)	One half of the soldiers has perished.
Le plus grand nombre des troupes a péri, (idea inde- pendent of the plural.)	The greater number of the troops has perished.

Thus, the substantives partitive, la plupart, une infinité, une foule, une nombre, la plus grande partie, une sorte, &c. and words signifying quantity, such as peu, beaucoup, assez, moins, plus, trop, tant, combien, and que used for combien, followed by a noun joined to them by the preposition de, have not the least influence on the verb, and consequently, it is not with them that the verb agrees, but with the noun which follows them.

REMARK. The words infinité and la plupart, used by themselves, require the verb in the plural, as: une infinité pensent, la plupart sont d'avis.†

† EXERCISE ON THE COLLECTIVE PARTITIVE.

1. Many persons experience that human life is, every where, a state in which much is to be endured, and little to be enjoyed.

2. Many poets think that poetry is the art of uniting pleasure with truth, by calling imagination to the help of reason.

3. Few persons reflect that time, like money, may be lost by unseasonable avarice.

4. So many years of familiarity were chains of iron which linked me to those men who beset me every hour.

5. How many wise men * have thought that, to seclude one's self from the world, was to pull out the teeth of devouring ani-

(1.) Much is, &c. (one has a great deal of pains, and little of real enjoyments.) (3.) Unseasonable, hors de propos.

(4.) Familiarity, habitude; linked, lié; beset, obséder.

(5.) How many, que de; to seclude one's self, se retirer; pull out of, arracher à; to take away from, ôter à.

PLACE OF THE SUBJECT WITH REGARD TO THE VERB.

It has been seen that the subject of a verb is either a noun, or a pronoun, and that this subject must always be expressed in French. It remains to speak of the place of this subject with respect to the verb.

RULE. The subject, whether a noun, or pronoun, is generally placed before the verb.

L'ambition effrénée de quelques hommes, a, dans tous les temps, été la vraie cause des révolutions des états,	The boundless ambition of a few men has, in all ages, been the real cause of the revolutions of empires.
Quand nous nageons dans l'abondance, il est bien rare que nous nous occupions des maux d'autrui, ¶	When we roll in plenty, we seldom think of the miseries of others.

mals, to take away from the wicked the use of his poniard, from calumny its poisons, and from envy its serpents!

6. A company of young Phœnicians of uncommon beauty, clad in fine linen, whiter than snow, danced a * long while the dances of their own * country, then those of Egypt, and lastly, those of Greece.

7. A troop of nymphs, crowned with flowers, whose lovely tresses flowed over their shoulders, and waved with the wind, swam in shoals behind her car.

8. At the time of the invasion of Spain by the Moors, an innumerable multitude of people retired into the Asturias, and there proclaimed Pelagius king.

9. A third part of the enemy were left dead on the field of battle; the rest surrendered at discretion.

10. The innumerable crowd of carriages which are to be seen in London during the winter, astonishes foreigners.

(6.) Company, troupe; clad in, et vêtu de; linen, lin.

(7.) Lovely, beau; tresses, cheveu; flowed, pendre; waved, flotter; with, au gré de; swam, nager; shoals, foule; car, char.

(8.) Moors, Maure; retired, se retirer; Asturias, Asturies; Pelagius, Pélage.

(9.) A third part, un tiers; enemy, pl.; surrendered, se rendre.

(10.) Crowd, quantité; which are, (active voice, on.)

¶ EXERCISE.

1. Youth is full of presumption, it expects every thing from (1.) Full of presumption, présomptueux; expects, se promettre; itself all sufficient, pouvoir tout; that it has, avoir.

EXCEPTIONS.

1. In these interrogative phrases the question is made either with a pronoun, or a noun; if with a pronoun, this is always placed after the verb, as,

Que dit-on ? irai-je à la campagne ? de qui parle-t-on ?

If with a noun, the noun is sometimes placed before, and sometimes after the verb; it stands before, when the pronoun personal which answers to it, asks the question, as,

Cette nouvelle est-elle sûre ? les hommes se rendent-ils toujours à la raison ?

It stands after, when a pronoun absolute, or an interrogative adverb, placed at the beginning of the phrase, allow the suppression of the personal pronoun, as,

Que dit votre ami ? à quoi s'occupe votre frère ? où demeure votre cousin ?

REMARK. In interrogative sentences, when the verb which precedes il, elle, on, ends with a vowel, the itself: although frail, it thinks itself all-sufficient, and that it has nothing to fear.

2. Commerce is like certain springs; if you attempt to * divert their course, you dry them up.

3. It is enough that falsehood is falsehood, to be unworthy of a man who speaks in the * presence of God, and who is to sacrifice every thing to truth.

4. The ambition and avarice of man are the sources of his unhappiness.

5. They punished, in Crete, three vices which have remained unpunished in all other nations: ingratitude, dissimulation, and avarice.

6. Like the Numidian lion, goaded by cruel hunger, and rushing upon a flock of feeble sheep, he tears, he slays, he wallows in blood.

(2.) Springs, source; attempt, vouloir; dry up, faire tarir.

(3.) It is enough, suffire; falsehood, mensonge; is, subj.; in, en; is to sacrifice, doit.

(5.) Punished, ind-2; have remained, être; in, chez.

(6.) Like the, semblable à un; Numidian, de Numidie; goaded by, &c. (that cruel hunger goads) dévorer; rushing, (which rushes upon,) entrer dans; tears, déchirer; slays égorger; wallows, nager.

letter -t- is put between that verb and the pronoun, as,

Arrive-t-il ? viendra-t-elle ? aime-t-on les vauriens ?

When je stands after a verb, which ends with e mute, that e mute is changed into é acute as, aimé-je ? puissé-je ? But when the transposition of je after the verb becomes harsh, euphony then requires another turn, so instead of cours-je ? dors-je ? which would be intolerable, we must say, est-ce que je cours ? est-ce que je dors ?†

2. Incidental sentences which express that we are quoting somebody's words, as,

Je meurs innocent, a dit Louis I die innocent, said Louis XVI.

Je le veux bien, dit-il, I am very willing, said he.

4. Impersonal verbs, and these words, tel, ainsi, &c.

Il est arrivé un grand malheur, A great misfortune has happened.

† EXERCISE.

1. Have you forgotten all that Providence has done for you? how have you escaped the shafts of your enemies? how have you been preserved from the dangers which surrounded you on all sides? could you be so blind as not to acknowledge and adore the all-powerful hand that has miraculously saved you?

2. What will posterity say of you, if, instead of devoting to the happiness of mankind the great talents which you have received from nature, you make use of them only to deceive and corrupt them.

3. Do not the misfortunes which we experience often contribute to our * prosperity?

4. Why are the works of nature so perfect? Because each work is a whole, and because she labours upon an eternal plan, from which she never deviates. Why, on the contrary, are the productions of man so imperfect? It is because the human mind being unable to create any thing, and incapable of embracing the universe at a single glance, can * produce only after having been enriched by experience and meditation.

(1.) Escaped, échapper & ; shafts, trait; preserved, garantir; on all sides, de toutes parts; so as, assez pour; saved, conserver.

(2.) Devoting, consacrer; mankind, homme, pl.; deceive, égarer.

(3.) Experience, éprouver; contribute to, tourner en.

(4.) Because, c'est que; and because, et que; being unable, ne pouvoir, incapable, (not being able;) at, de; glance, vue; enriched, fécondé.

Tel était l'acharnement du soldat, que, &c. Such was the fury of the soldier, that, &c.
Ainsi finit cette sanglante tragédie,† Thus ended that bloody tragedy.

4. When the subjunctive is used to express a wish, or for quand même and a conditional, as,

Puissent tous les peuples se convaincre de cette vérité, May all nations be convinced of this truth.
Dussé-je y périr, j'irai,‡ Should I perish there, I will go.

5. When the subject is followed by several words which are dependant upon it, and form an incidental sentence which, by its length, might obscure the relation of the verb to the subject; perspicuity then requires that the subject should be displaced.

Sometimes, however, this transposition of the subject is only the effect of taste, to avoid an inharmonious ca-

† EXERCISE.

1. True glory, said he, is founded in humanity; whoever prefers his own glory to the feelings of humanity, is a monster of pride, and not a man.

2. There have happened, for these * ten years, so many events exceeding all probability, that posterity will find it very difficult to credit them.

3. Such was that incorruptible Phocion, who answered the deputies of Alexander, who were telling him that this powerful monarch loved him as the only honest man: well, then ‡, let him allow me † to be and to appear so.

4. Thus ended, by the humiliation of Athens, that dreadful war of twenty-seven years, to * which ambition gave rise, which hatred made atrocious, and which was as fatal to the Greeks, as their ancient confederation had proved advantageous to them.

(1.) Is founded, ne se trouver pas hors de; feelings, sentiment.

(2.) There have happened for, il se passer depuis; exceeding, hors de; probability, vraisemblance; will find very difficult, avoir bien de la peine; to credit, ajouter foi à.

(3.) Loved, chérir; honest man, homme de bien; well, ho!; to be so, d'être tel; appear so, le paraître.

(4.) Ended, se terminer; gave rise, faire naître; made, rendre; had proved, être.

‡ EXERCISE.

1. The gods grant that you may never experience such misfortunes!

(1.) Grant, faire; experience, éprouver de.

dence: or it is used by an orator, who wishes to rouse the attention of his hearers by a bold and unexpected turn. ¶

GOVERNMENT OF THE VERBS.

When the regimen of a verb is a noun, it is generally placed after the verb: but to this rule there is one exception, besides those which will hereafter be mentioned.

EXCEPTION. In an interrogative sentence, the regimen is placed before the verb, when this regimen is joined to an absolute pronoun.

EXAMPLES.

Quel objet voyez-vous?	What object do you see?
A quelle science vous appliquez-vous?	To what science do you apply yourself?
De quelle affaire vous occupez-vous?	About what business are you employed?

REMARK. In French, a verb can never have two regimens direct; therefore, when a verb has two regimens, both nouns, one of them must necessarily be preceded by a preposition.

2. May you, O wise old man! in a repose diversified by pleasing occupations, enjoy the past, lay hold of the present, and charm your latter days with the hope of eternal felicity.

3. What is not in the power of the gods! were you at the lowest depths, the power of Jupiter could draw you from thence: were you in Olympus, beholding the stars under your feet, Jupiter could plunge you to the bottom of the abyss, or precipitate you into the flames of gloomy Tartarus.

4. There, through meadows enamelled with flowers, glide a thousand various rivulets, distributing every where their pure (and) limpid waters.

5. Already, for the honour of France, there * had come into administration a man more distinguished for his understanding and virtues than for his dignities.

(2.) Old man, vieillard; lay hold of, saisir; with, de.

(3.) Is not in the power of, ne peuvent; were, subj:2; lowest depths, fond de l'abîme; power, puissance; could, pouvoir, cond-1; Olympus, Olympe; stars, astre; gloomy, noir; Tartarus, Tartare.

(4.) Through, au milieu de; with, de; glide, serpenter; rivulets, ruisseau; distributing, (which distribute;) their, une.

(5.) Had come, être entré; administration, (of affairs;) for, par; understanding, esprit.

EXAMPLES.

Donnez ce livre à votre frère, Give that book to your brother.
On a accusé Cicéron d'imprudence et de faiblesse, Cicero has been accused of imprudence and weakness.

Though the natural order of the ideas seems to require that the regimen direct be placed before the indirect, the perspicuity of the sentence does not allow it in all cases.

RULE. When a verb has two regimens, the shorter is generally placed first; but if they be of equal length, the regimen direct will precede the indirect.

EXAMPLES.

Les hypocrites s'étudient à parer le vice des dehors de la vertu, Hypocrites make it their study to deck vice with the exterior of virtue.

Les hypocrites s'étudient à parer des dehors de la vertu les vices les plus honteux et les plus décriés, Hypocrites make it their study to deck with the exterior of virtue the most shameful and most odious vices.

L'ambition sacrifie le présent à l'avenir, mais la volupté sacrifie l'avenir au présent,† Ambition sacrifices the present to the future, but pleasure sacrifices the future to the present.

RULE. A noun may be governed at once by two verbs, provided those verbs do not require different regimens.

EXAMPLES.

On doit aimer et respecter les rois, We ought to love and respect kings.

Ce général attaqua et prit la ville, That general attacked and took the city.

† EXERCISE ON THE GOVERNMENT OF THE VERBS.

1. Illustrious examples teach us, that God has hurled from their thrones princes who contemned his laws: he reduced to the condition of a beast the haughty Nebuchadnezzar, who wanted to usurp divine honours.

2. Wretched is * the man who feeds his mind with chimeras.

3. Our interest should prompt us to prefer virtue to vice, wisdom to pleasure, and modesty to vanity.

(1.) Illustrious, fameux; teach, apprendre; hurled, renverser; haughty, superbe; Nabuchodonosor; wanted, vouloir.

(2.) Feeds, repaître.

(3.) Should, devoir, ind-1; prompt, porter; pleasure, volupté.

But we must not say,

Cet officier attaqua et se rendit maître de la ville, That officer attacked and made himself master of the city.

A different turn should be given to the sentence, by placing the noun after the first verb, and adding en before the second, as,

Cet officier attaqua la ville et s'en rendit maître,† That officer attacked the city, and made himself master of it.

OF THE USE PROPER, OR ACCIDENTAL, OF MOODS AND TENSES.

Indicative.

The present is used to express an existing state, as,

Je suis ici, I am here.

An invariable state, as,

Dieu est de toute éternité, God is from all eternity.

A future near at hand, as,

Il est demain fête, To-morrow is a holiday.

Or even a preterit, when, to give a sort of animated picture, we relate a thing past as passing. Thus, we find in Racine,

J'ai vu votre malheureux fils traîné par ses chevaux, I have seen your unhappy son dragged along by his horses.

† EXERCISE.

1. Luxury is like a torrent, which carries away, and overthrows every thing it meets.

2. Nothing can * resist the operation of time: it, at length, undermines, alters, or destroys every thing.

3. Among the Spartans, public education had two objects: the first, to harden their bodies by fatigue; the second, to excite and nourish in their minds the love of their country, and an enthusiasm for what is great.

(1.) Carries away, entraîner; overthrows, renverser; every thing, tout ce que.

(2.) Operation, action; at length, à la longue; undermines, miner.

(3.) Among the Spartans, à Sparte; to, de; harden, endurcir; by, à; their, must be rendered by the article; for what is great, des grandes choses.

But suddenly passing from the preterit to the present, the speaker adds,

Il veut les rappeler, et sa voix He calls out to stop them, but les effraie, his voice frightens them.

In English, the verb to be, is frequently used with the participle present, as,

I am reading, I am translating, I shall be writing.

This construction is not adopted in French; and whenever found, it is to be translated in French simply by the verb, put in the tense expressed by the verb to be. Thus, I am reading, must be expressed by je lis; I shall be writing, must be rendered j'écrirai, &c. ¶

The imperfect is used—1. To denote the recurrency of an action at a time which is past, as,

Quand j'étais à Paris, j'allais When I was at Paris, I often souvent aux Champs Elysées, went to the Champs Elysées.

¶ EXERCISE ON THE PROPER USE OF MOODS, &c.

1. He is in his chamber, where he is relaxing his mind from the fatigue of business, by some instructive and agreeable reading.

2. Truth, eternal by its nature, is immutable as God himself.

3. I never let a day pass without devoting an hour or two to reading the ancients.

4. It is this week that the new piece comes out.

5. The armies were in sight: nothing was heard on all sides but dreadful cries: the engagement began. Immediately a cloud of arrows darkens the air and covers the combatants; nothing is heard but doleful cries of the dying, or the clattering of the arms of those who fall in the conflict; the earth groans beneath a heap of dead bodies, and rivers of blood stream every where; there is nothing in this confused mass of men enraged against one another but slaughter, despair, revenge, and brutal fury.

(1.) Is relaxing, délasser; reading, lecture.

(2.) By, de; immutable, immuable.

(3.) Let; devoting, consacrer; reading, la lecture de.

(4.) Come out, on donner.

(5.) Sight, présence; nothing was, &c. on ne que, ind-2; the engagement began, on en venir aux mains, ind-3; cloud, nuée; arrows, trait; darkens, obscurcir; nothing is, &c. on ne plus que; doleful, plaintif; clattering, bruit; conflict, mêlée; groans, gémir, beneath, sous; heap, monceau; streams, ruisseau; stream, couler; there is nothing in, &c. ce ne être dans; mass, amas; enraged, acharné; but, que; slaughter, massacre.

2. For a past which has some duration, especially in narrations, as,

Rome était d'abord gouvernée par des rois,† Rome was at first governed by kings.

In French, the preterit definite and the preterit indefinite are not used indifferently.

The preterit definite is used, when speaking of a time which is entirely past, and of which nothing remains, as,

Je fis un voyage à Bath le mois dernier, I took a journey to Bath last month.
J'écrivis hier à Rome, I wrote yesterday to Rome.

To authorize the use of this tense, there must be the interval of, at least, one day. It is the most used in the historic style, and for that reason called parfait historique.

† EXERCISE ON THE USE OF THE IMPERFECT.

1. When I was at Paris, I went every morning to take a walk in the Champs Elysées, or the Bois de Boulogne: afterwards I came home, where I employed myself till dinner, either in reading or writing; and, in the evening, I generally went for amusement to the French Theatre or the Opera.

2. When I was in the prime of life, like the light butterfly, I fluttered from object to object, without being able to settle to any thing: eager for pleasure, I seized every thing that had its appearance: alas! how far was I then from foreseeing that I should deplore with so much bitterness the loss of that precious time.

3. For a short time after Abraham, the knowledge of the true God still appeared in Palestine and Egypt. Melchisedec, king of Salem, was the priest of the Most High God. Abimelech, king of Gerar, and his successor of the same name, feared God, swore by his name, and reverenced his power. But in Moses' time, the nations adored even beasts and reptiles. Every thing was God but God himself.

(1.) Take a walk, se promener; in, à; came home, rentrer chez soi; was busy, s'occuper; reading, (by the verb;) for amusement, me délasser; French Theatre, Comédie Française.

(2.) Prime of life, fleur de l'âge; butterfly, papillon; fluttered, voler; being able, pouvoir; settle, me fixer; eager for, avide de; had its appearance, m'en présentait l'image; how, que; with so much bitterness, (so bitterly.)

(3.) Swore, jurer; reverenced, admirer; the nations, on; even, jusqu'à; but, excepté.

The preterit indefinite is used either for a past indeterminate, or for a past of which something still remains, as,

J'ai voyagé en Italie,	I have travelled in Italy.
J'ai déjeuné ce matin à Londres,	I breakfasted this morning in
et dîné à Richmond,†	London, and dined at Richmond.

The preterit indefinite is sometimes used instead of a future just approaching, as,

Avez-vous bientôt fini ?	Have you soon done ?
Oui, j'ai fini dans le moment, ¶	Yes, I shall have done in a moment.

† EXERCISE ON THE PROPER USE OF THE PRETERIT.

Amenophis conceived the design of making his son a conqueror. He set about it, after the manner of the Egyptians, that is, with great ideas. All the children who were born on * the same day as Sesostris, were brought to court by order of the king: he had them educated as his own children, and with the same care as Sesostris. When he was grown up, he made him serve his apprenticeship in a war against the Arabs: this young prince learned there to bear hunger and thirst, and subdued that nation, till then invincible. He afterwards attacked Lybia, and conquered it. After these successes, he formed the project of subduing the whole world. In consequence of this, * he entered Ethiopia, which he made tributary. He continued his victories in Asia. Jerusalem was the first to feel the force of his arms: the rash Rehoboam could not resist him, and Sesostris carried away the riches of Solomon. He penetrated into the Indies, farther than Hercules and Bacchus, and farther than Alexander did afterward. The Scythians obeyed him as far as the Tanais; Armenia and Cappadocia were subject to him. In a word, he extended his empire from the Ganges to the Danube.

Making, faire de; set about it, s'y prendre; after, à; ideas, pensée; brought, amener; had educated, faire élever; grown up, grand; made serve, fit faire; apprenticeship, apprentissage; in, par; entered, entrer dans; made, rendre; as far as, jusqu'à; Cappadocia, Cappadoce.

¶ EXERCISE.

1. Enflamed with the desire of knowing mankind, I have travelled, not only among the most polished nations, but even among the most barbarous. I have observed them in the different degrees of civilization, from the state of simple nature to the

(1.) With, de; mankind, homme, pl.; to, chez; polished nations, peuple policé; barbarous, nation sauvage; from, depuis; simple, pur; to, jusqu'à;

The two preterits anterior differ in the same manner as the two preceding preterits, but they are always accompanied by a conjunction, or an adverb of time, as,

Je suis sorti dès que j'ai eu dîné, I went out as soon as I had dined.

J'eus fini hier à midi, I had done yesterday at noon.

The pluperfect denotes that a thing took place before another, which had itself already taken place, as,

J'avais soupé quand il entra,† I had supped when he came in.

most perfect state of society, and wherever I went, the result was the same: that is to say, I have every where seen beings occupied in drying up the different sources of happiness that nature had placed within their reach.

2. I have travelled this year in Italy, where I had an * opportunity of seeing several master-pieces of antiquity, and where I made a valuable collection of scarce medals. I there admired the perfection to which they have brought architecture, painting, and music; but what pleased me most there, was the beauty of the climate of Naples.

wherever I went, dans tous les pays; the result was the same, (I had the same result;) in drying up, à tarir; within their reach, à leur portée.

(2.) Opportunity, occasion; master-pieces, chefs d'œuvre; scarce, rare; pleased me most, faire le plus de plaisir; was, ind-l.

† EXERCISE-

1. As soon as I had examined this phenomenon, I tried to find out its causes.

2. As soon as we had crossed the river, we found ourselves in a wood where there was not a single foot-path traced.

3. As soon as the great Sesostris had satisfied his ambition by the conquest of so many empires, he returned into Egypt, where he devoted the whole of the day to administering strict justice to his people, and, in the evening, he recreated himself by holding conferences with the learned, or by conversing with the most upright people of his kingdom.

4. I had only received, like most of the grandees, an education in which I had imbibed nothing but sentiments of pride and insensibility; that is, they had done every thing in their power,

(1.) As soon as, dès que; tried to find out, en rechercher.

(3.) The whole of the day, jour entier; administering, rendre, inf-l; strict, exact; recreated, délasser; by holding conferences, à s'entretenir; upright, honnête; people, gens.

(4.) Grande, grand; imbibed, puiser; they, on; in their power, ce qu'on pouvoir ind-6; stifled, étouffer; benevolent, bienfaisant.

As the use of these different preterits is attended with some difficulty, the following analysis is added, in order more clearly to explain the manner in which they are used.

We read in Marmontel the following extract;

Célicour, à l'âge de quinze ans, avait été dans le monde ce qu'on appelle un petit prodige.

Célicour, at the age of fifteen, had been in the world what is called a little prodigy.

The author employs the pluperfect, as he speaks of a period of time anterior to all those which he is going to mention.

Il faisait des vers les plus galans du monde; il n'y avait pas dans le voisinage une jolie femme qu'il n'eût célébrée: c'était dommage de laisser tant de talens enfouis dans une petite ville; Paris devait en être le théâtre.

He composed the most agreeable love-sonnets imaginable; there was not a pretty woman in the neighbourhood that he had not celebrated: it was a pity to let so many talents be buried in a little town; Paris was the theatre on which they ought to be exhibited.

Here the author makes use of the imperfect, because he speaks of the habitual employment of Célicour.

Et l'on fit si bien, que son père se résolut de l'y envoyer.

And they contrived matters so that his father determined to send him there.

Now, the author passes to the preterit definite, because he is no longer speaking of what Célicour used to do, but what he did at a time past, and of which nothing remains.

Ce père était un honnête homme, qui aimait l'esprit sans en avoir, et qui admirait, sans savoir pourquoi, tout ce qui venait de la capitale. Il avait même des relations littéraires, et du nombre de ses correspondans était un connoisseur nommé M. de Fintac.

This father was a good sort of man, who was fond of wit, without having any, and admired, without knowing why, every thing that came from the metropolis. Nay, he even had some literary connexions, and among his correspondents was a connoisseur of the name of Fintac.

to stifle in me happy and benevolent dispositions which I had received from nature.

Here, again, the author resumes the form of the imperfect, as he is now speaking of the habitual state of Cécicour's father in his little town, and because, in this passage, he merely relates what that father was doing, at a time past, which has no kind of relation to the present.

Ce fut principalement à lui It was particularly to him that que Cécicour fut recommandé, Cécicour was recommended.

The form of the preterit definite is now resumed, because this is an action passed, at a time of which nothing is left, &c. ‡

There is this difference between the two future

‡ EXERCISE.

1. God, who had created his angels in holiness, would have their happiness depend upon themselves: they could ensure their felicity, by giving themselves willingly to their Creator; but they delighted in themselves, and not in God: immediately those spirits of light became spirits of darkness.

2. There is a letter which Philocles has written to a friend of his, about his project of making himself king of Carpathus. I perused that letter, and it seemed to me to be the hand of Philocles. They had perfectly imitated his writing. This letter threw me into a strange surprise. I read it again and again, and could not persuade myself that it was written * by Philocles, when I recalled to my mind the affecting marks which he had given me of his disinterestedness and integrity.

3. Those who had shown the greatest zeal for the state and my person, did not think themselves obliged to undeceive me, after so terrible an example. I myself was afraid lest truth should break through the cloud, and reach me in spite of all my flatterers. I felt within myself that it would have raised in me bitter remorse. My effeminacy, and the dominion which a treacherous minister had gained over me, threw me into a kind of despair of ever recovering my * liberty.

(1.) Have their happiness depend, (that their happiness,) dépendre, subj-2; could, pouvoir; delighted in, se plaire en; of light, lumineux; darkness, ténèbres.

(2.) There is, voilà; about, sur; Carpathus, Carpathie; to be, de; they, on; again and again, sans cesse; by, de; when I recalled to, passer dans, inf-3; integrity, bonne foi.

(3.) Did not think themselves obliged to, se croire dispensé de; was afraid lest, craindre que; break through, percer, subj-2; reach, parvenir jusqu'à; in spite of, malgré; raised in, causer à; effeminacy, mollesse; dominion, ascendant; treacherous, perfide; gained, prendre; threw, plonger; recovering, rentrer en.

tenses, that the period of time expressed by the future absolute, may, or may not, be determined, as,

J'irai à la campagne, or j'irai demain à la campagne, while, in the future anterior, the time is necessarily determined, as,

J'aurai fini, quand vous arriverez. ¶

CONDITIONAL.

The conditional is used—1. To express a wish, as,

Que je serais, or, que j'aurais été content de réussir dans cette affaire ! How glad I should be, or should have been, to succeed in that affair.

2. With si, if, whether, expressing a doubt, as,

Demandez-lui s'il serait venu avec nous supposé qu'il n'eût pas eu affaire, Ask him whether he would have come with us, had he not been busy.

3. Before, or after the imperfect, or pluperfect of the indicative, preceded by si, as,

Nous nous épargnerions bien des peines, si nous savions modérer nos désirs, We should spare ourselves much pain, did we know how to moderate our desires.

¶ EXERCISE.

1. Remember that youth is but a flower, which will wither almost as soon as it * opens. Thou will see thyself gradually changed. Smiling graces, sweet pleasures, strength, health, and joy, will vanish like a pleasing dream; nothing but the sad remembrance will be left thee.

2. I shall next year take a journey into Greece, and I am preparing myself for it by reading the travels of the young Anacharsis.

3. When you have read the celebrated discourse of Bossuet on Universal History, and studied in it the causes of the rise and fall of states, you will be less astonished at the revolutions more or less sudden, that modern empires have experienced, which appeared to you in the most flourishing state.

(1.) Will wither, (will be almost as soon withered,) sécher; opens, éclose; gradually, insensiblement; lively, riant; pleasing, beau; nothing will be left, il n'en restera.

(2.) Take, faire; for it, y; reading, lecture de; (the travels, celui.)

(3.) Have read, ind-8; and, que vous, ind-7; in it, y; rise, grandeur; fall, chute; sudden, subite; (that have experienced the modern empires, which, &c.) appeared, ind-2.

Vous auriez été plus heureux, si vous aviez suivi mes conseils, You would have been more happy, if you had followed my advice.

4. With quand, used instead of si, quoique; or quand même; the verb preceded by quand is generally in one of the conditionals, as,

Quand l'avare posséderait tout l'or du monde, il ne serait pas encore content, Were the miser to possess all the gold in the world, still he would not be satisfied.

5. Lastly, for various tenses of the indicative, as, Croiriez-vous votre fils ingrat? Could you think your son ungrateful?

which means, croyez-vous, &c.

L'auriez-vous soupçonné d'un tel vice? Could you have suspected him of such a vice?

which means, l'avez-vous, &c.

Quelle raison pourrait m'empêcher d'aller vous voir? What cause could prevent me from coming to see you?

which means, quelle cause pourra, &c.†

† EXERCISE ON THE CONDITIONAL.

1. If it were even possible for men always to act conformably to equity, as it is the multitude that must judge their conduct, the wicked would always blame and contradict them from malignity, and the good sometimes from mistake.

2. What false steps I should have made but for you, at my entrance into the world!

3. But for your counsels, I should have failed in this undertaking.

4. How satisfied I should have been, if you had sooner informed me of your happiness!

5. If we gave to infancy none but just and clear notions, there would not be by far so many false wits in the world.

6. Had Alexander conquered the whole world, his ambition

(1.) If even, quand même; were, cond-1; for men, (that men;) to act, sub-2; judge, juger de; would blame, ind-7; contradict, croiser, ind-7.

(2.) What, que de; steps, démarche; but for, sans.

(3.) But for, sans; failed, échouer.

(4.) How, que.

(5.) We, on; there would not be by far so many, il y aurait bien moins de.

(6.) (When Alexander would have conquered;) straitened, trop à l'étroit.

REMARK ON THE USE OF THE CONDITIONAL AND FUTURE.

Foreigners are very apt to use the future, or the conditional, after si, when meaning supposé que. They say,

J'irai demain à la campagne, s'il I shall go into the country tofera beau, morrow, if the weather be fine
Vous auriez vu le roi, si vous You would have seen the king seriez venu, if you had come.

The impropriety of this construction will be obviated by attending to the following

RULE. When a verb is preceded by si, meaning supposé que, the present is used instead of the future absolute; the preterit indefinite instead of the future anterior; the imperfect instead of the conditional present, and the pluperfect instead of the conditional past.

EXAMPLES.

J'irai demain à la campagne, s'il	I shall go to-morrow into the
fait beau,	country, if it be fine weather.
Il aura eu l'avantage, s'il a suivi	He will have had the advantage, if he has followed your
vos conseils,	advice.
Je serais content, si je vous voyais	I should be pleased, if I saw
appliqué,	you apply to study.
J'aurais été content, si je vous	I should have been pleased, if
avais vu appliqué,	I had seen you attentive to your studies.

would not have been satisfied; he would still have found himself straitened in it.

7. Could you believe him vain enough to aspire to that high degree of honour?

8. Could you ever have thought him capable of deserting the good cause, to go and side with rebels?

9. Would you renounce being useful to the present generation, because envy fastens on you?

(8.) Deserting, abandonner; to go and side with, pour se ranger sous les drapeaux de.

(9.) Renounce, renoncer à; fastens, s'attacher; on you, à vos pas

REMARK. This rule does not hold good, either when si is placed between two verbs, the first of which implies doubt, uncertainty, as,

Je ne sais s'il viendra,

Or, with the second conditional past, as,

Vous m'eussiez trouvé, si vous fussiez venu ce matin.†

SUBJUNCTIVE.

There are conjunctions which govern the indicative, (p. 300,) and others which govern the subjunctive, (p. 301.) We call principal proposition the phrase which is followed by the conjunction, and incidental, or sub-

† EXERCISE.

1. A young man who is just entering the career of letters, will conciliate the good will of the public, if he consider his first successes only as an encouragement to do better.

2. That absurd criticism will have amused only fools or malicious people, * if attention has been paid to the spirit that pervades the whole, and the manner in which it is written.

3. Life would possess many more sweets and charms, if men, instead of tearing one another to pieces, formed but one society of brethren.

4. The Athenians would have found in the young Alcibiades the only man capable of ensuring their superiority in Greece, had not that vain thoughtless people forced him, by an unjust, or, at least, imprudent sentence, to banish himself from his country.

5. I know not whether reason will soon triumph over prejudice and ignorance, but I am certain it will be the case sooner or later.

6. Rome would have never attained that high degree of splendour and glory which astonishes us, had it not extended its conquests as much by its policy as by its arms.

(1.) Je just entering, débiter dans; career, carrière; conciliate s'attirer; good will, bienveillance; consider, regarder.

(2.) Fools, sot; malicious, méchant; paid, faire; pervades the whole, régner d'un bout à l'autre; in which, dont.

(3.) Possess, avoir; tearing one another to pieces, s'entredéchirer.

(4.) Superiority, prépondérance; thoughtless, léger; sentence, condamnation.

(5.) Know, savoir; it will be the case, cela être.

(6.) Attained, parvenir à; policy, politique.

ordinate proposition, that which is placed after the conjunction. In this sentence,

Je crois que vous aimez à jouer.

Je crois is the principal proposition, and vous aimez à jouer is the subordinate proposition: que is the conjunction that unites the two phrases.

GENERAL RULE. The verb of the subordinate proposition must be put in the indicative, when the verb of the principal proposition expresses affirmation, in a direct, positive, and independent manner; but it is put in the subjunctive, when that of the principal proposition expresses doubt, wish, or uncertainty.

Je sais qu'il est surpris,	I know he is surprised.
Je crois qu'il viendra,	I believe he will come.
Je doute qu'il soit surpris,	I doubt his being surprised.
Je doute qu'il vienne,	I doubt his coming.
Je souhaite qu'il réussisse,	I wish he may succeed.
Je tremble qu'il ne succombe, ¶	I tremble lest he should fail.

¶ EXERCISE ON THE SUBJUNCTIVE.

1. The glory which has been ascribed to the Egyptians, of being the most grateful of all men, shows that they were likewise the most sociable.

2. In Egypt, when it was proved that the conduct of a dead man  had been* bad, they condemned his memory, and he was denied burial.

3. I am sure that by moderation, mildness, and politeness, you will disarm even  envy* itself.

4. The new philosophers say that colour is a sensation of the soul.

5. I believe you are as honest and disinterested as you seem to be.

6. I doubt whether the Romans would ever have triumphed over the Gauls, if the different chiefs of this warlike people had not been disunited.

7. I could wish that the love, which we ought to have for one another, were the principle of all our actions, as it is the basis of all virtues.

- (1.) Which has, &c. qu'on; ascribed, donner; grateful, reconnaissant, sing.; men, peuple. (2.) Was denied, priver de; burial, sépulture.
 (3.) By, avec; politeness, honnêteté. (5.) Seem to be, le paraître.
 (6.) Whether, que.

Do, did, will, would, should, can, could, may, and might, are sometimes, with respect to the French language, simply signs of tenses, at others they are real verbs.

There can be no difficulty about do and did; these are mere expletives, denoting interrogation, negation, or merely emphasis, when they are joined to a verb.

I do love,	J'aime.
I did love,	J'aimais, or, j'aimai.
Do I love?	Aimé-je?
Did I love?	Aimais-je, or, aimai-je?
I do not love,	Je n'aime pas.
I did not love,	Je n'aimais pas, or, je n'aimai pas.

In all these cases they are not expressed in French. But when they are followed by a noun, or a pronoun, then they are real verbs, and mean, faire.

Do me that favour,	Faites-moi ce plaisir.
He did it,	Il le fit.

In short, by any thing else, except the verb with which they are necessarily connected, as,

He did more than could have been expected,	Il fit plus qu'on n'eût pu espérer.
---	--

Should is only a sign of the conditional, when it expresses a thing which may happen upon some condition.

I should like a country life, if my affairs would permit me to indulge my inclination,	J'aimerais la vie champêtre, si mes affaires me permettaient de suivre mon goût.
---	---

But when it implies duty or obligation, it is a verb, and must be expressed by the verb devoir, as,

8. Fear, lest it should be said that you feed upon chimeras, and that you take the shadow for the reality.

9. The new philosophers will have colour to be a sensation of the soul.

10. I will have you to be as honest and disinterested as you seem to be.

(8.) Il, on ne; feed upon, se repaître de.

(9.) Will have, vouloir; colour to be, (that colour be.)

We should never swerve from the path of virtue, Nous ne devrions jamais nous écartier du sentier de la vertu.

Can, could, may, and might, are not so difficult as they appear at first sight; because, in almost every instance, there is no impropriety in rendering them by the verb pouvoir. In general the first two imply a power, a possibility, a capability, &c. and the others, a permission, probability, &c.

Do, did, shall, will, &c. in English, are sometimes used elliptically in the answers to interrogative sentences. The French answer with the repetition of the verb, accompanied with a pronoun expressive of the idea of the interrogative sentence, as,

Will you do your exercise to-day?—Yes, I will. Ferez-vous votre thème aujourd'hui?—Oui, je le ferai.

RELATIONS BETWEEN THE TENSES OF THE INDICATIVE.

RULE. When the first verb is in the imperfect, the preterit, or the pluperfect, and the second denotes a temporary action, this second verb is put in the imperfect, if we mean to express a present.

EXAMPLE.

Je croyais, j'ai cru, j'avais cru I thought, I have thought, I had que vous étudiez les mathématiques, thought that you were studying mathematics.

—In the pluperfect, if we mean to express a past.

EXAMPLE.

Il m'assura qu'il n'avait jamais tant ri, He assured me that he had never laughed so much.

—And in the present of the conditional, if we mean to express a future absolute.

EXAMPLE.

On m'a dit que votre frère viendrait à Londres l'hiver prochain, I was told your brother would come to town next winter.

But, although the first verb may be in some of these tenses, yet the second is put in the present, when this second verb expresses a thing which is true at all times.

EXAMPLE.

Je vous disais, je vous ai dit, je vous avais dit, que la santé fait la félicité du corps, et le savoir celle de l'âme, I told you, I have told you, I had told you, that health constitutes the happiness of the body, and knowledge that of the soul.

REMARK. In phrases where the imperfect is preceded by que, it denotes, sometimes a past, sometimes a present, with respect to the preceding verb. It denotes a past, when the verb which is joined to it by the conjunction que is in the present, or future.

EXAMPLE.

Vous savez, or vous saurez que le peuple Romain était aussi avide qu'ambitieux, You know, or you must know, that the Romans were a people as covetous as they were ambitious.

But it denotes a present, when the verb, which precedes it, is in the imperfect, one of the preterits, or the pluperfect.

EXAMPLE.

On disait, on a dit, on avait dit que Phocion était le plus grand et le plus honnête homme de son temps, It was said, it has been said, it had been said, that Phocion was the greatest and most upright man of his age.
Dès qu'on eut appris à Athènes qu' Alcibiade était à Lacédémone, on se repentit de la précipitation avec laquelle on l'avait condamné, As soon as it was known at Athens that Alcibiades was at Lacedemon, the Athenians repented of the precipitation with which they had condemned him.

Nevertheless, the imperfect denotes the past, in this last instance, when it signifies an action which was past before that which is expressed by the first verb.

EXAMPLE.

En lisant l'histoire des temps héroïques, vous devez avoir remarqué que ces hommes dont on a fait des demi-dieux, étaient des chefs féroces et barbares, dignes à peine du nom d'homme,† In reading the history of heroic times, you must have remarked that those men who have been made demi-gods, were ferocious and barbarous chiefs, scarcely deserving the name of men.†

RELATIONS BETWEEN THE TENSES OF THE SUBJUNCTIVE AND THOSE OF THE INDICATIVE.

RULE I. When the verb of the principal proposition is in the present, or future, that of the subordinate proposition is put in the present of the subjunctive, to express a present, or future; but in the preterit, to express a past. We say,

† EXERCISE.

1. I thought you were not ignorant that, to teach others the principles of an art or science, it is necessary to have experience and skill.

2. I have been told that your sweetest occupation was to form your taste, your heart, and your understanding.

3. Darius, in his flight, being * reduced to the necessity of drinking water muddy and infected by dead bodies, affirmed that he never had drunk with so much pleasure.

4. Care has been taken to inculcate in me, from infancy, that I should succeed in the world, only in proportion as I should join to the desire of pleasing, a great deal of gentleness and civility.

5. Ovid has said, that study softens the manners and corrects every thing that is found in us rude and barbarous.

6. You know that those pretended heroes, whom Pagan antiquity has made gods, were only barbarous and ferocious kings, who overran the earth, not so much to conquer as to ravage it, and who left every where traces of their fury and of their vices.

7. It has been said of Pericles, that his eloquence was like a thunderbolt, which nothing could resist.

8. As soon as Aristides had said, that the proposal of Themistocles was unjust, the whole people exclaimed, that they must not think of it any longer.

9. Had you read the history of the early ages, you would know that Egypt was the most enlightened country in the universe, and the original spot * whence knowledge spread into Greece and the neighbouring countries.

(1.) Were ignorant, ignorer; teach, instruire dans; it is necessary, avoir besoin; skill, habileté.

(2.) I have, &c. (by the active voice) on.

(3.) Flight, déroute; muddy, bourbeux; affirmed, assurer.

(4.) Care has, &c. (active voice) on avoir; in me, me; in proportion, autant; civility, honnêteté.

(5.) Corrects, effacer; is found, se trouver de.

(6.) Overran, parcourir; not so much, moins.

(7.) It, on; thunderbolt, foudre, m.; (to) which.

(8.) Exclaimed, s'écrier; they must, falloir, ind-2; of it, y; any longer, plus.

(9.) Ages, temps; *the original spot * whence*, celui d'où; neighbouring, circonvoisin; countries, lieu.

Il faut que celui qui parle se mette à la portée de celui qui l'écoute,

Il voudra que votre frère soit de la partie,

But we must say,

Pour s'être élevé à ce point de grandeur, il faut que Rome ait eu une suite non interrompue de grands hommes,

EXCEPTION. Though the first verb be in the present, or future, yet the second may be put in the imperfect, or pluperfect of the subjunctive, when some conditional expression is introduced into the sentence.

Il n'est point d'homme, quelque mérite qu'il ait, qui ne fût très-mortifié, s'il savait tout ce qu'on pense de lui,

Où trouvera-t-on un homme qui ne fût la même faute, s'il était exposé aux mêmes tentations?

Je doute que votre frère eût réussi sans votre assistance †

He that speaks should accommodate himself to the understanding of him that listens.

He will wish your brother to be one of the party.

To have risen to that pitch of grandeur, Rome must have had an uninterrupted succession of great men.

There is no man, whatever merit he may have, that would not feel very much mortified, were he to know all that is thought of him.

Where will you find the man who would not have committed the same error, had he been exposed to the same temptations?

I doubt whether your brother would have succeeded, had it not been for your assistance.

† EXERCISE.

1. He who wishes to teach an art, must know it thoroughly, he must give none but clear, precise, and well-digested notions of it: he must instil them, one by one, into the minds of his pupils, and, above all, he must not overburden their memory with useless, or unimportant rules.

2. He must yield to the force of truth, when they shall have suffered it to appear in its real light.

3. There is no work, however perfect people may suppose it, that would not be liable to criticism, if it were examined with severity, and in every point of view.

(1.) It must (that he who, &c. know it;) he must, (not repeated,) que; instil, faire entrer; by, à; overburden, surcharger; unimportant, insignificant.

(2.) (It must, ind-7, that he;) yield, se rendre; suffered, permettre; it to appear, (that it appear;) real light, vrai jour.

(3.) Would be liable, preter, subj-2; with severity, à la rigueur; in, sous; point of view, face.

RULE II. When the first verb is in the imperfect, either of the preterits, the pluperfect, or either of the conditionals, the second is put in the imperfect of the subjunctive, if we mean to express a present, or future; but it is put in the pluperfect, if we wish to express a past.

Je voulais, j'ai voulu, j'eus voulu, je voudrais, or j'eusse voulu que vous finissiez cette affaire.

Je ne savais pas, je n'ai pas su, &c. que vous eussiez étudié les mathématiques.

REMARK. With the preterit indefinite the second verb is put in the present, if it expresses an action which is, or may be done at all times, as,

Dieu a entouré les yeux de tuni-	God has surrounded the eyes
ques fort minces, transparentes	with very thin tunics, trans-
au dehors, afin qu'on puisse	parent on the outside, that
voir à travers,	we may see through them.

And in the preterit, if we mean to express a past, as,

Il a fallu qu'il ait sollicité ses	He must have been obliged to
juges,†	solicit his judges.

4. I doubt whether his piece would have had the approbation of connoisseurs, if he had not determined to make in it the changes you judged necessary.

(4.) Approbation, suffrage; had determined, se décider; in it, y; judged, ind-4.

† EXERCISE.

1. Mr. de Turenne never would buy any thing on credit, of tradesmen, for fear, he used to say, they should lose a great part of their demand, if he happened to be killed. All the workmen who were employed about his house, had orders to bring in their bill, before he set out for the campaign, and they were regularly paid.

2. It would be better, for a man who truly loves himself, to lose his life, than to forfeit his honour by some base and shameful action.

3. Lycurgus, in one of his laws, had forbidden to light home *

(1.) Would, vouloir, ind-2; buy on credit, prendre à crédit; of, chez; happened, venir; were employed, travailler; about, pour; bills, mémoire; he, on; set out for, se mettre en.

(2.) To lose, (that he would lose;) forfeit, ternir.

(3.) In, par; to light, que on éclairer, subj-2; that, afin que; reach their houses, se rendre chez eux; getting intoxicated, s'enivrer.

In interrogative and negative sentences, the second verb is generally put in the subjunctive, as,

Quel est l'insensé qui tient pour sûr qu'il vivra demain ?
Vous ne nous persuadiez pas que les choses pussent tourner si mal.

The verb is likewise in the subjunctive after the superlative relative, and frequently after an impersonal verb, as,

Le meilleur cortège qu'un prince puisse avoir, c'est le cœur de ses sujets.

The subjunctive is elegantly used in elliptical phrases, where the principal proposition is omitted, as,

Qu'il vive ! (je souhaite qu'il,)	May he live !
Qu'il se soit oublié jusqu'à ce point ! (je suis surpris qu'il,)	That he should have so far forgotten himself !
Qui m'aime, me suive ! (je veux que celui qui,)	Whoever loves me let him follow me.
Heureux l'homme qui peut, ne fût-ce que dans sa vieillesse, jouir de toute la force de sa raison ! (quand ce ne serait que,)+	Happy the man that can, were it only in his old age, enjoy the whole strength of his reason.

those who came from a feast in the evening, that the fear of not being able to reach their houses might prevent them from getting intoxicated.

4. People used the bark of trees, or skins, to write upon, * before paper was known.

5. Go and * ask that old man ; for whom are you planting ? he will answer you : for the immortal gods, who have ordered both that I should profit by the labour of those that have preceded me, and that those who should come after me, should profit by mine.

(4.) People, on ; bark, écorce ; skins, peau ; known, en usage.

(5.) Have ordered, vouloir ; both, et ; by, de.

† EXERCISE.

1. Is there any one who does not feel that nothing is more degrading in a writer, than the pains he takes to express ordinary and common things in a singular and pompous style.

2. Do you think that, in forming the republic of bees, God has

(1.) Is degrading in, dégrader ; in, de.

(2.) Had in view, vouloir.

REMARK. The relative pronouns qui, que, quel, dont, and où, govern the subjunctive in similar circumstances.†

Further Observations upon the CONDITIONAL and SUBJUNCTIVE.

We have said the English auxiliaries should, would, could, may, and might, are not always to be considered as essentially and necessarily appertaining to the conditional and subjunctive. Indeed it seldom happens that the French tenses are the same as the English, at not had in view to teach kings to govern with gentleness, and subjects to obey with love?

3. You will never be at peace, either with yourself or with others, unless you seriously endeavour to restrain your natural impetuosity.

(2.) Be at peace, avoir la paix; either, ni; or, ni; endeavour, s'appliquer.

‡ EXERCISE.

1. Who is the writer that does not sometimes experience moments of sterility and languor?

2. There is not in the heart of man a good impulse that God does not produce.

3. Choose a retreat where you may be quiet, a post whence you may defend yourself.

4. The most flattering reward that a man can reap from his labours, is the esteem of an enlightened public.

5. May he live, reign, and long constitute the happiness of a nation, which he loves, and by which he is adored!

6. That he should thus degrade himself, is what posterity will find very difficult to believe.

7. A man just and firm is not shaken, either by the clamours of an inconsiderate mob, or by the threats of an imperious tyrant: though * the whole world were to fall into ruins, he would be struck by it, but not moved.

(2.) Impulse, mouvement.

(3.) May, pouvoir.

(6.) (May he, repeated before every verb;) constitute, faire; which he loves, chérir.

(6.) Find difficult, avoir de la peine; believe, se persuader.

(7.) Is shaken, ébranler; inconsiderate, insensé; mob, populace; imperious, fier; were, devoir; to fall into ruins, s'écrouler.

least in subordinate, though they may be in the principal propositions. For instance,

I wish you would come to-night,

Cannot be translated by

Je souhaite que vous viendriez ce soir,

Because, "when the verb of the principal proposition is in the present, the verb of the subordinate proposition is put in the present of the subjunctive, if we mean to express a future." Therefore we must say,

Je souhaite que vous veniez.

Or, "if the first verb is in either of the conditionals, the second must be in the imperfect of the subjunctive." For which reason we must also say,

Je voudrais que vous vinssiez. (See Rule II.)

Now, in the first example, que vous veniez is marked in the conjunction of the verb by that you may come, and in the second, que vous vinssiez, by, that you might come, neither of which is in the examples given. Again,

Il n'y a personne qui le croie.

Cannot be translated by, there is nobody who may believe it, although may is the sign of the subjunctive in the meaning; but the meaning is,

There is nobody that believes it, or simply, nobody believes it.

RELATIONS BETWEEN THE TENSES OF THE DIFFERENT MOODS.

REMARK. Our intention is not to give the relations which all the tenses bear to each other, but simply to mention some of the principal.

Relations of the Indicative.

To the imperfect are subjoined three tenses.

STANDARD.—Je lisais { quand vous écriviez
 quand vous avez écrit
 quand vous écrivîtes.

The preterit anterior requires the preterit definite, as, quand j'eus fini, vous entrâtes.

To the pluperfect are subjoined the preterit definite, the preterit indefinite, the preterit anterior, and the imperfect.

STANDARDS.—J'avais lu { quand vous entrâtes quand vous êtes entré quand vous fûtes entré
quand vous entriez.

To the preterit anterior indefinite is subjoined the preterit indefinite, as, quand j'ai eu diné, vous êtes entré.

In conjunction with si, for supposé que, the future absolute requires the present, and the future anterior, the preterit indefinite.

STANDARD.— { Vous partirez, si je veux.
Il sera parti, si vous l'avez voulu.

Relations to the Conditional and of the Conditional.

In conjunction with si, for supposé que, the conditional present is accompanied by the imperfect, and the first conditional past by the pluperfect, or by the second conditional past.

STANDARDS.— { Vous partiriez, si je le voulais.
Vous seriez parti { si je l'avais voulu
si je l'eusse voulu.

The tenses of the conditional present, and of the two conditionals past, are likewise accompanied by themselves.

STANDARDS.— { Quand l'avare posséderait tout l'or du monde, il ne serait pas encore content.
Quand Alexandre aurait conquis tout l'univers, il n'aurait pas été content.
Vous fussiez parti, si je l'eusse voulu.

It has been observed that when two words are joined by the conjunction que, the second verb is put sometimes in the indicative and sometimes in the subjunctive.

Relations of the Present and Future Absolute, of the Indicative to the Tenses of their own Mood, and of the Conditional.

These two tenses may be accompanied by all the tenses of the indicative and conditional.

STANDARD.— { On dit } que	vous partez aujourd'hui vous partirez demain vous serez parti, quand, &c. vous partiez hier vous partîtes hier vous êtes parti ce matin vous fûtes parti hier, quand, &c. vous étiez parti hier, quand, &c. vous partiriez aujourd'hui, si, &c. vous seriez parti hier, si, &c. vous fussiez parti plus tôt, si, &c.
---	--

REMARK. The same relation subsists when the sentence is negative; except that for the present absolute of the indicative, the present of the subjunctive is substituted. Instead of, on ne dit pas que vous partez aujourd'hui; the genius of the French language requires that we should say, on ne dit pas que vous partiez aujourd'hui.

The imperfect, the preterit definite, the preterit indefinite, and the pluperfect, are accompanied either by the imperfect, or by the pluperfect.

STANDARDS.— { On disait On dit hier On a dit On avait dit } que	vous partiez aujourd'hui vous étiez parti.
---	---

The future anterior requires the preterit indefinite, as, on aura dit que vous avez menti.

The conditional present may be accompanied by the present, the imperfect, the preterit indefinite, the pluperfect, the future of the indicative, as well as by the three conditionals.

STANDARDS.— On croirait.	qu'il se trompe qu'il se trompait qu'il s'est trompé qu'il s'était trompé qu'il se trompera qu'il se tromperait, si, &c. qu'il se serait trompé, si, &c. qu'il se fût trompé, si, &c.
---------------------------------	--

The first conditional past may be accompanied by the imperfect, the pluperfect, as well as by the two other conditionals.

STANDARDS.—On auroit cru $\left\{ \begin{array}{l} \text{qu'il tombait} \\ \text{qu'il était tombé} \\ \text{qu'il serait tombé} \\ \text{qu'il fût tombé.} \end{array} \right.$

The second conditional past may be accompanied by the same tenses.

Principal Relations with the Subjunctive.

To the present, the future absolute, and the future anterior of the indicative, is generally subjoined the present of the subjunctive.

STANDARD.— $\left\{ \begin{array}{l} \text{Il veut} \\ \text{Il voudra} \\ \text{Il aura voulu} \end{array} \right\} \text{que vous partiez.}$

To the imperfect, the preterit definite, the preterit indefinite, the pluperfect, and the preterit anterior, may be subjoined the imperfect of the subjunctive.

STANDARD.— $\left\{ \begin{array}{l} \text{Je voulais} \\ \text{Je voulais} \\ \text{J'ai voulu} \\ \text{J'avais voulu} \\ \text{J'eus voulu} \end{array} \right\} \text{que vous partissiez.}$

To the future anterior the preterit of the subjunctive, as: Il aura voulu qu'il soit parti.

The conditional present is accompanied either by the imperfect, or by the pluperfect of the subjunctive.

STANDARD.— $\left\{ \begin{array}{l} \text{Je voudrais que} \end{array} \right\} \left\{ \begin{array}{l} \text{vous partissiez.} \\ \text{vous fussiez parti.} \end{array} \right.$

To the first and second conditionals past is subjoined the pluperfect of the subjunctive.

STANDARD.— $\left\{ \begin{array}{l} \text{J'aurais voulu} \\ \text{J'eusse voulu} \end{array} \right\} \text{que vous fussiez parti.}$ &c. &c. &c. &c.

Of the Infinitive.

The preposition to before an infinitive, is, according to circumstances, rendered either by pour, by à, or by de; sometimes even, it is not expressed at all.

When to means in order to, it is expressed in French, by pour, as,

He came to speak to me,

Il vint pour me parler.

As for the other two cases, there is hardly any fixed rule to distinguish whether à or de is to be used; the regimen which the preceding French verb requires after it is the only guide. Thus,

He likes to play, will be expressed by il aime à jouer; he told me to go, by il me dit d'aller; and he preferred dying, by il aimait mieux mourir.

The participle present is used in English both as a substantive and an adjective, and frequently instead of the present of the infinitive.

His ruling passion is hunting, Sa passion dominante est la chasse.

He is gone a walking, Il est allé se promener.

Prevent him from doing mischief, Empêchez-le de faire le mal.

There is a pleasure in silencing great talkers, Il y a plaisir à fermer la bouche aux grands parleurs.

It likewise takes almost every other preposition. In the first of the above examples it is translated by the substantive; in the second by the verbal adjective; and in the others by the present of the infinitive. But sometimes it must be expressed by the relative qui, with the verb in the indicative, especially when a different mode might create any ambiguity in the sense; as,

I met them riding post, Je les ai rencontrés qui couraient la poste.

Sometimes it must be expressed by the conjunction que, with the verb in the indicative, or in the subjunctive, as circumstances may require: this is when the participle present is preceded by a possessive pronoun, as,

The fear of his coming vexed us, La crainte qu'il ne vint nous tourmentait.

I doubt his being faithful, Je doute qu'il soit fidèle, &c.

It may be proper to observe that, in French, the preposition en alone is followed by the participle present. All other prepositions require the present of the infinitive.

Foreigners are apt to mistake in the use of the participle present, because they do not consider that, as it expresses an incidental proposition, it must evidently relate to the word which it restrains and modifies.

RULE. The participle present always forming a phrase incidental and subordinate to another, must necessarily relate to the subject of the principal phrase, when it is not preceded by another noun, as in this sentence:

Je ne puis vous accompagner à la campagne, ayant des affaires qui exigent ici ma présence, I cannot accompany you into the country, having some business that requires my presence here.

The participle present ayant relates to the subject je, since the subordinate proposition, formed by ayant, could have no kind of relation to the principal proposition, if it could not be resolved into this, parce que j'ai des affaires qui, &c. But, in this sentence;

Combien voyons-nous de gens, qui, connaissant le prix du temps, le perdent mal-à-propos! How many people do we see, who, knowing the value of time, waste it improperly!

Connaissant relates to the substantive gens, because this is the word which it restrains and modifies, and because the relative qui, placed between that substantive as the regimen, and the participle present, obviates every kind of ambiguity.

REMARK 1. Two participles ought never to be used together without being united by a conjunction, as, &c.

C'est un homme aimant et craignant Dieu, He is a man loving and fearing God.

2. The relative en ought never to be put either before a participle present, or before a gerund. We cannot say:

Je vous ai remis mon fils entre les mains, en voulant faire quelque chose de bon.

Because the sense would be ambiguous: for, the meaning is not:

As I wish to do something good, or, as I wish to do well, I have put my son into your hands,

But,

I have put my son into your hands, as I wish to make something of him.

We should say: Voulant en faire, &c.

Likewise this sentence would be improper:

Le prince tempère la rigueur du pouvoir, en en partageant les fonctions, on account of the repetition of the word en, used in two different senses, viz., as a preposition and a relative. Another turn must be then adopted, as,

C'est en partageant les fonctions du pouvoir, qu'un prince en tempère la rigueur.

CHAP. VI.

OF PREPOSITIONS.

The office of prepositions is to bring the two terms between which they are placed, into a state of relation. And that relation is generally expressed by their own signification, as,

Avec, sur, pendant, dans, &c.

But, à, de, and en, express it, either by their primitive and proper meaning, or figuratively, and by extension; so that, in this last case, they are merely prepositions serving to unite the two terms; whence it happens, that they often express, either the same relations that others do, or opposite relations. For instance, in these two sentences:

Approchez-vous du feu, Eloignez-vous du feu,

Come near the fire.
Go from the fire.

De merely establishes a relation between the two terms, without expressing in the first, the relation of approximation, or in the second, the relation of distance. In order, therefore, to form a just idea of these three prepositions, it is of importance to consider only their primitive and proper signification.

En and dans have nearly the same meaning; but they differ in this, that the former is used in a more vague, the latter in a more determinate sense, as:

J'étais en Angleterre, dans la province de Middlesex.

From what has just been said, it follows then, that en, on account of its indeterminate nature, ought not to be followed by the article, except in a small number of phrases sanctioned by usage; such are,

En la présence de Dieu; en la grand' chambre du parlement; en l'absence d'un tel; en l'année mil huit cent dix-sept, &c.

with respect to the expressions

En l'honneur, en l'âge, it is better to say, à l'honneur, à l'âge.

402 PARTICULAR RULES OF THE PREPOSITIONS.

Avant is a preposition in this phrase :

Avant le jour, Before day-light.

But it is an adverb in this :

N'allez pas si avant, Do not go so forward.

Some other prepositions are likewise occasionally adverbs.

Autour and alentour, must not be confounded ; autour is a preposition, and alentour an adverb, thus ;

Tous les grands étaient autour du trône, All the grandees stood round the throne.

Le roi était sur son trône, et les grands étaient alentour, The king was upon the throne, and the grandees stood round.

Avant and auparavant are not used indifferently.

Avant is followed by a regimen, as,

Avant Pâques, Before Easter.

Avant ce temps, Before that time.

Auparavant is followed by no regimen, as,

Si vous partez, venez me voir auparavant, If you set off, come and see me first.

Prêt à and près de, are not the same expressions.

Prêt is an adjective :

Je suis prêt à faire ce que vous voudrez, I am ready to do what you please.

But près is a preposition :

Mon ouvrage est près d'être fini, My work is nearly finished.

Au travers and à travers differ in this ; the first is followed by the preposition de, the second is not, as,

Il se fit jour au travers des ennemis, He fought his way through the enemy.

Il se fit jour à travers les ennemis,

Avant denotes priority of time and order, as,

Il est arrivé avant moi, l'article se met avant le nom.

Devant is used for en présence, vis-à-vis, as,

Il a paru devant le juge ; il loge devant l'église.

REMARK. Devant is likewise a preposition marking order, and is the opposite of après, as,

Il a le pas devant moi, He has precedence of me.
Si vous êtes pressé, courez de- If you are in a hurry, run be-vant, fore.

THE USE OF THE ARTICLE WITH PREPOSITIONS.

Some prepositions require the article before their regimen; others do not; and others again, sometimes admit, sometimes reject it.

RULE I. The following prepositions, generally require the article before the noun which they govern.

avant,	depuis,	envers,	nonobstant,	selon,
après,	devant,	excepté,	parmi,	suyvant,
chez,	derrière,	hors,	pendant,	touchant,
dans,	durant,	hormis,	pour,	vers,
avant l'aurore,	chez le prince,	envers les pauvres,
après la promenade,	dans la maison,	devant l'église, &c.

There are however exceptions, as,

avant terme,	avant diner,	pour lit une paille,
avant midi,	après diner,	depuis minuit, &c.

RULE II. A noun governed by the preposition en, is not, in general, preceded by the article, as,

En ville, en campagne, en exil, en songe, en pièces, &c.

REMARK. L'armée est entrée en campagne, means the army has taken the field; but Mr. N. est allé à la campagne, means Mr. N. is gone into the country.

RULE III. These eleven prepositions, à, de, avec, contre, entre, malgré, outre, par, pour, sur, sans, sometimes admit, sometimes reject the article, before their regimen.

If the article is used in these phrases:

Jouer sur le velours,

St. Paul veut de la subordination entre la femme et le mari.

Sans les passions, où serait le mérite?

It is suppressed in,

Etre sur pied; un peu de façons ne gêne rien entre mari et femme.

Vivre sans passions, c'est vivre sans plaisirs, et sans peines.

REPETITION OF THE PREPOSITION.

RULE I. The prepositions de, à, and en, must be repeated before all the nouns which they govern, as,

404 PARTICULAR RULES OF THE PREPOSITIONS.

Voyons qui l'emportera de vous, de lui, ou de moi,
Elle a de l'honnêteté, de la douceur, des grâces, et de l'esprit,
La loi, que Dieu a gravée au fond de mon cœur, m'instruit de tout ce que je dois à l'auteur de mon être, au prochain, à moi-même,

Let us see which of us will excel, you, he, or I.

She has politeness, sweetness, grace, and abilities.

The law which God has deeply engraven on my heart, instructs me in every thing I owe to the author of my being, to my neighbour, and to myself.

En Asie, en Europe, en Afrique, et jusqu'en Amérique, on trouve le même préjugé,

In Asia, in Europe, in Africa, and even in America, we find the same prejudice.

RULE II. The other prepositions, especially those consisting of two syllables, are generally repeated—before nouns, which have meanings totally different; but seldom before nouns that are nearly synonymous.

Rien n'est moins selon Dieu et selon le monde,

Nothing is less according to God and according to the world.

Cette action est contre l'honneur et contre toute espèce de principes,

That action is contrary to honour, and to every kind of principle.

But we ought to say,

Il perd sa jeunesse dans la mollesse et la volupté,

He wastes his youth in effeminacy and pleasure.

Notre loi ne condamne personne sans l'avoir entendu et examiné,

Our laws condemn nobody without having heard and examined him.

OF THE GOVERNMENT OF PREPOSITIONS.

Some prepositions govern nouns without the help of another preposition, as,

Devant la maison,
Hormis son frère,
Sans son épée,

Before the house.
 Except his brother.
 Without his sword, &c.

Others require the help of the preposition de, as,

Près de la maison,
A l'insu de son frère,
Au-dessus du pont,

Near the house.
 Unknown to his brother.
 Above the bridge, &c.

These four, jusque, par rapport, quant, and sauf, are followed by the preposition à, as,

Jusqu'au mois prochain,
Quant à moi,

Till the next month.
 As for me, &c.

Practice alone can teach these different regimens.

RULE. A noun may be governed by two prepositions, provided they do not require different regimens; thus we say with propriety,

Celui qui écrit selon les circonstances, pour et contre un parti, est un homme bien méprisable,	He who writes according to circumstances, both for and against a party, is a very contemptible man.
--	---

But it would be wrong to say,

Celui qui écrit en faveur et contre un parti, &c.

because en faveur requires the preposition de.

RULE. Prepositions which, with their regimen, express a circumstance, are generally placed as nearly as possible to the word to which that circumstance relates, as,

On voit des personnes qui, avec beaucoup d'esprit, commettent de très-grandes fautes, J'ai envoyé à la poste les lettres que vous avez écrites, Croyez-vous pouvoir ramener par la douceur ces esprits égarés?	We see persons who, with a great deal of wit, commit very great faults. I have sent to the post-office the letters which you have written. Do you think you can reclaim by gentleness, those mistaken people?
---	---

If we attempt to alter the place of these prepositions, we shall find that the sentences will become ambiguous.

CHAP. VII.

OF THE ADVERB.

OF THE NEGATIVE ne.

Negation is expressed in French by ne, either alone or accompanied by pas or point. On this point the Academy has examined the four following questions:

1. Where is the place of the negatives?
2. When is pas to be used in preference to point, and vice versa?
3. When may both be omitted?
4. When ought both to be omitted?

As this subject is of very material importance, we shall treat it upon the plan of the Academy, and agreeably to their views.

FIRST QUESTION. Where is the place of the negatives?

Ne is always prefixed to the verb; but the place of pas and point is variable.

When the verb is in the infinitive, these are placed differently before, or after it; for we say,

Pour ne point voir, or, pour ne voir pas.

In the other moods, except the imperative, the tenses are either simple, or compound. In the simple tenses, pas or point is placed after the verb.

Il ne parle pas; ne parle-t-il pas?

In the compound tenses, it is placed between the auxiliary and the participle.

Il n'a pas parlé; n'a-t-il pas parlé?

In the imperative, it is placed after the verb.

Ne badinez pas. Ne vous en allez pas.

SECOND QUESTION. When is pas to be used in preference to point, and vice versâ?

Point is a stronger negative than pas: besides, it denotes something permanent: Il ne lit point, means, he never reads.

Pas denotes something accidental: Il ne lit pas, means, he does not read now, or he is not reading.

Point de denotes an absolute negation. Thus:

Il n'a point d'esprit, is to say, he has no wit at all.

Pas de allows the liberty of a reserve. So:

Il n'a pas d'esprit, is to say, he has nothing of what can be called wit.

Hence, the Academy concludes, that pas is more proper,

1. Before plus, moins, si, autant, and other words denoting comparison, as,

Milton n'est pas moins sublime qu'Homère, Milton is not less sublime than Homer.

2. Before nouns of number, as,

Il n'y a pas dix ans, It is not ten years ago.

Point is elegantly used,

1. At the end of a sentence, as,

On s'amusait à ses dépens, et il ne s'en apercevait point, They were amusing themselves at his expense, and he did not perceive it.

2. In elliptical sentences, as,

Je croyais avoir affaire à un honnête homme ; mais point, I thought I had to deal with an honest man ; but no.

3. In answer to interrogative sentences, as, irez-vous ce soir au parc ?— point, Shall you go this evening to the park ?—no.

The Academy also observes, that when pas, or point, is introduced into interrogative sentences, it is with meanings somewhat different. We make use of point, when we have any doubt on our minds, as N'avez-vous point été là ? Have you not been there ?

But we use pas, when we are persuaded. Thus,

N'avez-vous pas été là ? But you have been there, have not you ?

THIRD QUESTION. When may both pas and point be omitted ?

They may be suppressed,

1. After the words cesser, oser, and pouvoir ; but this omission is only for the sake of elegance, as,

Je ne cesse de m'en occuper, I am incessantly attentive to it.

Je n'ose vous en parler, I dare not speak to you about it.

Je ne puis y penser sans frémir, I cannot think of it without shuddering.

We likewise say, but only in familiar conversation,

Ne bougez, Do not stir.

2. In expressions of this kind,

Y a-t-il un homme dont elle ne médise ? Is there a man that she does not slander ?

Avez-vous un ami qui ne soit des miens ? Have you a friend that is not likewise mine ?

FOURTH QUESTION. When ought both pas and point to be omitted ?

They are omitted,

1. When the extent which we mean to give to the negative is sufficiently expressed either by the words which restrict it, by words which exclude all restriction, or lastly, by such as denote the smaller parts of a whole, and which are without the article.

To exemplify the first part of this remark, we say,

*Je ne sors guère,
Je ne sortirai de trois jours,*

I go out but seldom.
I shall not go out for three days.

To exemplify the second, we say,

*Je n'y vais jamais,
Je n'y pense plus,
Nul ne sait s'il est digne d'amour,
ou de haine,
N'employez aucun de ces stratagèmes,*

I never go there.
I think no more of it.
Nobody knows whether he be deserving of love, or hatred.
Use none of these stratagems.

*Il ne plaît à personne,
Rien n'est plus charmant,
Je n'y pense nullement,*

He pleases nobody.
Nothing is more charming.
I do not think of it at all.

To exemplify the third, we say,

*Il n'y voit goutte,
Je n'en ai cueilli brin,
Il ne dit mot,*

He cannot see at all.
I did not gather a sprig.
He speaks not a word.

But if to mot we join an adjective of number, pas must be added, as,

*Il ne dit pas un mot qui n'intéresse,
Dans ce discours, il n'y a pas
trois mots à reprendre,*

He speaks not a word but what is interesting.
In that speech, there are not three words that are exceptionable.

Pas is likewise used with the preposition de, as,

Il ne fait pas de démarche inutile,

He does not take any useless
step.

REMARK. If, after the sentences we have just mentioned, either the conjunction que, or the relative pronouns qui or dont, should introduce a negative sentence, then in this last pas and point are omitted, as,

*Je ne fais jamais d'excès que je n'en sois incommodé,
Je ne vois personne qui ne vous
loue,*

I never commit any excess,
without being ill after it.
I see nobody but what commends you.

2. When two negatives are joined by ni, as,

Je ne l'aime ni ne l'estime,

I neither love nor esteem him.

And when the conjunction ni is repeated, either in the subject, as,

Ni l'or ni la grandeur ne nous rendent heureux,

Neither gold nor greatness can make us happy.

Or, in the attribute, as,

Il n'est ni prudent ni sage,

He is neither prudent nor wise.

Or, in the regimen, as,

Il n'a ni dettes ni procès,

He has neither debts nor law-suits.

REMARK. Pas is preserved, when ni is not repeated, and when this last serves only to unite two members of a negative sentence, as,

Je n'aime pas ce vain étalage d'érudition, prodiguée sans choix et sans goût, ni ce luxe de mots qui ne disent rien,

I do not like that vain display of erudition, lavished without choice and without taste, nor that pomp of words which have no meaning.

3. With the verb which follows que, used instead of pourquoi, and with à moins que, or si, used instead of it, as,

Que n'êtes-vous aussi posé que votre frère ?

Why are you not as sedate as your brother ?

*Je ne sortirai pas, à moins que
vous ne veniez me prendre,
Je n'irai pas chez lui, s'il ne m'y engage,*

I shall not go out, unless you come to fetch me.
I shall not go to his house, if he do not invite me.

4. With ne—que used instead of seulement, as,

Une jeunesse, qui se livre à ses passions, ne transmet à la vieillesse qu'un corps usé,

Youth, which abandons itself to its passions, transmits to old age nothing but a worn-out body.

When before the conjunction que, the word rien is understood, as,

Il ne fait que rire,

He does nothing but laugh.

Or when that conjunction may be changed into sinon, or si ce n'est, as,

Il ne tient qu'à vous de réussir,

The success wholly depends upon you.

Trop de maîtres à la fois ne servent qu'à embrouiller l'esprit,

Too many masters at once only serve to perplex the mind.

5. With a verb in the preterit, preceded by the conjunction depuis que, or by the verb il y a, denoting a certain duration of time, as,

Comment vous êtes-vous porté depuis que je ne vous ai vu ?

How have you been since I saw you ?

Il y a trois mois que je ne vous ai vu,

I have not seen you for these three months.

But they are not omitted, when the verb is in the present, as,

Comment vit-il depuis que nous ne le voyons point? How does he live now we do not see him?

Il y a six mois que nous ne le voyons point, We have not seen him these six months.

6. In phrases where the conjunction que is preceded by the adverbs of comparison plus, moins, mieux, &c. of some other equivalent term, as,

On méprise ceux qui parlent autrement qu'ils ne pensent, We despise those who speak differently from what they think.

Il écrit mieux qu'il ne parle, He writes better than he speaks.

C'est pire qu'on ne le disait, It is worse than was said.

C'est autre chose que je ne croyais, It is different from what I thought.

Peu s'en faut qu'on ne m'ait trompé, I have been very near being deceived.

7. In sentences united by the conjunction que to the verbs douter, désespérer, nier, and disconvenir, forming a negative member of a sentence, as,

Je ne doute pas qu'il ne vienne, I doubt not that he will come.

Ne désespérez pas que ce moyen ne vous réussisse, Do not despair of the success of these means.

Je ne nie pas, or je ne disconviens pas que cela ne soit, I do not deny that it is so.

The Academy says, that after the two last verbs, ne may be omitted, as,

Je ne nie pas, or, je ne disconviens pas que cela soit.

8. With a verb united by the conjunction que to the verbs empêcher and prendre garde, meaning to take care, as,

J'empêcherai bien que vous ne soyez du nombre, I shall prevent your being of the number.

Prenez garde qu'on ne vous séduise, Take care that they do not corrupt you.

REMARK. The Academy observes, that in the above acceptation, prendre garde is followed by a subjunctive; but when it means to reflect, the indicative is used with pas or point, as,

Prenez garde que vous ne m'entendez pas, Mind, you do not understand what I mean.

9. With a verb united by the conjunction que to the verb craindre, and those of the same meaning, when we do not wish the thing expressed by the second verb, as,

Il craint que son frère ne l'abandonne, He is afraid his brother should forsake him.

Je crains que mon ami ne meure, I fear my friend will die.

• But pas is not omitted, when we wish the thing expressed by the second verb, as,

Je crains que mon père n'arrive pas, I am afraid my father will not come.

10. With the verb which follows de peur que, de crainte que, in similar circumstances with craindre. Thus, when we say,

De crainte qu'il ne perde son procès,

We wish that he may gain it; and, when we say,

De crainte qu'il ne soit pas puni,

We wish that he may be punished.

REMARK. In these phrases,

Je crains que mon ami ne meure, I am afraid my friend will die.

Vous empêchez qu'on ne chante. You prevent them from singing.

The expression ne is not a negation; it is the ne, or quin of the Latins introduced into the French language, as may be seen by the English translation.

11. After savoir, whenever it has the meaning of pouvoir, as,

Je ne saurais en venir à bout, I cannot accomplish it.

When it means être incertain, it is the best to omit pas and point, as,

Je ne sais où le prendre, I do not know where to find him.

Il ne sait ce qu'il dit, He does not know what he says.

REMARK. But pas and point must be used when savoir is taken in its true meaning, as,

Je ne sais pas le Français, I do not know French.

12. We also say,

Ne vous déplaie, ne vous en déplaie, By your leave, under favour, or, let it not displease you.

Plus and davantage must not be used indifferently. Plus is followed by the preposition de, or the conjunction que, as,

Il a plus de brillant que de solide, He has more brilliancy than solidity.
Il se fie plus à ses lumières qu'à celles des autres, He relies more upon his own knowledge than upon that of others.

Davantage is used alone and at the end of sentences, as,
La science est estimable, mais la vertu l'est davantage, Learning is estimable, but virtue is still more so.

Though davantage cannot be followed by the preposition de, it may be preceded by the pronoun en, as,

Je n'en dirai pas davantage, I shall not say any more about it.

It is incorrect to use davantage for le plus. We must say,

De toutes les fleurs d'un parterre, l'anémone est celle qui me plaît le plus, Of all the flowers of a parterre the anemone is that which pleases me most.

Si, aussi, tant, and autant, are always followed by the conjunction que, expressed or understood.

Si and aussi are joined to adjectives, adverbs, and participles; tant and autant to substantives and verbs.

L'Angleterre n'est pas si grande que la France, England is not so large as France.

Il est aussi estimé qu'aimé, He is as much esteemed as he is beloved.

Elle a autant de beauté que de vertu, She has as much beauty as virtue.

REMARK. Autant may, however, be substituted for aussi, when it is preceded by one adjective, and followed by que and another adjective, as,

Il est modeste autant que sage, He is as modest as wise.

Aussi and autant are used in the affirmative; si and tant in negative and interrogative sentences. The two last are, however, alone to be used in affirmative sentences, when they are put for tellement, as,

Il est devenu si gros, qu'il a de la peine à marcher, He is become so bulky that he can hardly walk.

Il a tant couru qu'il en est hors d'haleine, He has been running so fast that he is out of breath.

Jamais takes sometimes the preposition à, and toujours the preposition pour, as,

Soyez à jamais heureux, Be for ever happy.
C'est pour toujours, It is for ever.

CHAP. VIII.

OF GRAMMATICAL CONSTRUCTION.

GRAMMATICAL construction is the order which the genius of a language has assigned, in speech, to the different sorts of words into which it is distinguished. Construction is sometimes mistaken for syntax; but there is this difference, the latter consists in the rules which we are to observe, in order to express the relations of words one to another, whereas grammatical construction consists in the various arrangements which are allowed while we observe the rules of syntax. Now this arrangement is irrevocably fixed, not only as phrases may be interrogative, imperative, or expositive, but also as each of these kinds may be affirmative or negative.

In sentences simply interrogative, the subject is either a noun or pronoun.

If the subject be a noun, the following is the order to be observed: first, the noun, then the verb, then the corresponding personal pronoun, the adverb, if any, and the regimen in the simple tenses: in the compound tenses, the pronoun and the adverb are placed between the auxiliary and the participle, as,

Les lumières sont-elles un bien	Are sciences an advantage to
pour les peuples ? ont-elles	nations ? Have they ever con-
jamais contribué à leur bon-	tributed to their happiness ?
heur ?

If the subject be a pronoun, the verb begins the series, and the other words follow in the order already pointed out, as,

Vous plairez-vous toujours à	Will you always take pleasure
médire ?	in slandering ?
Aurez-vous bientôt fini ?	Shall you have soon done ?

N. B. When the verb is reflected, the pronoun forming the regimen begins the series; this pronoun always preserves its place before the verb, except in sentences simply imperative.

In interrogative sentences, with negation, the same order is observed; but ne is placed before the verb, and pas, or point, after the verb in the simple tenses, and between the auxiliary and the participle in the compound tenses, as, Votre frère ne viendra-t-il pas demain ? Will not your brother come to-morrow ?

N'aurez-vous pas bientôt fini ? Shall you not have soon done ?

REMARK. There are in French several other ways of interrogating.

1. With an absolute pronoun, as,

Qui vous a dit cela ? or,

Qui est-ce qui vous a dit cela ? Who told you that ?

2. With the demonstrative pronoun ce, as,

Est-ce vous ? Is it you ? Est-ce qu'il pleut ? Does it rain ?

3. With an interrogative verb, as,

Pourquoi ne vient-il pas ? Why does he not come ?

Comment vous trouvez-vous ? How do you find yourself ?

Hence we see that the absolute pronouns and the interrogative adverbs always begin the sentence: but the demonstrative pronoun always follows the verb.

In sentences, simply imperative, the verb is always placed first, in the first and second persons; but in the third, it comes after the conjunction que and the noun or pronoun, as,

Allons là,

Let us go there.

Venez ici,

Come here.

Qu'ils y aillent,

Let them go there.

Que Pierre aille à Londres,

Let Peter go to London.

With negation ne and pas are placed as in interrogative sentences.

For the place of the pronouns, (see p. 247.)

Sentences are expositive, when we speak without either interrogating, or commanding. The following is the order of the words in those which are affirmative: the subject, the verb, the adverb, the participle, the regimen, as,

Un bon prince mérite l'amour de ses sujets, et l'estime de tous les peuples,

A good prince deserves the love of his subjects, and the esteem of all nations.

César eût inutilement passé le Rubicon, s'il y eût eu de son temps des Fabius, Cæsar would have crossed the Rubicon to no purpose, had there been Fabii in his time.

The negative sentences differ from this construction, only as ne is always placed before the verb, and pas, or point, either after the verb, or between the auxiliary and the participle, as,

Un homme riche ne fait pas toujours le bien qu'il pourrait,	A rich man does not always do all the good he might.
Cicéron n'eût peut-être pas été un si grand orateur, si le désir de s'élever aux premières dignités n'eût enflammé son âme,	Cicero would not perhaps have been so great an orator, had not the desire of rising to the first dignities inflamed his soul.

Sentences are either simple, or compound. They are simple, when they contain only one subject and one attribute, as,

Vous lisez,	You read.
Vous êtes jeune,	You are young.

They are compound, when they associate several subjects with one attribute, or several attributes with one subject, or several attributes with several subjects, or several subjects with several attributes.

This sentence, Pierre et Paul sont heureux, is compound by having several subjects; this, cette femme est jolie, spirituelle et sensible, is compound by having several attributes; and this, Pierre et Paul sont spirituels et savans, is composed at once of several subjects and several attributes.

A sentence may be compound in various other ways; by the subject, by the verb, or by the attribute.

By the subject, when this is restricted by an incidental proposition, as,

Dieu, qui est bon.

By the verb, when it is modified by some circumstance of time, order, &c., as,

Dieu, qui est bon, n'abandonne jamais.

By the attribute, when this attribute is modified by a regimen which is itself restricted, as,

Dieu, qui est bon, n'abandonne jamais les hommes, qui mettent sincèrement leur confiance en lui.

These simple or compound sentences, may be joined to others by a conjunction, as,

Quand on aime l'étude, le temps passe sans qu'on s'en aperçoive,	When we love study, time flies without our perceiving it.
---	---

The two partial phrases here form but one.

RULE. When a sentence is composed of two partial phrases, joined by a conjunction, harmony and perspicuity generally require the shortest to go first.

EXAMPLES.

Quand les passions nous quittent,	When our passions leave us, we
nous nous flattons en vain, que	in vain flatter ourselves that
c'est nous qui les quittons,	it is we that leave them.
On n'est point à plaindre, quand,	He is not to be pitied, who for
au défaut de plaisirs réels, on	want of real pleasure, finds
trouve le moyen de s'occuper de	means to amuse himself with
chimères,	chimeras.

Periods result from the union of several partial phrases, the whole of which make a complete sense. Periods, to be clear, require the shortest phrases to be placed first. The following example of this is taken from Fléchier.

N'attendez pas, Messieurs,

1. Que j'ouvre une scène tragique ;
2. Que je représente ce grand homme étendu sur ses propres trophées ;
3. Que je découvre ce corps pâle et sanglant, auprès duquel fume encore la foudre qui l'a frappé ;
4. Que je fasse crier son sang comme celui d'Abel, et que j'expose à vos yeux les images de la religion et de la patrie éplorée.

This admirable period is composed of four members, which go on gradually increasing. It is a rule not to give more than four members to a period, and to avoid multiplying incidental sentences.

Obscurity in style is generally owing to those small phrases which divert the attention from the principal sentences, and make us lose sight of them.

The construction which we have mentioned is called direct, or regular, because the words are placed in those sentences according to the order which has been pointed out. But this order may be altered in certain cases, and then the construction is called indirect, or irregular. Now, it may be irregular, by inversion by ellipsis, by pleonasm, or by syllipsis ; these are what are called the four figures of words.

OF INVERSION.

Inversion is the transportation of a word into a place, different from that which by usage is properly assigned to it: This ought never to be done except when it introduces more perspicuity, energy, or harmony into the language; for it is a defect in construction, whenever the relation subsisting between words is not easily perceived.

There are two kinds of inversion: the one, by its boldness, seems to be confined to poetry: the other is frequently employed even in prose.

We shall speak here of the latter kind only.

The following inversions are authorized by custom.

The subject by which a verb is governed may with propriety be placed after it, as,

Tout ce que lui promet l'amitié des Romains, All that the friendship of the Romans promises him.

REMARK. This inversion is a rule of the art of speaking and writing, whenever the subject is modified by an incidental sentence, long enough to make us lose sight of the relation of the verb governed to the subject governing.

The noun governed by the prepositions de and à may likewise be very properly placed before the verb, as,

D'une voix entrecoupée de sanglots, ils s'écrièrent, In a voice interrupted by sobs, they exclaimed.
A tant d'injures, qu'a-t-elle répondu? To so much abuse, what answer did she give?

The verb is likewise elegantly preceded by the prepositions après, dans, par, sous, contre, &c. with their dependencies, as well as by the conjunction si, quand, parce que, puisque, quoique, lorsque, &c. as,

Par la loi du corps, je tiens à ce monde qui passe, By the law of the body, I am connected with this passing world.

Puisqu'il le veut, qu'il le fasse. Since he wishes it, let him do it.

OF THE ELLIPSIS.

Ellipsis is the omission of a word, or even several words which are necessary to make the construction full and complete. In order to form a good ellipsis, the mind must be able easily to supply the words omitted, as,

J'accepterais les offres de Darius, si j'étais Alexandre:— et moi aussi, si j'étais Parménion, I would accept the offers of Darius, if I were Alexander:— and so would I, if I were Parmenio.

Here the mind easily supplies the words je les accepterois in the second member.

The ellipsis is very common in answers to interrogative sentences, as,

Quand viendrez-vous ? — de- main, When will you come ?—to-morrow.

that is, je viendrai demain.

In order to know whether an ellipsis be good, the words that are understood must be supplied. It is correct, whenever the construction completely expresses the sense denoted by the words which are supplied; otherwise it is not exact.

OF THE PLEONASM.

Pleonasm, in general, is a superfluity of words; in order to constitute this figure good, it must be sanctioned by custom, which never authorizes its use, but to give greater energy to language, or to express, in a clearer manner, the internal feeling with which we are affected.

Et que m'a fait à moi cette Troie où je cours !

Je me meurs. S'il ne veut pas vous le dire, je vous le dirai, moi.

Je l'ai vu de mes propres yeux.

Je l'ai entendu de mes propres oreilles.

—A moi, in the first sentence;—me, in the second;—moi, in the third;—de mes propres yeux, in the fourth; and—de mes propres oreilles, in the fifth, are employed merely for the sake of energy, or to manifest an internal feeling. But this manner of speaking is sanctioned by custom.

REMARK. Expletives must not be mistaken for pleonasm, as,

C'est une affaire, où il y va du salut de l'état, It is an affair in which the safety of the state is concerned.

Which is better than c'est une affaire, où il va, &c. by omitting y, which is in reality useless on account of où: but y here, is a mode of expression from which it is not allowable to deviate.

OF THE SYLLEPSIS.

The syllepsis is a figure by which a word relates more to our meaning, than to the literal expressions, as in these:

Il est onze heures: l'an mil sept cent quatre-vingt-dix-neuf.

When using it, the mind, merely intent upon a precise meaning, pays no attention to either the number, or the gender of heure and an.

There is likewise a syllepsis in these sentences:

Je crains qu'il ne vienne,
J'empêcherai qu'il ne vous nuise.
J'ai peur qu'il ne m'oublie, &c.

Full of a wish that the event may not take place, we are willing to do all we can, that nothing should present an obstacle to that wish. This is the cause of the introduction of the negative, which, although unnecessary to complete the sense, yet must be preserved for the idiom.

There is again a very elegant syllepsis in sentences like the following from Racine:

Entre le peuple et vous, vous prendrez Dieu pour juge;
Vous souvenant, mon fils, que caché sous ce lin,
Comme eux vous fûtes pauvre, et, comme eux, orphelin.

The poet forgets that he has been using the word peuple: nothing remains in his mind but des pauvres and des orphelins, and it is with that idea of which he is so fully impressed that he makes the pronoun eux agree. For the same reason, Bossuet and Mézengui have said, Quand le peuple Hébreu entra dans la terre promise, tout y célébrait leurs ancêtres.—BOSSUET.

Moïse eut recours au Seigneur, et lui dit: que ferai-je à ce peuple? bientôt ils me lapideront.—MEZENGUI.

Leurs and ils stand for les Hébreux.

CHAP. IX.

OF GRAMMATICAL DISCORDANCES, AMPHIBOLOGIES, AND GALLICISMS.

We have chiefly to notice two incorrect modes of construction, which are contrary to the principles laid down in the preceding chapters—grammatical discordances, and amphibologies.

OF DISCORDANCES.

In general, there is a discordance in language, when the words which compose the various members of a sentence, or period, do not agree with each other, either because their construction is contrary to analogy, or because they bring together dissimilar ideas, between which the mind perceives an opposition, or can see no manner of affinity.

The following examples will serve to illustrate this;

Notre réputation ne dépend pas des louanges qu'on nous donne, mais des actions louables que nous faisons.

This sentence is not correct, because the first member being negative, and the second affirmative, cannot come under the government of the same verb. It ought to be:

Notre réputation dépend, non	Our reputation depends, not up- des louanges qu'on nous	on the praises which are be-
donne, mais des actions	stowed on us, but upon the
louables que, &c.	praiseworthy actions which we
	perform.

But the most common discordances are those which arise from the wrong use of tenses, as in this sentence:

Il regarde votre malheur comme une punition du peu de complaisance que vous avez eue pour lui, dans le temps qu'il vous pria, &c.

Because the two preterits, definite and indefinite, cannot well agree together; it should be:

Que vous eûtes pour lui dans le temps qu'il vous pria.

There is discordance in this sentence:

On en ressentit autant de joie que d'une victoire complète dans un autre temps,

Because the verb cannot be understood after the que which serves for the comparison, when that verb is to be in a different tense; it should be:

On en ressentit autant de joie qu'on en aurait senti, &c.

This line of Racine,

Le flot, qui l'apporta, recule épouventé, is also incorrect, because the form of the present cannot associate with that of the preterit definite; it should have been: qui l'a apporté.

OF AMPHIBOLOGIES.

Amphibology in language is when a sentence is so constructed as to be susceptible of two different interpretations: this must be carefully avoided. As we speak only to be understood, perspicuity is the first and most essential quality of language; we should always recollect that what is not clearly expressed in any language, is no language at all.

Amphibologies are occasioned, 1. By the misuse of—moods, and—tenses. 2. Of—the personal pronouns, il, le, la, &c. 3. Of the possessive pronouns, son, sa, ses, &c. 4. By giving a wrong place to nouns.

EXAMPLE

Of an Amphibology of the first Kind.

Qu'ai-je fait, pour venir accabler en ces lieux

Un héros, sur qui seul j'ai pu tourner les yeux ?—RACINE.

Pour venir forms an amphibology, because we do not know whether it relates to the person who speaks, or to the person spoken to: it should have been Pour que vous veniez.

EXAMPLE

Of an Amphibology of the second Kind.

César voulut premièrement surpasser Pompée; les grandes richesses de Crassus lui firent croire, qu'il pourrait partager la gloire de ces deux grands hommes.

This sentence is faulty in its construction, because the pronouns il and lui seem to relate to César, although the sense obliges us to refer them to Crassus,

EXAMPLE

Of an Amphibology of the third Kind.

Valère alla chez Léandre; il y trouva son fils.

The pronoun son is ambiguous, because we do not know to which it relates, to Valère, or to Léandre.

EXAMPLE

Of an Amphibology of the fourth Kind.

J'ai envoyé les lettres, que j'ai écrites, a la poste.

A la poste, thus placed, is equivocal, because we do not know whether it is meant that the letters have been written at the post-office, or sent to the post-office.

OF GALLICISMS.

We have distinguished in our "Grammaire Philosophique et Littéraire," four sorts of gallicisms: we shall only mention here those of construction.

The gallicisms of construction are, in general, irregularities and deviations from the customary rules of syntax: there are some, however, which are mere ellipses, and others which can only be attributed to the caprice of custom.

GENERAL PRINCIPLE. Every gallicism of construction which obscures the meaning of the sentence, ought to be condemned. Those only ought to be preserved which do not impair perspicuity, by introducing irregularity of construction, and which are, at the same time, sanctioned by long practice.

According to this principle, this elliptic gallicism is now rejected:

Et qu'ainsi ne soit, meaning: ce que je vous dis est si vrai que, because it obscures the sentence. For instance:

J'étais dans ce jardin, et qu'ainsi ne soit, voilà une fleur que j'y ai cueillie, that is: Et pour preuve de cela, voilà une fleur, &c.

Molière and La Fontaine seem to have been the last great writers that have used this expression.

One of the most common gallicisms is that in which the impersonal verb il y a, is used for il est, il existe. These expressions:

Il y avait une fois un roi;—il y a cent à parier contre un, are gallicisms. There are two in the following sentence:
Il n'y a pas jusqu'aux enfans, Even children will meddle with qui ne s'en mêlent, it.

The verb falloir forms a sort of gallicism with the pronoun en, when it is conjugated like pronominal verbs with the double pronouns, il se; as,

Il s'en faut, il s'en fallait, &c.

It then means to be wanting, and when preceded by an adverb of quantity, the first pronoun is omitted, as,

Peu s'en faut, tant s'en faut.

These several manners of using the verb falloir will be found in the following sentences :

EXAMPLES.

Il s'en faut bien qu'il soit aussi habile qu'il croit l'être,

He is far from being so clever as he thinks.

Peu s'en est fallu qu'il n'ait succombé dans cette entreprise,

He was very near failing in that undertaking.

Il ne s'en est presque rien fallu qu'il n'ait été tué,

He was as near as possible being killed.

Vous dites qu'il s'en faut vingt livres que la somme entière n'y soit, mais vous vous trompez, il ne peut pas s'en falloir tant,

You say it wants twenty pounds to complete the sum, but you are mistaken, it cannot want so much.

Son rhume est entièrement guéri, ou peut s'en faut,

His cold is entirely well, or very near.

Que s'en est-il fallu que ces deux amis ne se soient brouillés ?

How near were these two friends quarrelling ?

Je ne suis pas content de votre application à l'étude, tant s'en faut,

I am not satisfied with your application to study, far from it.

Tant s'en faut que cette comédie me plaise, elle me semble au contraire détestable,

So far from this play pleasing me, I think it insufferable.

Il s'en fallait beaucoup que je vous approuvasse dans cette circonstance,

I was far from approving your conduct on that occasion.

The sentences :

Il n'est rien moins que généreux, Vous avez beau dire,

He is far from being generous. You may say what you please, but, &c.

A ce qu'il me semble,

By what I can see, as the matter appears to me, &c.

Nous voilà à nous lamenter,

We began to lament, here we are lamenting, crying, &c.

Qu'est-ce que de nous,

What wretched beings we are ! &c. &c.

are also gallicisms.

The use which is made of the preposition en, in many sentences, is likewise another source of gallicisms ; some of this kind will be found in the following expressions :

*A qui en avez-vous ?
Où en veut-il venir ?*

Whom are you angry with ?
What does he aim at ? what would he be at ?

Il lui en veut,

He has a quarrel with him, &c.

The preposition en changes also, sometimes, the signification of verbs, and then gives rise to gallicisms.

The conjunction que produces as great a number of gallicisms ; as,

C'est une terrible passion que le jeu, Gaming is a terrible passion.

C'est donc en vain que je travaille, It is in vain then that I work.

Ce n'est pas trop que cela, That is not too much.

Il n'est que d'avoir du courage, There is nothing like having courage.

Many others will be found in the use which is made of the prepositions à, de, dans, après, &c. but enough has been said on the subject.

Gallicisms are of very great use in the simple style, therefore La Fontaine and Mad. de Sévigné abound in them. The middling style has not so many, and the solemn oratorical but few, and these even of a peculiar nature. Only two examples of this kind, both taken from the tragedy of Iphigenia, by Racine, will be here inserted.

*Avez-vous pu penser qu'au sang d'Agamemnon
Achille préférât une fille sans nom,
Qui de tout son destin ce qu'elle a pu comprendre,
C'est qu'elle sort d'un sang, &c.*

And,

*Je ne sais qui m'arrête et retient mon courroux,
Que par un prompt avis de tout ce qui se passe.
Je ne cours des dieux divulguer la menace.*

In the first instance, qui is the subject, though without relating to any verb ; and in the second, je ne sais qui m'arrête que je ne cours, is contrary to the rules of common construction. "But," says Vaugelas, "these extraordinary phrases, far from being vicious, possess the more beauty, as they belong to a particular kind of language."

FREE EXERCISES.

I.

MADAME DE MAINTENON TO HER BROTHER.

We can only be 1 unhappy by our own fault; this shall always be my text, and my reply to your lamentations. Recollect 2, my dear brother, the voyage to America, the misfortunes of our father, of our infancy and our youth 3; and you will bless Providence instead of murmuring against fortune. Ten years ago, we were both very far (below our present situation 4;) and our hopes were so feeble 5, that we limited our wishes to an (income of three thousand livres 6.) At present we have four times that sum 7, and our desires are not yet satisfied! we enjoy the happy mediocrity which you have so often extolled 8; let us be content. If possessions 9 come to us, let us receive them from the hand of God, but let not our views be 10 too extravagant 11. We have (every thing necessary 12) and comfortable 13; all the rest is avarice 14; all these desires of greatness spring from 15 a restless heart. Your debts are all paid, and you may live elegantly 16, without contracting more 17. What have you to desire? must 18 schemes 19 of wealth and ambition occasion 20 the loss of your repose and your health? read the life of St. Louis; you will see how unequal 21 the greatness of this world is to the desires of the human heart; God only can satisfy them 22. I repeat it, you are only unhappy by your own fault. Your uneasiness 23 destroys your health, which you ought to preserve, if it were 24 only because I love you. Watch 25 your temper 26: if you can render it less splenetic 27 and less gloomy, (you will have gained a great advantage 28.) This is not the work of reflection only; exercise, amusement, and a regular life, (are necessary for the purpose 29.) You cannot think well (whilst your health is affected 30;) when the body is debilitated 31, the mind is without vigour. Adieu! write to me more frequently, and in a style less gloomy.

AN EASTERN TALE.

Divine mercy 1 had brought a vicious man into a society of sages, whose morals were holy and pure. He was affected by their virtues; it was not long 2 before 3 he imitated them, and lost his old habits: he became just, sober, patient, laborious, and benevolent. His deeds nobody could deny, but they were attributed 4 to odious motives. They praised his good actions, without loving his person: they would always judge him by what he had been, not by what he was become. This injustice filled him with grief; he shed tears in the bosom of an ancient sage, more just and more humane than the others. "Oh my son," said the old man to him, "thou art better than thy reputation; be thankful to God for it. Happy the man who can say, my enemies and my rivals censure in me vices of which I am not guilty. What matters 5 it, if thou art good, that men persecute thee as wicked? Hast thou not, to comfort thee, the two best witnesses of thy actions, God and thy conscience?" SAINT-LAMBERT.

Mr. de Montausier has written a letter to Monseigneur upon the taking of Philipsbourgh, which very much pleases me. "Monseigneur, I do not compliment you on the capture of Philipsbourgh: you had a good army, bombs, cannon, and Vauban; neither shall I compliment you upon your valour: for that is an hereditary virtue in your family. But I rejoice that you are liberal, generous, humane, and that you know how to recompense the services of those who behave well: it is for this that I congratulate you." SEVIGNE.

THE GOOD MINISTER.

AN EASTERN TALE.

The great Aaron Raschild began to suspect that his vizier Giafar was not deserving of the confidence which he had reposed in him. The women of Aaron, the inhabitants of Bagdad, the courtiers, the dervises, censured the vizier with bitterness. The calif loved Giafar; he would not condemn him upon the clamours of the city and the court: he visited his empire; every where he saw the land well cultivated, the country smiling, the cottages opulent, the useful arts honoured, and youth full of gayety. He visited his fortified cities and sea-ports, he saw numerous ships, which threatened the coasts of Africa and of Asia; he saw warriors disciplined and content; these warriors, the seamen, and the peasantry, exclaimed: "O God, pour thy blessings upon the faithful, by giving them a calif like Aaron, and a vizier like Giafar." The calif, affected by these exclamations, enters a mosque, falls upon his knees, and cries out: "Great God, I return thee thanks; thou hast given me a vizier of whom my courtiers speak ill, and my people speak well."

SAINT-LAMBERT.

Providence conducts us with so much goodness through the different periods of our life, that we (do not perceive our progress 1.) This loss takes place gently 2, it is imperceptible, it is the shadow of the sun-dial whose motion we do not see. If, at twenty years of age, we could see 3 in a mirror, the face we shall have at three score, we (should be shocked at the contrast 4,) and terrified at our own figure; but it is day by day we advance: we are to-day as we were yesterday, and shall be to-morrow as we are to-day; so we go forward without perceiving it, and this is a miracle of that Providence whom I adore.

THE MAGNIFICENT PROSPECT.

This beautiful house was on the declivity of a hill, from whence you beheld the sea, sometimes clear and smooth as glass, sometimes idly 1 irritated against the rocks on which it broke, bellowing 2 and swelling its waves like mountains. On another side was seen a river, in which were islands bordered with blooming limes, and lofty poplars, which raised their proud heads to the very clouds. The several channels, which formed those islands, seemed sporting 3 in the plain. Some rolled their limpid waters with rapidity; some had a peaceful and still course; others, by long windings, ran back again, to reascend as it were to their source, and seemed not to have power to leave these enchanting borders. At a distance were seen hills and mountains, which were lost in the clouds, and formed, by their fantastic figure, as delightful a horizon (as the eye could wish to behold 4.) The neighbouring mountains were covered with verdant (vine branches, 5) hanging in festoons; the grapes, brighter than purple, could not conceal themselves under the leaves, and the vine 6 was overloaded with its fruit. The fig, the olive, the pomegranate, and all other trees, overspread the plain, and made it one large garden.

A GENERAL VIEW OF NATURE.

With what magnificence does nature shine 1 upon earth! A pure light, extending from east to west, gilds successively the two hemispheres of this globe; an element transparent and light, surrounds it; a gentle fecundating heat animates, gives being 2 to the seeds of life; salubrious running streams contribute to their preservation and growth; eminences diversified over the level land, arrest the vapours of the air, make these springs inexhaustible and always new; immense cavities made to receive them, divide the continents. The extent of the sea is as great as that of the earth; it is not a cold, barren element; it is a new empire, as rich, as populous as the first. The finger of God has marked their boundaries.

The earth, rising above the level of the sea, is secure 3 from its eruptions: its surface, enamelled with flowers, adorned with ever-springing verdure, peopled with thousands and thousands of species of different animals, is a place of rest, a delightful abode, where man, placed in order to second nature, presides over all beings. The only one among them all, capable of knowing and worthy of admiring, God has made him spectator of the universe, and a witness of his wonders. The divine spark with which he is animated, enables him to participate in the divine mysteries; it is by this light that he thinks and reflects; by it he sees and reads in the book of the universe, as in a copy of the Deity.

Nature is the exterior throne of the divine Majesty; the man who contemplates, who studies it, rises by degrees to the interior throne of Omnipotence. Made to adore the Creator, the vassal of heaven, sovereign of the earth, he ennobles, peoples, enriches it; he establishes among living beings, order, subordination, harmony; he embellishes nature herself; he cultivates, extends, and polishes it; lops off the thistle and the brier, and multiplies the grape and the rose.

BUFFON.

VI.

ANOTHER GENERAL VIEW OF NATURE.

Trees, shrubs, and plants, are the ornaments and clothing 1 of the earth. Nothing is so melancholy 2 as the prospect of a coun-

7 User. 8 N'en avoir que faire.

1 Vêtement. 2 Triste.

try naked and bare 3, exhibiting to the eye nothing but stones, mud, and sand. But, vivified by nature, and clad 4 in its nuptial robe, amidst the course of streams and the singing of birds, the earth presents to man, in the harmony of the three kingdoms, a spectacle full of life, of interest and charms, the only spectacle in the world of which his eyes and heart are never weary 5.

The more a (contemplative man's soul is fraught with sensibility 6,) the more he yields to the ecstasies which this harmony produces in him. A soft and deep melancholy then takes possession of his senses, and in an intoxication of delight, he loses himself in the immensity of that beautiful system, with which he feels himself identified. Then every particular object escapes him, he sees and feels nothing but in the whole. Some circumstance must contract his ideas, and circumscribe his imagination, before 7 he can observe by parcels that universe which he was endeavouring to embrace.

J. J. ROUSSEAU.

VII.

CULTIVATED NATURE.

How beautiful is cultivated nature! by the labours of man, how brilliant it is, and how pompously adorned! He himself is its chief ornament, its noblest part; by multiplying himself, he multiplies the most precious germ; she also seems to multiply with him: by his art, he (brings forth to view 1) all that she concealed 2 in her bosom. How many unknown treasures! What new riches! Flowers, fruits, seeds brought to perfection, multiplied to infinity; the useful species of animals transported, propagated, increased without number; the noxious species reduced, confined, banished; gold, and iron more necessary than gold, extracted from the bowels of the earth; torrents confined 3, rivers directed, contracted 4; the sea itself subjected, explored 5, crossed, from one hemisphere to the other; the earth accessible in every part, and every where rendered equally cheerful and fruitful: in the valleys, delightful meadows; in the plains, rich pastures and still richer harvests; hills covered with vines and fruits: their summits crowned with useful trees and young forests; deserts changed into cities inhabited by an immense population, which, continually circulating, spreads itself from these centres to their extremities; roads opened and frequented, communications established every where, as so many witnesses of the strength and union of society; a thousand other monuments of power and glory sufficiently demonstrate that man, possessing dominion over the earth, has changed, renewed the whole of its surface, and that, at all times, he shares the empire of it with nature.

THE SAME SUBJECT CONTINUED.

However, man only reigns by right of conquest ; he rather enjoys than possesses, and he can preserve only by means of continual labour. If this ceases, every thing droops, every thing declines, every thing changes, and again returns 1 under the hand of nature ; she reassumes her rights, erases the work of man, covers with dust and moss his most pompous monuments, destroys them in time, and leaves him nothing but the regret of having lost, through his fault, what his ancestors had conquered by their labours. Those times, in which man loses his dominion, those barbarous 2 ages, during which every thing is seen to perish, are always preceded by war, and accompanied by scarcity and depopulation. Man, who can do nothing but by number, who is strong only by union, who can be happy only by peace, is mad enough to arm himself for his misery, and to fight for his ruin. Impelled by an insatiable thirst of having, blinded by ambition still more insatiable, he renounces all the feelings of humanity, turns all his strength against himself, seeks mutual destruction, actually 3 destroys himself : and, after these periods of blood and carnage, when the smoke of glory has vanished, he contemplates with a sad eye, the earth wasted, the arts buried, nations scattered, the people weakened, his own happiness ruined, and his real power annihilated.

INVOCATION TO THE GOD OF NATURE.

Almighty God ! whose presence alone supports nature, and maintains the harmony of the laws of the universe : Thou, who, from the immoveable throne of the empyrean, seest the celestial spheres roll under thy feet, without shock or confusion : who, from the bosom of repose, reproducest every moment their immense movements, and alone governest, in profound peace, that infinite number of heavens and worlds ; restore, restore at length tranquillity to the agitated earth ! let it be silent at thy voice ; let discord and war cease their proud clamours ! God of goodness, author of all beings, thy paternal eye takes in 1 all the objects of the creation ; but man is thy chosen being ; thou hast illumined 2 his soul with a ray of thy immortal light : complete the measure of thy kindness by penetrating his heart with a ray of thy love : this divine sentiment, diffusing itself every where, will reconcile opposite natures ; man will no longer dread the sight of man ; his hand will no longer wield the murderous steel 3 ; the devouring flames of war will no longer dry up 4 the sources of population : the human species, now weakened, mutilated, mowed down in the blossom, will spring anew ⁵ and multiply without number ; nature, overwhelmed under the weight of scourges ⁶, will soon re-assume, with a new life, its former fruitfulness ; and we, beneficent God, will second it, we will cultivate it, we will contemplate it incessantly, that we may every moment offer thee a new tribute of gratitude and admiration.

Happy they who are disgusted with ¹ turbulent pleasures, and know how to be contented ² with the sweets of an innocent life ! Happy they who delight in being instructed ³, and who take a pleasure ⁴ in storing their minds with knowledge ! Wherever adverse fortune may throw them, they always carry entertainment with them ; and the disquiet which preys upon others, even in the midst of pleasures, is unknown to those who can employ themselves in reading. Happy they who love to read, and are not like me deprived of the ability. As these thoughts were passing in my mind, I went into a gloomy forest, where I immediately perceived an old man, holding a book in his hand. The forehead of this sage was broad, bald, and a little wrinkled : a white beard hung down to his girdle ; his stature was tall and majestic ; his complexion still fresh and ruddy, his eyes lively and piercing, his voice sweet, his words plain and charming. I never saw so venerable an old man. He was a priest of Apollo, and officiated ⁵ in a marble temple, which the kings of Egypt had dedicated to that God in this forest. The book which he held in his hand was a collection of hymns in honour of the Gods. He accosted me in a friendly manner ; and we discoursed together. He related things past so well, that they seemed present, and yet with such brevity, that his account never tired me. He foresaw the future by his profound knowledge, which made him know men and the designs of which they are capable. With all this wisdom he was cheerful and complaisant, and the sprightliest youth has not so many graces as this man had at so advanced an age. He accordingly loved young men when they were teachable ⁶, and had a taste for study and virtue.

THOUGHTS ON POETRY.

Wherever I went, I found that poetry was considered as the (highest learning 1) and regarded with a veneration (somewhat approaching to 2,) that which men would pay to angelic nature.

It yet fills me with wonder that, in almost all countries, the most ancient poets are considered as the best; whether (it be that 3) every kind of knowledge is an acquisition gradually attained, and poetry is a gift conferred at once; or that the first poetry of every nation surprised them as a novelty, and retained the credit by consent, which it received by accident at first; or whether, as the province 4 of poetry is to describe nature and passion, which are always the same, the first writers (took possession 5) of (the most striking objects for description 6,) and (the most probable occurrences for fiction 7,) and left nothing to those that followed them, but transcription 8 of the same events, and new combinations 9 of the same images. Whatever be the reason, it is commonly observed, that the early writers are in possession of nature, and their followers 10 of art: that the first excel in strength and invention, and the latter in elegance and refinement.

I was desirous to add my name to this illustrious fraternity 11. I read all the poets of Persia and Arabia, and was able to repeat by memory the volumes that are suspended in the mosque of Mecca. But I soon found that no man was ever great by imitation. My desire of excellence 12 impelled 13 me to transfer 14 my attention to nature and life 15. Nature was to be my subject, and men to be my auditors: I could never describe what I had not seen; I could not hope (to move those with delight or terror 16) whose interests and opinions I did not understand 17.

XII.

Being now resolved to be a poet, I saw every thing (with a new purpose 18;) my sphere of attention was suddenly magnified: no kind of knowledge (was to be overlooked 19.) I ranged mountains and deserts for 20 images and resemblances, and (pictured upon my mind 21) every tree of the forest and flower of the valley. I observed with equal care the crags of the rock and the pinnacles of the palace. Sometimes I wandered along the mazes of the rivulet, and sometimes watched the changes of the summer-clouds. To a poet nothing can be useless. Whatever is beautiful, and whatever is dreadful, must be familiar to his imagination: he must (be conversant 22) with all that (is awfully vast or elegantly little 23.) The plants of the garden, the animals of the wood, the minerals of the earth, and the meteors of the sky, must all concur to store his mind with inexhaustible variety: for every idea is useful for the (enforcement or decoration 24) of moral or religious truth; and he who knows most, will have most power 25 of diversifying his scenes 26, and gratifying his reader with remote allusions and unexpected instruction.

All the appearances of nature I was, therefore, careful to study 27, and every country which I have surveyed has contributed something to my poetical powers.

In so wide a survey, interrupted the prince, you must surely have left much unobserved. I have lived, till now, within the circuit of these mountains, and yet cannot walk abroad without the sight of something which I had never beheld before, or never heeded 28.

XIII.

The business of a poet, said Imlac, is to examine, not the individual, but the species; to remark general properties and (large appearances 29:) he does not number the streaks of the tulip, or describe the different shades in the verdure of the forest. He is to exhibit, in his portraits of nature, such prominent and striking features, as 30 recall the original to every mind; and must neglect the minuter discriminations 31, which one may have remarked, and another neglected, for those characteristics 32 which are alike obvious 33 to vigilance 34 and carelessness 35.

But the knowledge of nature is only half 36 the task of a poet: he must be acquainted likewise with all the modes 37 of life. His character requires that he estimate 38 the happiness and misery of every condition: observe the power of all the passions, in all their combinations, and trace the changes 39 of the human mind, as they are modified by various institutions, and accidental influences of climate or custom; from the sprightliness of infancy to the despondence of decrepitude. He must divest himself 40 of the prejudices of his age or country; he must consider right and wrong 41 in their abstracted and invariable state 42; he must disregard present laws and opinions, and rise to general and transcendent truths, which will always be the same; he must, therefore, (content himself with the slow progress of his name 43,) condemn the applause of his own time, and commit his claims to the justice of posterity. He must write as the interpreter of nature, and the legislator of mankind, and consider himself as presiding 44 over the thoughts and manners of future generations, as a being superior to time and place.

His labour is not yet at an end: he must know many languages, and many sciences; and, that his style may be worthy of his thoughts, he must, by incessant practice, familiarize himself to every delicacy of speech and grace of harmony. S. JOHNSON.

XIV.

First follow nature, and your judgment frame,
By her just standard, which is still the same;
Unerring nature, still divinely bright,
One clear, unchanged, and universal light,
Life, force, and beauty, must to all impart; 1
At once the source, and end, and test of art. 2
Art, from that fund, each just supply provides;
Works without show, and without pomp presides;
In some fair body thus th' informing soul,
With spirit feeds, with vigour fills the whole;
Each motion guides, and every nerve sustains Itself unseen, but in th' effect remains. 3
Some, to whom heav'n in wit has been profuse,
Want as much more to turn it to its use:
For wit and judgment often are at strife,
Tho' meant each other's aid, like man and wife. 4
'Tis more to guide, than spur the muse's steed,
Restrain his fury, than provoke his speed: 5
The winged courser, like a gen'rous horse,
Shows most true mettle, when you check its course. 6

POPE.

Abstraction faite de ces divers préjugés. 43 Se résigner à voir son nom percer difficilement. 44 Influencer.

1. Light, clear, immutable, and universal nature, which never errs, and shines always with a divine splendour, must impart to all she does, life, force, and beauty. 2 She is at once the source, &c.

3 So in a fair body, unseen itself, but always sensible by its effects, the soul continually acting, feeds the whole with spirits, fills it with vigour, guides every motion of it, and sustains every nerve.

4 Some to whom heaven has given wit with profusion, want as much yet to know the use they ought to make of it; for wit and judgment, though made, like man and wife, to aid each other, are often in opposition.

9 It is more difficult to guide than spur the courser of the muses, and to restrain its ardour than to provoke its impetuosity.

6 The winged courser is like a generous horse: the more we strive to stop it in its rapid course, the more it shows unconquerable vigour.
